ADULT GRADS BEAM

New Dunbar hoped to bring back vitality to Eastside

"I JUST CAN'T WAIT"—Mrs. Lenore Harris, a Dunbar Adult High grad sits whimsically as students wait to form processional last week for their big night. Mrs. Harris received a diploma in business education.

That new Dunbar High School Community Center will serve as the nucleus of plans for revival of East Baltimore was the theme of an address by Councilman Clarence "Du" Burns (D, 2nd) at the Dunbar Adult Commencement Exercises last week.

Mr. Burns said, "A whole lot is coming to East Baltimore. The $25 million which took us ten years to raise for this new facility will bring lifeblood back into a community that reached rock bottom during the riots of 1968."

In the presence of Mayor William Donald Schaefer and school officials, the councilman told the 34 graduates and their 230 guests that they must first "deal with themselves before you can do anything else."

Mr. Burns, himself a custodian at the school for 20 years, looking at the finishing students, declared, "We have to deal with ourselves as black people. When the time comes for the ethnics to stop being ethnic and become white, they go on and get the job done. Then they go back to being white or whatever they were."

Concluding his short address, he recounted past years when the Dunbar High School was closed, "they barred the doors after 3 p.m. But that didn't stop us, we met on steps across the street and formed the Dunbar Community Council which was greatly responsible for the new building now rising down the street. We have got to get inside and make the system work for us."

Mrs. Pearl C. Brackett, assistant superintendent for Community Schools, contributed, "I know and understand the personal sacrifice which has brought you to this point, you didn't quit and that's why you are here."

She expressed hopes that the Dunbar day school would tie in with the Dunbar night program, a hope also mentioned by Raymond Carpenter, principal of the day sessions.

The Mayor, in presenting diplomas, asked graduates: "What can you do for Baltimore City?"

* * *

One of the brightest moments shining through occurred Mrs. Mary Bouldin, 50, 2202 N. Calvert St., received her academic diploma. Later she exclaimed, "I made it! I made it! I made it! I help of Almighty God and his strength and my prayers!"

The East Baltimore matron, a member of Zion Baptist Church, is a technical assistant at Johns Hopkins' University. She has no children.

Clutching her diplomas, she beamed, "Yep, I am going to college, maybe Coppin or Morgan. I am not sure yet."

Other proud graduates were:

SEWING CERTIFICATES: Mrs. Dorothy Mary Banks, Mrs. Constance C. Elam, Mrs. Lanzer Fleshman, Mrs. Addie Hightower, Mrs. Lucille M. Parker, Mrs. Susie Slide and Mrs. Catharine Turner.

JUNIOR HIGH CERTIFICATES: Arthur L. Allen, Jeremiah A. Collier, Mrs. Marie Finch, Mrs. Earlher Lee Hayward, Mrs. Debra Dale Henry, Mrs. Evelyn M. Holden, Theodore Jones, Mrs. Ruth Love, Mrs. Mary Moore, and Mrs. Ada Spencer.

The party to have been at Friday night was that gathering of the interesting people, guests of Mary Elizabeth Law at her Forest Park Avenue place. Will you believe that the affair, starting at 7:30, was still aglow at 4:00 a.m.

The hostess, her silver-streaked hair piled high on her head, and wearing the most colorful, floor-length caftan in ten counties, swirled vivaciously through the scores of guests . . . but with an eye pealed for the guest of honor. Max Stokley of Philadelphia. He was delayed by the heavy holiday traffic. But was he kept busy the remainder of the week-end with parties . . . including those with Dr. and Mrs. Percival Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Adams, the We Wives, with Dr. Turgot Jeudy, the Donald Pattersons, the Hiram Butlers and a theatre thing to see "Buck and the Preacher."

The Carter people catered Mrs. Law's affair and come up with some of the most luscious tidbits (imagine tiny soft shell crab hors deouvres) the whole gamutof drinks, and dinner at midnight.

