BOOK MINISTRY
When GOD commissioned Evang. Geraldine McDaniels to write "God Is The Answer" on September 26, 1970, GOD said: "I want you to write a book. I will save, heal and deliver the readers as they turn the pages." For more than 8 years miracles of every description have blessed the lives of the readers of this unusual book.
TESTIMONIES
"My Daughter Does Not Fight Me Anymore," Says Mom
"An enemy put a spell on my daughter 8 years ago. Since that time, when upset, which was often, she would fight me. I wrote her name on a piece of paper and put it in 'God Is The Answer' and read the book from cover to cover My daughter told me, 'Mother, I almost vomited up my stomach.' Now rid of the demons, my girl is different—not perfect, but no more fighting me, thank God."
—Mrs. F. C., Bronx, N.Y.
Withdrawal Condition Gone
"My daughter fell down the subway stairs There were no broken bones, but she was emotionally upset for a year. She would not get out of bed, see anyone, clean her home, shop or cook. I read 'God Is The Answer' 3 times. My daughter is now on her feet again and doing fine."—Mrs. S. D., Yonkers, N.Y.
"The Appetite for smoking, drinking and gambling left me after reading 'God Is The Answer.'"—Mr. F. J., New York, N.Y.
Receives Unexpected Finance
"I received $10,000 from an unexpected source 2 days after my wife read 'God Is The Answer.'"—Mr. M. H., Newark, N.J.

Miss Thelma Press, longtime teacher

Funeral services for Miss Thelma Press, 1731 N. Payson Street, who died on July 9, were held Thursday at the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Known as a "dedicated" school teacher for 32 years, Miss Press retired in 1958 from the Baltimore City Public Schools.

A native Baltimorean, Miss Press graduated from Douglass High School and went on to Coppin Normal School. She did now Coppin State College further study at Morgan State College, Hampton Institute and New York University.

She belonged to the NAACP, Urban League, P.T.A., Maryland State Teachers' Association and the Henrietta Morris Circle.

Miss Press served on many school-wide committees and elementary school committees.

She also was a summer school demonstration teacher at Morgan and served as a Bible School superintendent at the Metropolitan Church, where she was a long time member.

Survivors are her mother, Mrs. Nellie Boldin; sister, Mrs. Iradelle Penn; and five brothers, Jerome, Vernon, Theodore, Gilbert and Joseph Press.

Governor's commission awards $2.6 million

The Governor's Commission awarded a total of $2.6 million in 1972 action funds in its April meeting.

It was the first meeting at which grant requests were considered since Maryland's 1972 Comprehensive Plan was approved by the Law Enforcement Assistant Administration on March 23.

The $2.6 million in grant awards represents 29 per cent of the state's $8.8 million safe streets allocation for 1972.

Among the project awards was $75,000 for a violent crime liaison unit to operate within the State's Attorney's Office.

State's Attorney Milton Allen told the AFRO that four top-flight lawyers will work in conjunction of violent crime with the police department.

Also, $496,500 was awarded for an innovative foot patrolman project in the city's police department. Plans for the foot patrolman project call for the deployment of 52 officers in high crime areas of the city.

Two youths centers in Baltimore and the Harundale Youth Center in Anne Arundel County received $322,000 were awarded to the State Public Defenders' Office.

Additional public defenders will be made available to serve indigent juvenile offenders, especially in Baltimore. Plans also call for ten interviewers who will initially screen all juveniles and their parents prior to trial.

Under the other public defender program, investigators will be provided to examine the backgrounds of all indigent adult alleged offenders.

Their duties will include documenting social background, locating witness, developing evidentiary materials, appearing at trial as witnesses, investigating allegations of criminal conduct and preparing preliminary research materials.

You can be child care specialist

Initiation of a new profession for individuals interested in working with and caring for young children has been announced by Dr. Edward Zigler, Director of the Office of Child Development in HEW.

The new profession, to be known as Child Development Associate, will be launched with an initial grant of $802,000 from OCD to a Consortium made up of individuals and representatives of national organizations whose main concern is quality education for young children.

The Consortium was initiated by a planning group consisting of representatives from the American Association of Elementary Kindergarten-Nursery Educators, Association for Childhood Education International and National Association for the Education of Young Children.

"Under the CDA system, credentials will not be based only upon courses taken or academic units acquired.

They will be based upon an individual's demonstrated ability to assume primary responsibility for the education and development of group of young children."

The Consortium will have two mayor areas of responsibility: (1) developing and implementing a means of assessing the competence of a CDA candidate, and (2) issuing the final credential to the qualified CDAs.

Training of CDAs will begin this autumn under OCD's auspices, in approximately 10 pilot projects throughout the country. Training guidelines will be developed for use in other early childhood programs. Training will involve a substantial amount of on-the-job experience.

