Md. drivers are warned against littering

A piece of tissue, an empty beer or soda can, or any other type litter can eventually cost Md. vechicle operators their driver's licenses if they don't dispose of their litter in the proper receptacles.

Beginning on July 1st a new law will go into effect which assigns one point to any motorist convicted for littering. This new law will be enforced by state and local police.

The bill, HB-63 was passed in the last session of the Md. General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Mandel on May 8th.

David H. Fisher, Highway Administrator said that each year the Maryland State Highway Administration spends thousands of dollars on the removal of litter and debris from the highways.

Litter is man-made and includes paper, cans and bottles. Returnable bottles as well as throw-aways are found among the litter which is collected. Debris consists of dirt, gravel, tree limbs and other natural material. Dead animals also fall under this classification.

During the fiscal year 1971, $480,622.68 was spent on the removal of litter and another $281,256.73 was spent on debris removal.

According to William Shook, assistant chief engineer for Maintenance of the State Highway Administration, "Industrial areas are generally the dirtiest. Where there is more traffic, there is more litter. Also areas surrounding carry-out shops are often dirtier."

Ali actor of the future? He proves he's already one

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali may quit the ring and go into acting in two years. He won't need any acting lesson—he's a master thespian already.

He proved that the other day when he worked out before a crowd estimated at 6,000 in the Forum. There was no admission charge.

The workout was designed to drum up interest in Ali's 12-round bout against Jerry Quarry at Las Vegas, Nev., Tuesday.

Acting the clown in between a few serious moments. Ali boxed with two sparring partners, Charles James and light heavyweight Eddie "Boss Man" Jones.

Sometimes the ex-champ would loll on the ropes and beckon his foe to come at him. The crowd loved it.

At one point, Ali leaped out of the ring after a heckler. Manager-trainer Angelo Dundee made a great show restraining him.

At another time, Ali made believe he spied heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in the audience and cried, "Don't harm him, folks. Stand up, Joe Frazier."

A woman stood up and Ali said, "I made a mistake. I'm sorry, lady You're not Joe Frazier."

The crowd rocked and roared, whistled and stomped in delight.

At a news conference after the workout, Ali was asked how long he would continue to fight and he said:

"I don't get hurt. I could probably fight 10 more years. I hope to get out and be well invested in two more years. Then I'd take it easy . . . enjoy my family. I might go into acting."

Actor Charlton Heston was on hand and Ali brought him into the ring to introduce him.

"This is my friend, Charleston Heston," said Ali, muffing the first name. "Don't he look good? There's no weight on him. He's almost as pretty as I am."

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Youngster, 11, conducts Symphony Orchestra

By ADAH K. JENKINS

On the stage of the Morris Mechanic Theatre last Friday morning an 11-year-old lad conducting the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra!

Amazing and especially so because this youngster, Michael Foster, has never had a music lesson and has no musical instrument in his home.

Discovered by Isaiah Jackson, who with Murry Sidlin promoted under the auspices of the Baltimore Symphony, special music study in the inner city elementary schools, Michael evidences rare qualities of genius.

With guidance from Jackson the lad demonstrates amazing control of rhythm, tempos and dynamics in the Overture from "William Tell." His is an inborn sensitivity, combined with a calm maturity and accordance that are sure signs of "Wunder kind" (Wonder children).

Michael has enjoyed singing since he was 3 and for 2 years has directed a choir of 30 young adults at his church, Mt. Calvary Baptist.

His mother being deceased, the lad, with his brother of 9 and uncle, who is 8, live with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guest, at 3112 Sequoia Ave.

Accompanying Michael to the rehearsal were his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Guest, his brother and uncle, who joined him at lunch in the Charcoal Hearth.

Michael proved to be a regular boy, munching delightedly on a hamburger and french fries, with a soda. Then being photographed in the dining room before rushing back to the stage for a television take of the rehearsal.

Earlier during the rehearsal the Vivaldi "Trumpet Concerto" was played by Don Tison, principal trumpetist and Langston Fitzgerald II, one of two black members of the orchestra.

The concerto was featured Friday night at Goucher and Saturday evening on the Hopkins Plaza. The two outdoor concerts were conducted by Murry Sidlin and Isaiah Jackson, the youth concert conductors of the Baltimore Symphony.

A scholarship program is being planned for the musical education of Michael Foster. Since his appearance on television an admirer offered a piano and the orchestra, who applauded him, is interested in contributing also for a piano.

Thru the Young Audiences, 300 concerts were given in the city and surrounding counties this year, offering ensemble and solo performances that are educational as well as enjoyable.

Officers for 1972-73 are: Mrs. R. McLean Campbell, president; Mrs. J. James Fleming; Mesdames Talbot Walker and Joseph Bierman, vice presidents; Mrs. Marando Veiga, treasurer and Mrs. Milton Young, corresponding secretary.

Dr. Louis Cheslock, of the Peabody Conservatory faculty, was guest speaker for the annual closing dinner of the Baltimore Music Teachers Association, held at a suburban hotel.

The speaker, who was introduced by Jack Thames, president, gave a detailed and graphic description of the development of music, from the very early classic to the present.

He urged the music educators to be ready to accept revolutionary changes as have been constantly taking place and that one must, in the language of the Psalm, be ready "to sing unto the Lord a new song."

Dr. Cheslock stressed the importance of jazz as one of the four great accomplishments in the music of today.

With Jack Thams elected for a second term to head the BMTA, the new slate of officers includes five presidents: Julio Esteban and Mrs. Clara Long; Mrs. Florence Carter, recording secretary; Miss Marjorie Liss, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Irene Simon, treasurer. Mrs. Charlotte Nachman, immediate past president is also a member of the board.

Foster irked by heat, told wait 'till Monday

LAS VEGAS — Bob Foster is getting real, bona-fide dress rehearsals daily as he works out here in preparation for Tuesday's defense of his light-heavyweight title.

When he complained about the 100-degree temperature, he was told by manager Lou Viscusi that he "ain't seen nothing yet." Wait, he was told, until he climbs in the ring with young Mike Quarry in their portion of the boxing doubleheader.

"Don't worry about it. It's going to be plenty hot under those big ring lights next week. You might as well get used to it."

Foster then sparred five rounds, three with Eddie Duncan of Philadelphia and two with Joe Gholston of Tampa, Fla.

The 175-pound division champion from Albuquerque, N.M. now has boxed 37 rounds since arriving in the city last Friday.

Closed-circuit KO urged

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., is seeking congressional action to assure the next Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali heavyweight championship fight is shown free on home television.

Aspin has called for speedy House action on a bill he has sponsored with 33 other congressmen which would ban the fight, and other major sports events, from closed-circuit television if a broadcast network is interested in showing the event.

Closed-circuit television tickets for Frazier-Ali could average $25, Aspin maintains.
