Iota Phi Lambda Sorority Kappa Chapter, recently held its closing meeting at the Morgan Park home of Soror Isabel McConnell.

The meeting opened with inspirational reading by Mrs. Harden, "On the Wings of Prayer" followed by a sentence prayer from each soror.

Kappa will host the 1975 National Convention. Soror Mable Waters, chairman, announced the appointment of Sorors Blanche Pettiford and Dolores Davenport as co-chairmen and Sorors Isabel McConnell and Fannie Poulson as advisors.

A gift of jewelry was presented to Soror Sylvia Martin with congratulations, for having received a B.S. degree in economics from the University of Md.

Soror Evelyn D. Wilkey gave a brief history of Kappa, which has been in existence now for 32 years.

The rest of the afternoon was devoted to fun. Sorors and their guests gathered on the patio and in the yard to enjoy all of the goodies. Since this was the last meeting for the season, each soror brought her favorite dish. There was food galore, all types of casseroles, salads, vegetables and chicken in every form, topped off with a cake iced in the Sorority colors of green and white.

Baltimore Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. recently held a card party at Levinson and Klein to benefit the H E R Project of One America, a federally-funded program by LEAA (Justice Dept.) designed to help women offenders find their place and make contributions to society.

Baltimore Alumnae is one of eight Delta Chapters involved in the program in which Mrs. Elaine Jenkins is director.

Delta Sorors experienced in guidance and counseling have volunteered to work with women offenders to help them with such problems as getting a job, finding a residence, caring for children, getting financing when needed and applying for higher education.

Plans are being made for another benefit in form of a banquet in November. Sorors Bernita Fuller and Naketah Gregory are coordinators of the HER Project.

Fashionettes

What's a back-to-school shopping trip without picking up something plaid? Not much of a trip. This fall pick up a lot of plaid.

Plaid is the pattern for fall and winter clothes, from tot to toddler to teens to Moms and grandmothers.

• • •

Pauline Trigere likes long black strapless gowns for after five occasions this coming fall and winter.

• • •

Fuller, shorter skirts for fall and winter are kept in motion by pleats, skater flares and gores.

• • •

The new jumper's set to make the back to school scene. It goes over sweaters with dolman sleeves or it goes over shirts with cap sleeves.

Inefficiency and ignorance plague Food Stamp program

By BLAINE TAYLOR

'Millions of dollars in Food Stamp money are lost to this State's economy by inefficiency in issuance and ignorance in certification.

"This study shows while all counties theoretically operate under a state-wide system of rules and guidelines, in reality 24 different Food Stamp systems are in operation in Maryland.

"The goal of the Food Stamp Program must be to make stamps available to the total eligible population."

These bleak findings and the recommendation are from a report issued by the Maryland Food Committee, Inc., The Food Stamp Program in Maryland.

President Ann Miller of the Committee, said "There are still many things which need to be done before the program begins to reach all those needy folks who are eligible and before they feel they can apply without loss of dignity.'

• • •

The study made several criticisms of the Food Stamp Program. Prime among them were the following:

"Food Stamp sales locations and hours are limited. In 13 counties the Department of Social Services office is the single place where they are sold. Hours vary greatly.

"In two-thirds of the counties, stamps are sold less than eight hours daily, five days a week.

"Twenty-three of the 24 counties have no provision for the working poor to buy Food Stamps outside of daytime working hours. No county sells them on Saturday. Time taken off from work means lost wages."

The Committee's recommendations for immediate action include:

(1) In order to remove the stigma of going to the welfare office, the state should encourage mail certification and recertification.

(2) There should be "training programs" for "all state personnel" involved in the program, which should emphasize "the importance of client-centered efficiency."

(3) "Provide for sale of Food Stamps at least one evening each week and on Saturday."

(4) "Increase sales locations," possibly using banks, libraries, credit unions and other places than the welfare offices.

(5) "Require that all counties conform to the Federal Regulations on the work registration requirement."

(6) "Eliminate restrictions on certification and purchase by proxy" (having someone register in your place).

(7) The state should develop a booklet "for general distribution," publicizing the program. (Many elderly people do not know Food Stamps exist, the report says.)

In Maryland, "Over 210,000 persons participate in the program," says the study, out of a total poverty population of "386,500 persons," making it plainly evident to all that at least 176,500 people in Maryland who need Food Stamps are not being reached by the program.

The report was prepared by the Maryland Food Committee, Inc. and the Community Nutrition Institute of Washington, D.C., to promote the usage of more Food Stamps in Maryland.

The two groups concluded "The Food Stamp Program is one of the best means available to increase food consumption for low-income families.

"In Maryland a family of four on Public Assistance receiving the maximum grant of $200 can purchase $108 worth of Food Stamps for $52.

"In this way the Food Stamp Program expands the food purchasing power of low-income families."

Food Tips

Cucumbers left on the vine too long usually have a dull color. They also turn yellowish and are likely to have tough flesh and large hard seeds. Avoid them.

If they look even lightly withered they also may be bitter.

• • •

What are "Dutch style" greens? Usually they are greens cooked with bacon, vinegar and sugar.

• • •

Did you know that dark or dull pans absorb heat? Foods actually bake faster and crusts are browner in such pans, faster than in shiny pans that reflect heat.

• • •

Fresh broccoli and cauliflower make good snacking-type items.

When added to a tray of carrots, radishes and celery, the color combination is bright and the nutritional values are good.

• • •

Frozen custard is made from the usual ingredients for ice cream, plus egg yolks. It has at least 10 per cent milkfat and 20 per cent total milk solids.

• • •

If you have pieces of stale bread don't forget you can use it to make cinnamon toast, French toast or even use the bread to make a pudding or a Fondue.

• • •

Making gravy? The real secret of making smooth gravy is to blend flour thoroughly with fat or with cold liquid combining it with hot liquid.