After receiving the credential, the CDA will be qualified to work in a professional capacity in day care centers, Head Start programs, nursery schools and other preschool programs.

The length of time required to educate an individual to be a CDA will vary. Persons with previous experience may need only short-term training, while others who enter the field without previous experience may need more extensive training.

The opportunity to become a CDA will also be available to child care workers and professionals in related fields who wish to be certified to work with young children.

Red Cross plays big role in recovery from the flood

Over 600 families already have been helped by the Red Cross' efforts in continuing to make all assistance possible available to those in need of help.

"If you are a victim of hurricane Agnes or any other natural disaster such as fire, call the Red Cross any time day or night for help," is the announcement from Mrs. Jo Rodgers Sloan, director of Services to Military Families.

A majority of the families helped have modest and lower incomes and are usually very proud people who are not accustomed to accepting things that they have not worked for themselves, Mrs. Sloan informs.

"They have a great sense of pride. It seems that those who had the least before the disaster are those who are the slowest to ask for help," Mrs. Sloan adds.

Mrs. Sloan reveals Red Cross is interested in reaching all victims of this disaster. Many of those suffering damage were black. While most public attention Concerning Agnes has decreased there are still many people in need of help.

Those qualifying for aid are given Red Cross checks based on what is needed to get the family functioning again. These checks are made to the store the applicant usually shops.

The counseling service also provides them with information concerning loans from the federal government, through the Small Business Administration.

Here families are given financial aid in reestablishing their homes. If a family is not able to repay the loan he then returns to the Red Cross for additional help.

"People unable to repay loans are usually young married, welfare recipients or the unemployed. We have facilities here to aid these people also," Mrs. Sloan said.

"In some instances we have even replaced dentures and eyeglasses," she continued.

It is expected that the Red Cross Center will be handling flood victims for another month. A totality of service is used to insure the disaster victim of the best service possible.

People needing help are urged to contact the Red Cross Center, at 22rd and St. Paul Sts.

The Red Cross mans telephones 24 hours a day to continue handling victims of the disaster. There have been 373 cases managed by the Red Cross since the hurricane.

The emotional shock of finding that you no longer have a home is a traumatic experience for most people. While the most urgent need is for the basic necessities of life, the Red Cross also must administer to the emotions of people.

"All the experiences here are heartfelt. We try to help in every way possible, including financially," Mrs. Sloan stated.

"It's difficult to sit and console a bereaved family, on first hearing of the death of a loved one. Yet it must be done. Of course, there is always the joy of helping someone find his family alive."

The Red Cross is a free help organization that depends on its funds from the citizens of Baltimore. Those who were fortunate enough not to have been touched by the damage are asked to contribute to the Red Cross.

Baltimore is asked to contribute $156,000 to the fund drive. The Baltimore Red Cross has already spent $152,000 in assisting this city's flood victims.

Job finding show begins on Sunday

"Job Finder," the WMAR-TV award winning series on employment, will return to the broadcast schedule of Channel 2 on Sunday, July 16 at 2:30 p.m.

This informative series, now in its fourth consecutive year, provides specifici information on how to find a job, where job opportunities are available and other material designed to "help the unemployed find jobs, help employers find workers and to provide a general review of employment in Baltimore."

The first program in this year's 'Job Finder" series will discuss the general em- Baltimore area: a comparployment situation in the son to one year ago, a prognosis for the future, equal employment opportunity advances, and pending legislation amont other topics.

Guests on this first "Job Finder" program will be: Mrs. Rita C. Davidson, Director, Department of Employment and Social Services; Mrs. Marion Pines, Director, Cooperative Area Manpower Services; Mr. Dominic N. Fornaro, President, Baltimore Area AFL-CIO Council; and U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall Jr. (R., Md.), appearing through a video tape statement.

Other programs in the 'Job Finder" series scheduled for this summer include presentations on poverty as it relates to employment, educational aspects of employment, discrimination in employment and the problems of transportation as it affects workers.

Each 'Job Finder" program will include short "features" describing typical job openings available at the Employment Security Administration, answers to questions on employment sent in by viewers, and brief employment news items.

The 'Job Finder" series is moderated by Pete Porter, WMAR-TV staff announcer.

Coppin State Accreditation is reaffirmed

The Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has reaffirmed the accreditation of Coppin State College.

In confirming this action, Elizabeth J. McCormick, chairman of the Commission, states: "This action reflects the confidence of your colleagues in the contribution you are making to higher education and their belief that you will continue to strive to improve the quality of education offered by Coppin State College."

The Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools concluded an evaluation of the college in March, 1972.

The Association draws its membership from N.Y., N.J., Pa., Md., Del., D.C., Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands.
