Teacher's son gets suspended robbery term

Linear Charles Dunlap, 21, pleaded guilty for the second time to charges of armed robbery Tuesday in Criminal Court.

Judge Paul A. Dorf sentenced the defendant to 10 years imprisonment, suspended the term and released Dunlap into custody of the federal court where he is being held for another robbery conviction.

Four charges of armed robbery against the defendant were dropped by the state.

Mr. Dunlap was convicted April 5 in U. S. District Court of the Jan. 18 holdup of the Pikesville Uptown Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The defendant pleaded guilty to the robbery where $4,742 was taken.

He is the son of a Baltimore Public school teacher and formerly resided in the 1500 block of N. Wolfe St.

Democratic delegates challenged

Forty-eight delegates, who were elected in the May 16 Democratic primary, held elections today (Friday) of alternates and at-large delegates to complete their 90-member delegation for the Democratic National Convention in July.

The State Convention of elected delegates began at 10 a.m. this morning in the Towson State College Center and names of alternates and at-large delegates were not available at AFRO presstime.

The group will represent Maryland at the Democratic Convention to be held in Miami Beach July 10-13.

The convention members were also faced with the statewide challenge representing women, Black citizens and youth, which was filed May 23 with the Democratic National Committee against the entire Maryland delegation.

The challengers charged the delegation with being under-representative of the three groups in violation of the Party's Reform Guidelines which bind states in their selection of delegates to the national convention.

Among the opposers is Mrs. Louise G. Murphy, who garnered the largest number of primary votes among black candidates running in the Third Congressional district delegation race.

In a letter to William S. James, chairman, Mrs. Murphy stated, "It is of utmost importance that the Maryland delegation to the Democratic National Convention be represented as the new Democratic Party guidelines require; that is youth, women and blacks."

Challengers indicated they would question the credentials of the following delegates who were chosen in the primary election:

Hamilton Fox, Russell Hickman, William S. James, J. Millard Tawes, Joseph D. Tydings, Charles W. Willis.

Harry Bartenfelder, Jeyme L. Dorf, Joseph Glass, Nancy Louise Greene, Wilsie Adams, James Swazy.

Joseph Curran Jr., George W. Della, James Heaney Sr., Patrick McDonough, John O'Brien, Charles Wheatley.

Ilse Daring, Warren Duckett, Clifford Hardesty,

Arthur Alexander gets citation for bravery

A Citizen's Citation has been given Arthur Alexander for stopping a purse-snatching attempt on the afternoon of April 26. Mayor Schaefer made the presentation.

Mr. Alexander a Department of Planning clerk, foiled the attempted purse snatching in the stairwell of the Municipal Building, 222 E. Saratoga St.

Mr. Alexander was in the building's lobby waiting for an elevator when he heard a woman's scream from the stairwell. He ran to the stairwell door to see what was wrong. On opening the door he was met by a young man who was running while redoing the pocket-lock under his coat.

Mr. Alexander grabbed the young man's arm, forcing him to drop the pocketbook, then hit the man on the back. The man tripped down the stairs but regained his balance sufficiently to escape through the front door without being apprehended.

The attempted theft took place in the stairwell between the 5th and 3rd floors.

Miss Lieba Londor, another city employee, was returning to her third floor office when a husky, young man, about 5'7" grabbed her from behind, snatched her pocketbook, and ran off. Miss London screamed and ran into the third floor conference room.

Mr. Alexander who was on the first floor at the time, responded to the call and thwarted the attempted theft.

Mr. Alexander, 29, has worked as a clerk for Planning since October 6, 1969.

Police state Mr. Green is charged with the shooting death of Jerome West, 34, 1200 block N. Gay St. who was pronounced dead at 3 a.m. at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

2 women fined $75 each for care home violations

SOLOMON G. ROSE III 3 years old, has been missing since April 1 when he disappeared while shopping Center. Police still investigating the strange incident have uncovered no clues. The $900 cash award is still available for solution of the mystery.

A definition of what is a domiciliary care home threw a state prosecution into difficulties in a packed and silent Northwest District Court Wednesday.

Ruled by Judge Edgar Silver as the "vital point" in deciding the case, the point of dispute nearly caused the third postponement of the trial of Mrs. Mary Washington, 48, 4000 block Liberty Heights Ave., charged with operating a home without a license.

In the same court Mrs. Pearl Cole, 58, 4000 Maine Ave., was also found guilty for operating two homes without licenses. Both received $75 fines.

Herman Freeman, counsel for the two accused persons, told the court Mrs. Washington was not operating a domiciliary home but a boarding home for the elderly and poor.

