Douglass honor grad, a 'dedicated' young man

A Douglass High School honor student is among those young men who will begin studies at the United States Air Force Preparatory School this fall.

Ira Canty Jr., 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Canty Sr. of Appleton St, received confirmation of his acceptance to the school last week.

The high ranking senior, who will graduate with honors this month, was nominated by Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D-7th).

In his written reply to Ira, Congressman Mitchell said, "After careful consideration of all of the applicants' files who have applied for admission to the United States Air Force Academy, my Review Board decided that you should receive a nomination . . ."

Another high recommendation came from the youngster's minister, the Rev. Arthur J. Payne and Mrs. Laura C. Whitfield of Enon Baptist Church. They said, "Ira Canty has presented himself as a dedicated young man, willing to serve, and responsible for all tasks that he assumes.

* * *

"He is courteous, always conducting himself as a gentleman. He is always well-groomed and appropriately dressed. He is well liked by his peer group and adults as well."

The youngster is president of his homeroom class and is a member of the Student Council. In 1971 he was sent by Enon Baptist to attend a senior high school conference in Green Lake, Wis.

An only child, Mrs. Canty is a nurse at University of Md. Hospital and Mr. Canty works at the Gas and Electric Co. as a mail clerk.

Bring $1 along for day at park

If you're planning a day at one of Maryland's state parks or forests this summer remember that at many of the parks where there are swimming, camping, fishing and boating facilities an entrance fee is charged.

According to officials of the Maryland Bureau of Parks and Forests a $1 per car entrance fee is usually charged during the summer season. The fee may be reduced or dropped during off-season.

Buses that hold up to 30 persons will be charged $5 and buses that hold over 30 persons are usually charged $8, officials said. A 25 cent walk in fee is charged persons who enter on foot.

Entrance fees will also be dropped during special events sponsored by the park bureau. But officials say a slightly higher fee may be charged for occasions such as the Ft. Frederick pageant where outside groups are sponsors.

By consulting the park superintendent at the facility of your choice (There are 32 parks which the AFRO described last week) you can get information concerning camping fees and rental of picnic shelters and areas for groups.

WHAT'S HAPPENING ON THE EASTSIDE

Strawberry Festival held Friday; Mrs. Gordon graduates Sunday

By GEORGIANNA MOODY

The residents of Lafayette Courts held their 3rd Annual Strawberry Festival Friday, May 26. It was held in the Community Building which was beautifully decorated with fresh strawberries and various strawberry delicacies. Decorations were done by Mrs. Willette Withers, a resident of Lafayette. In the center of the floor stood a three foot fruit steeple and a strawberry tree.

Twelve different social agencies participated in festivities. Franklyn Hochreiter spoke to the many senior citizens, on the problems of the Aging.

A delicious turkey dinner with all its trimmings was served and enjoyed by more than 200 participants and visitors. Participants included Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Nathan Irby and Jonathan Eortmont, Mr. Douglass from Model Cities, East Baltimore Medical Plan, Department of Housing and Community Development, Department of Social Services, Mrs. Grace Watts;

SAGA, Martin Luther King Child Center, Mrs. Delores Jefferson, Christine Butler, Patricia Townes, Elaine Smith, Hilder Evans, Bernice Gross, Morris Williams.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Tisdale who tied the marriage knot on May 20th. The bride is the former Miss Grocie Goode.

Also to Ernest Moody who will have a birthday on June 8th.

Mrs. Clara Perry Gordon has been able to accomplish a goal she set many years ago.

In 1962, Mrs. Gordon dreamed of receiving a degree in Sociology from Morgan State College. Through many hours of study, toil, worry, frustration, and anxiety, she has seen her dream come true.

MRS. MOODY

Mrs. Gordon became inspired to continue her education after she had seen her daugnter Mrs. Clara Parker, a registered nurse, and son, Harvey Gordon Jr., an engineering writer, complete their respective education at Provident Hospital School of Nursing and Howard University.

Throughout her decade of study at the Morgan State College Center for Continuing Education, Mrs. Gordon remained a faithful and active member of the Leadenhall Baptist Church family. Her activities at Leadenhall include past president of the Senior choir, current president of the Willing Workers, Sunday School Teacher, and member of the Courtesy Committee and Sisterhood.

Mrs. Gordon is presently employed with the Department of Housing and Community Development of Baltimore City as an interviewer at the Lafayette Courts Homes. Her career with this agency began in 1945 as an Assistant-Supervisory Clerk, when she and a group of women residents of the Edgar Allen Poe Homes were pressed into service as exterminators.

A native of Winfall, N.C., Mrs. Gordon received her early education in the public schools of Perquimans County, N.C. and Baltimore City.

As a mother, Mrs. Gordon has demonstrated that she prefers the conjunction "nevertheless" rather than "because of."

Model Cities C.A.A. Day in Plaza

June 8 has been officially proclaimed "Model Cities-Community Action Agency Day," by Mayor William Donald Schaefer.

The two agencies will celebrate next Thursday by presenting "Communities Cooperating for a Better Baltimore," an exposition to be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in Hopkins Plaza.

Neighborhood groups and the supplemental programs of the two agencies will show how they work together toward solving community problems. Entertainment will be supplied by local and professional groups.

Displays and crafts will be on sale and offer something for the entire family.

Advisory committee report outlines high school needs

Far reaching changes in the public high schools of Maryland could result from recommendations of a 28-member advisory committee to state school superintendent James A. Jesenbaugh.

In a 36-page report the committee suggests three new plans outlining graduation requirements which local school systems may adopt.

If the recommendations are ultimately adopted, local school systems might choose any one of the plans or combinations of them. All 24 local systems are now reviewing the report.

Under Plan I it would be possible for a student, with approval of the local superintendent of schools, to complete his or her high school studies in less than four years. Students could attend part time and the longer than four years to meet graduation requirements.

Programs are also provided for students entering college early admissions programs, approved post secondary vocational programs, or job entry or apprenticship programs.

* * *

Plan II suggests a new approach to curriculum by emphasizing the interrelatedness of academic disciplines.

Plan II would require minimum standards of literacy, writing skills, and practical mathematics, with remedial programs in the ninth grade for students with deficiencies in those subjects. This plan also suggests that there be no marks, no grades, no promotion, no passing, no failing.

Students receive credit for a course when they meet course requirements.

Plan III would aim at a personalized educational programs for each student, based on a plan worked out by the student, his parents, and appropriate school personnel.

The role of the student in such planning would be to tell who he thinks he is, what he likes, and where he wants to go.

Parents would indicate aspirations for the child and assess from their viewpoint the students' interests, strengths, and weaknesses.

The report makes a massive assault on the time-honored "Carnegie Unit" for measuring credits toward high school graduation. Under present standards a student needs 18 such units to graduate.

The advisory committee is composed of students, parents, educators, and representatives of higher education institutions, was headed by R. Kenneth Twentey, of the Maryland State Department of Education.
