Druid Park group holds dinner-dance

The Druid Park West Child Study group held its annual dinner-dance last Saturday, April 29, at Martin's West. Proceeds from the well-attended affair will go to the Anna Mae Hunter Home for the Blind.

Hundreds of guess, formally clothed, danced to the music of Bobby Felder.

Organized in 1966, Druid Park West is a chapter of the Child Study Association of Maryland. A non-profit organization, its aim is to help build a finer, more satisfying family life in the belief that the family has the greatest influence on the child's development.

Officers are Mrs. Reona J. Thomas, president; Dr. Doris Welcher, vice-president; Mrs. Deloris C. Mann, recording secretary; Mrs. Alyce B. Miller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Addie Harris, financial secretary and Mrs. Donetta Allen, treasurer.

Mesdames include: Mesdames Emma Arnelle, Betty S. Boone, Bernice Brown, Sallie W. Bulger, Coleen G. "Happy Days are Here Again," capturing well the mood, but not exactly accurate — the Los Angeles Lakers had never before won a National Basketball Association title.

Chamberlain was one of the last players to make his way to the Lakers' dressing room. He stood in a corner. Writers pushed around.

"For a long time fans of mine had to put up with people saying Wilt couldn't win a big one," he said almost softly. "Now maybe they'll have a chance to walk in peace like I do . . . I'll get some rest tonight."

Dave Debusschere of the Knicks made his way through the champagne-guzzling crowd. Other New Yorkers followed.

"Congratulations," the visiting forward told Chamberlain. "Thanks," said the Big Dipper. And the two big men shook hands.

Wilt now able to 'walk in peace'

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain is a big man, well over 200 pounds, but the fans who surged onto the court of the Forum Sunday night had little difficulty in hoisting him nearly head high.

The arena's organist,