However, the prosecution maintained that the home comes under the Department of Health regulations covering domiciliary homes.

When it came to the definition of a care home the state got into difficulties. It asked for the postponement of the case for it to prepare a memorandum to help decide the case.

After consultation between officials of the Department of Health and the state's attorney they maintained evidence showed inmates of the home come under the definition of residents of a domiciliary care home.

Mrs. Washington was found guilty of the charge and was fined $75 and given 30 days in which she could appeal.

Mrs. Cole entered a technical plea of guilty in operating a home in the 3500 block Berwyn Ave. She was fined $75.

However, she contended that she was in the process of getting a license for her second care home in the 4000 block Maine Ave.

She stated she was making extensions and delay for application was due to those renovations.

The court, however, disagreed and found her guilty. The fine was $75.

Teacher granted divorce

Mrs. Roscoe Handy, second unit block of Ridgemoor Rd., Baltimore County, was granted a divorce Monday from her husband, Roscoe Handy, of the 3700 block Belle Ave.

Judge Albert Sidar sitting in Circuit Court No. 2 awarded Mrs. Handy the decree on grounds of desertion.

The public school teacher told the court she left her husband in 1969 after he threatened her with a gun.

The Handys were married Aug. 20, 1966 in Richmond, Va., in a religious ceremony and separated March 21, 1969 while residing here in the 3700 block of Belle Ave., court records disclose.

Persons who do not complete the form and return it immediately may be dropped from the Food Stamp program.

Persons wishing help in completing the form may call the Department of Social Services at 234-2183.

Home Services workers want director fired

The Community Health Council at a meeting on Wednesday with the Health Department director, Dr. Robert E. Farber, re-raised the issue of Special Home Services employees' distress over the bureau's acting chief, Miss Adele Wilzack.

Last year, the city Community Relations Commission acted on a complaint filed by the former Home Services director, Bailey Conaway.

The Commission did not concur with Mr. Conaway that he, a black man, had suffered racial harassment from Health Department officials. The Commission did conclude there were considerable administrative problems.

Mr. Conaway resigned early this year and Miss Wilzack became acting director.

William L. Hankins, vice president of the Health Council, told the AFRO on Thursday a majority of Home Services workers signed a petition asking for Miss Wilzack's resignation because of alleged devisive tactics with employees and her interference with the staff's functioning.

The Bureau of Home Services was formed to provide help to the aged like transporting them to and from the doctors.

Mr. Hankins said Dr. Farber evidently will not react to the wishes of over 50 per cent of the agency's workers who "more or less" have been threatened with loss of job if they take their grievance into the streets by picketing City

Bee Hive robbery nets $200

"No one was hurt, just my feelings."

This is the comment Carl "Piggy" Davis, 25, owner of the Bee Hive Bar, made Wednesday evening after robbers took him for $160 in bills and $40 change at the establishment, 1530 N. Gay St. in broad daylight.

Mr. Davis of the 3700 block Liberty Heights Ave., told the AFRO he was on the way to the tavern when the incident occurred and soon afterwards the place was flooded with police.

He quoted the bar tender, Ronald Ramseur, 26, as saying two men about 20 years of age, entered shortly after 3 p.m. ordered a beer and a coke and played records until customers went to the patio to enjoy the out-of-doors.

He also quoted Mr. Ramseur as revealing the strangers then took out their guns and saying, "Give up the money or we'll kill you," locked him in the bathroom.

He states Mr. Ramseur was let out the bathroom at gunpoint to open the cash register after the bandits tried and failed.

Mr. Davis stated that there were four customers on the back patio but not one knew a robbery was taking place.

After the two men emptied the cash register they again locked the bar tender in the bathroom and left the place.

Police are searching for the men who, they believe, may have frequented the Bee Hive often enough to become acquainted with the place and surroundings.

LOOK AROUND YOU

Post-Mortem examiners have always been white

EDITOR'S NOTE — This series of articles called "Look Around You" is designed to have AFRO readers realize how few black employees there are in Baltimore's public agencies responsible for attending to the needs of a city with nearly a half black population.

The AFRO encourages its readers to suggest agencies for "Look Around You" to investigate.

Bodies of Marylanders who die sudden or violent deaths or die unattended by a physician are subject to an autopsy by the Department of Post Mortem Examiners.

Most of the dead bodies are black people but none of the examining physicians known as forensic pathologists are black doctors. None of the administrators are black including the six-man department commission.

Morgan College Class of '52 in social, business reunion

with Lula Mackay

The 1962 class of Morgan State College celebrated its 20th-year, with weekend reunion activities at the Quality Motel.