Guests included:

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dugger, Judge and Mrs. Ben Foreman, Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Embra Bowie, Dr. and Mrs. Lonnie Greene, Dr. and Mrs. Otis Froe, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones, Judge and Mrs. Harry Cole, Dr. and Mrs. V. Mrs. Henry honoree at singers' dinner

The Male Chorus of Asbury United Methodist Church in West Street observed an anniversary on Wednesday evening, at the Statler-Hilton Inn, when Mrs. Annie S. Henry, its organist, was honoree.

The chorus, under the direction of Roland Colbert, is widely known for its outstanding concerts in Maryland and other areas.

Mrs. Henry, its organist for 15 years, retired in June, 1970 from the Baltimore City School System, where she served as a teacher for 23 years.

Prior to this teaching career, she had worked in the Ann Arundel County Public Schools for 20 years. She was a principal for Stanton School, and had taught at Browns Woods and Magothy.

For two years before coming to Baltimore, she served as a clerk-typist at the National Airport.

Mrs. Henry received her A.B. degree from the School of Education of Howard University at the age of 15. She pursued graduate work at Hampton Institute, Columbia and New York Universities, and received her principal's certificate at Morgan College.

An active member of Asbury Church, she has served as organist for the Gospel Choir for 37 years, the Young Adult Choir, 20 years, assistant director of the Senior Choir for about five years, and serves as assistant organist of the church.

Also Mrs. Henry has served as a financial secretary of the church for 15 years.

Fraternally, she is a past matron of the Prince Hall Affiliation Order of Eastern Star No. 15, and Past Secretary of its Matrons Guild.

The daughter of the late Frank and Carrie Simpson of this city, her grandfather was the first nonwhite business man to have a stall in the old market Place.

Mrs. Henry, a soprano, sang with choruses conducted by the late Emmett Nelson and J. Weldon Irvine for several years.

Beautiful Baltimore lunches fund drive

Beautiful Baltimore, Inc., an educational, non-profit, tax-exempt citizens committee, today launched a membership drive to raise money for creating flower gardens in the city and other beautification projects.

The committee, headed by Mrs. Barr Harras, has already completed three major projects since it was organized a year ago April.

The projects include a flower garden at Centre and St. Paul Streets, an inner courtyard garden for the Harlem Park Junior High School and a seed planting program for 850 children in a dozen city elementary schools in cooperation with District IV, Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, Inc.

* * *

Beatuiful Baltimore, Inc., is cooperating in a downtown street light pole hanging basket project with the Charles Street Association. By the middle of June, each of 100 street light poles will have two large hanging baskets filled with either fuchsia, geraniums, petunias, begonias, wandering jew, lantana vinca, ivy or other live plant material either in group plantings or combination.

Total cost of the hanging basket project is $5,000, or $50 a pole, which pays for a permanent aluminum bracket and the two 14-inch-in-diameter wire baskets.

* * *

The two organizations have already raised nearly $2,000 toward the project and are seeking sponsoring from merchants, business firms, organizations and individuals to pay for the remaining baskets, which will be watered and maintained by the city.

Contributions may be sent to Beautiful Baltimore Inc., 627 East 34th street, Baltimore 21218, or the Charles Street Association, 200 West Baltimore street, Baltimore 21201.

Annual picnic held May 23, Montebello

The Montebello State Hospital Volunteer Auxiliary held its annual patients' picnic at the hospital on May 23.

The theme this year was 'Circus.' The patio was appropriately decorated and there was entertainment and prizes for the 250 patients. Volunteers dressed in clowns costumes added to the festivities.

Highlights of the day was the crowning of the patient King and Queen, both of whom had been selected by the patients.

This year the honors went to Wilbur Wedge, and Mrs. 'Rusty" Thrasher.

Mrs. Charles Wirth is coordinator of volunteers and Mrs. C. Rider Brandau, president of the auxiliary.
