Colt receiver to chair fete for retarded

Baltimore Colt Eddie Hinton has been named honorary chairman of the third annual bull roast of the Baltimore Association for Retarded Children, Inc.

The bull roast will be held on Sunday (June 11) at Timonium Fairgrounds. Proceeds from the association's major fund-raising event of the year will be used to support the Residential Home Program. ARC is pioneering with the support of the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Eddie Hinton, the Colts' wide-receiver, has long shown concern for the mentally retarded. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Special Education from the University of Oklahoma, and since his arrival in Baltimore has participated in a number of programs on behalf of the retarded.

For the past several years, he has been active in the state-wide "Special Olympics," a day of athletic competition designed expressly for the retarded and sponsored by the Maryland Jaycees.

Trimnastics to begin on June 12

"Trimnastics," a new, 12-week series of physical fitness programs to air Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30-10 a.m., will make its premiere on WBAL-TV during the week of June 12.

The series will feature exercises viewers may do at home and will be co-hosted by J. Hyland and Jocelyn Levasseur. Mr. Levasseur is Executive Director of the Md. Commission on Physical Fitness. His wife, Jocelyn, is very active in the physical fitness field.

Each "Trimnastics" program will feature various exercises geared to people who are out of condition and wish to get back into shape on a planned schedule.

SAMUEL B. LITTLE, a Morgan grad, is presented the President's Second Mile Award by President Dr. King Cheek. The award for the student who "goes his mile and ten" toward bettering school life, was originated by Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, the retired president.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

BY IDA M. PETERS

"MALCOLM X"

In town for press interviews this past Thursday was Mrs. Betty Shabazz, widow of Malcolm X. J. F. Theatre's John Thompson reports the Warner Brothers film will open June 14th at the Charles, downtown.

'LEGEND OF N- CHARLEY'

One of the high spots at the beginning of the film, "The Legend of N----- Charley", now playing at the Hippodrome is the torrid love scene between Charley and his girl friend Julia (Marcia McBroom).

She made her feature-film debut in "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls." Previously cast as an extra in Samuel Goldwyn, Jr.'s "Cotton Comes to Harlem," she has just completed a cameo role in "Come Back Charleston Blue" for Warner Bros., the sequel to "Cotton."

Formerly a dancer with Katherine Dunham for five years, Miss McBroom danced in 'Aida" at the Metropolitan Opera for five seasons and then traveled to Paris where she did "Deux Anges sont Venus."

Her acting debut was made on stage in the Off-Off-Broadway production of "Blues for Mr. Charlie," and will be seen with Barbara Streisand in her next film, 'Up the Sandbox," for First Artists.

'CHATO' AT MET

The title role of "Chato" in "Chato's Land," a United Artists release now playing at the Met Theatre, gives Charles Bronson one of his most challenging and unusual roles in a long and distinguished career. Bronson's brutal good looks and virile athletic figure made him a natural choice for the role of the Apache Indian who is forced to revert from a peaceful half-breed to a savage vengeful warrior.

The part is also unique for Bronson for as "Chato" he hardly speaks at all, and then only in Apache which he learned from an Apache in Hollywood.

ELEANORE MILLS, new pop singer based in Baltimore and studying at Peabody. She is under new management of A&D Productions.

ELEANORE MILLS

Pop singer Eleanore Mills, a native of Brooklyn, began her musical career as lead singer of a female group in a New York church. Traveling with this group, she sang in churches throughout New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. From church engagements she went to the Apollo Theatre, winning an amateur talent show, and an appearance on one of the regular shows.

After her Apollo Theater victory, she joined a group of female singers, the Dixie Cups. With this group she recorded albums and singles. Eleanore then decided to venture out on her own, working many of the U.S. Army, Marine, and Air Force bases. She appeared at officers Clubs, recreation centers, and was heard on every United States radio station at bases where she performed.

Miss Mills' educational background includes her graduation from Central Commerical High School in New York and the study of music under Joe Jones along with some piano and voice lessons.

She is currently based in Balto. and attending Peabody school for Theory, Harmony, and piano.

She recently completed an engagement at the Playboy Club and other clubs. She is now being managed and produced by A and D Productions, Rod Armstrong and Jerie Donaldson, owners.

HARFORD OPERA THEATER

Final rehearsals are underway for Strauss' "Adriadne auf Naxos" with which the Harford Opera Theater opens its 1972 season on June 14.

The opera, first performed in Vienna in 1916, was one of Richard Strauss' later works and in it he reverts to romantic lyricism of "Der Rosenkavalier" after laboring in the fields of "Elektra" and "Salome."

The presentation of "Ariadne auf Naxos" marks a continuation of a succession of ambitious seasons which Saul Lilienstein, the artistic director, has arranged for the Harford Opera Theater.

The 1972 season schedule includes "La Bohme," "The Abduction from the Seraglio," "Il Trovatore" and, concluding the season, Alban Berg's "Wozzeck."

POST PAVILION

The Merriweather Post Pavilion in Columbia opens with songwriter, singer and actor Arlo Guthrie July 16th. He has recorded such hit albums as "Alice's Restaurant," "Arlo," "Running Down The Road", and "Washington County."

Songwriter and singer Neil Diamond, who is rightly being compared with Frank Sinatra, will appear on July 29th and 30th.