The Reunion began Friday night with registration and cocktails along with room-room visitations to catch up on the happenings of 20 years.

The hospitality room where most of the official happenings occurred had its walls covered with reproductions of the class pictures that were made in 1952.

The game consisted of identifying, if possible, classmates from the 1952 yearbook pictures, reautographing yearbooks, showing pictures of children, introducing mates, taking new pictures, recapturing old memories.

Saturday night reached the peak of the reunion mood with an intimate dinner-dance in the Steeple-Chase room, with music by Leroy Hartrorne and his Experimental Group. Dr. Samuel Meyers, president of Bowie State College, and the class adviser for the 1952 group was on hand with his wife.

He spoke of the 1952 class as one of the most outstanding in the school's history and how proud he was of their many accomplishments such as: William Mumby, his assistant at Bowie, Dr. Ralph Rogers from New Jersey, Melvin Fox class president and chairman of the Reunion Committee along with Janet Wollridge, Ruth Davis, George Gibbs, William Mumby, Catherine Richardson, Shirley Pinkett, Shirley Swartford, and Ponjola Priest.

We Wives set fast pace at Saturday night dinner dance

Intimate, warm and great fun is one way to describe the beautiful party that We Wives staged in Martins West for their beautiful friends on Saturday night.

To begin with they augmented the banquet hall's magnificent chandeliers with hanging baskets of spring flowers, giving an illusion of a Viennese garden.

Bobby Felder came from Washington with a dance program planned under direction.

And their banquet buffet, which rotated from the hors deouvres to the fruits, to the dinner proper to the desserts, was something to be seen as well as gastronomically enjoyed.

It was the sort of party where a lot of open secrets unfold. For example, charming Mrs. Mattie Gardner flaunting a beautiful engagement ring and William (Bill) Lampkin exemplifying the proud guy.

It was a whole dress thing in itself, with the eye-popper being Mrs. William Garner is a striking black and white pant suit, the only pants (ladies' about, I think. Mrs. Benjamin Foreman wore a most beautiful flowered chiffon, predominantly red; Mrs. James Murphy in an all silver, all pailettes evening coat; Mrs. David Wright in chic black with a huge blue rose at the deep front V; Mrs. Maxwell Chatman with a new hair-do in the Chinese mood and a Chinese print whose skirt never stopped splitting. At lease twas slit in four sections; Mrs. Medford Reynolds in white silk brocade, a hint of a motif in blue heads, here and there, but Mrs. Howard Collins in layers of black organza; and Mrs. Grace Walker in blue chiffon, one-half of the top sequins, the other half draped chiffon.

Mrs. J. C. Reaves in the prettiest pink halter frock molded to a deep V at the front; Mrs. Charles Fisher in chiffon blocked with satin strips and each square pinned with a brilliant. The gown was sashed at front and belted in blue. Mrs. D. John Peters in black and white, in two patterns, and bared at the back practically to the waist — that is with the exception of tiny rolled cords that really hid nothing. Mrs. Walter Edmonds looked very fresh and springy in red and white checked blouse with white and red patterned skirt. Mrs. Howard Murphy's African print, Mrs. Wilfred Seaborne's red chiffon, also backless . . . and Mrs. Ray Haysbert taking all eyes in complete cover-up, stark black and white.

At the shank of the evening, when the music was quieting and the guests drifting out, most of them stopped dead in their tracks. In the lobby a beautifully crescent of a table held liquers, cordials, pastries, coffee, all the fixings of a continental breakfast to put a final glow on the party. There was even the high bowl of gelatin to refresh the palate.

So, We Wives had done it

Dinner party ends commencement day

The dinner party honoring recipients of honorary degrees, presided over, this year, by President King V. Cheek, closed the Commencement Day festivities at Morgan State College.

The affair, notably lacking the flare, the speeches and the show case of yesteryears, drew the approval of many guests if comments were to be considered. After all, said one yearly guest at these affairs, Commencement is a long hard day.

The evening's program consisted of an invocation, the introduction of guests, at the head table and a few guests in the audience, and dining.

If there was a high spot, it was the elaborate and colorful buffet which had been prepared for the evening.

At the head table were:

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Trader, John W. Waters, Dr. and Mrs. G. James Fleming, Dr. Brodus Sawyer, Dr. J. Haywood Harrison, Joseph Howard, Jr., Miss Fannie Allen, Dr. and Mrs. Rogert K. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. George Taliaferro, William Proctor, Dr. Elaine Davis.
