Catholic paper dies in Senegal

DAKAR, Senegal — "To Die at 25 Years of Age" is a sad headline to read in a newspaper, and no less said when it is written about the newspaper itself.

This was the headline which appeared in "Afrique Nouvelle" recently when it confirmed what its 15,000 readers already feared — that it was closing down on its 25th anniversary.

Afrique Nouvelle — New Africa — was a Christian weekly newspaper in French founded by a Roman Catholic Father Paternot, in Dakar, in 1947. Senegal was then a French colony, and early in its life the paper offended the colonial authorities.

Wife claims husband threatened bombing

Mrs. Louise Pankey Greene, 2000 block Windsor Mill Rd., was granted a divorce Tuesday from her husband, Austin T. Greene, 4200 block DuVall Ave. Judge Meyer M. Cardin awarded Mrs. Greene the decree in Circuit Court No. 2 on grounds of desertion.

The Greenes were married Dec. 12, 1960 in Annapolis in a religious ceremony and separated Oct. 8, 1965, court records reveal.

Mrs. Greene stated she was forced to leave their home after her husband chased her with a knife.

"He had put me through a period of harassment," she said. "He turned off the electricity, he had taken out the gas, he had stolen all my clothes."

The housewife also told the court her husband "threatened to rig up a bomb" so that when she opened the door, it would explode in her face.

Police still seek 5 escaped prisoners

As of noon Wednesday police were still looking for five prisoners who unlocked their handcuffs and escaped while being taken in a jail wagon to City Jail Monday afternoon.

Officer Bernard Young of the City Jail told AFRO Wednesday efforts are still being made to apprehend the men who escaped when the wagon stopped at Madison and Guilford Aves., to pick up more prisoners.

• • •

Sgt. Arthur Grigsby who was driving the wagon stated they had stopped at 5:45 p.m. on their way from Western district when the escape plan was effected.

He stated while away to bring the other prisoners the five unlocked their handcuffs, kicked out a metal screen dividing the cab from the detention area in the vehicle and escaped.

They escaped prisoners are Jonny E. Evans, 29, 2100 block N. Fulton Ave., ordered held in lieu of $11,500 bond for possession and distribution of barbiturate and failing to appear in court; James E. Fetter, 20, 1000 block Vincent Ct., being held in lieu of $1,500 bail for assault.

Also escaped are Melvin Gladden, 20, 1700 block N. Appleton St., sentenced to 60 days in jail for assault; Edward Paige, 19, 2300 block Garrison Ave., held in lieu of $1,500 bail for failing to appear in court and Chester Lawrence, 23, 1800 block N. MUSICAL GROUP, members of the Peabody Summer Youth Program, are left to right, Scott Taylor, clarinet; Steve Weng, saxophone; Thomas Taylor, vieling; Robert Bunn, trombone; and Miss Janet Russel, clarinet.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Peabody's youth program is serious, specialized

By ADAH K. JENKINS

At 8 a.m. on five mornings of the week 67 inner city students gather at Peabody Conservatory for the Summer Youth Program.

Out of a group of 154 selected by their music public school music teachers, the final group was chosen after auditions before members of the Conservatory faculty.

From all over the city, in grades eight thru 10, Dr. Tinka Knopf and Miss Lynn Hebden, co-directors of the program, aimed for more junior high school students in this fourth year of the Summer Youth Program.

Morning classes are devoted to Keyboard training in piano, which all students find valuable in order to read music, understand harmony and rhythm, no matter what instrument they study.

Musicla composition class also engages the morning students, based on the educational philosophy that "the best way to know music is to write music."

Results have been exciting, with a flute and piano number by Debbie Owens a trumpet polka by Jayr Villaneuva and a cantata for voice and instruments by Steven Lindsay.

• • •

After a refreshment break at 10:30 in Peabody Refectory, the ensemble classes begin, in strings, brass, wood wind and chorus.

In the assembly hall the woodwind ensemble of 28 students, was practicing diligently in preparation for a television program, for which Pamela Lindsay, saxophonist, was mc.

• • •

On the stage of the Peabody concert hall the brass ensemble divided into small practice groups. One of the number, Jayr Villaneuva has composed a trumpet polka.

In a secluded stulio, violin students get diligent workout, with painstaking care for rhythm and notes.

The mixed chorus of 28 voices enthusiastically rehearsed "Father William" from "Alice in Wonderland."

• • •

It is only too plain that the Peabody Summer Youth Program is not a recreation project, but a serious, specialized study schedule, based upon the "nuts and bolts" drill that our junior high youngsters need as a preparation for senior high, college and hopefully, symphony orchestra.

Jack Carton and Morris Queen, the two coordinators of the project, agree on skill development as the center of the program, with quality as the main concern.

In spite of the terrific heat the attendance runs an average of 97 per cent, with 50 students attending on the 4th of July!

Every Friday the last period is given to the Convocation, for which there are faculty and for guest soloists.

Peabody's Summer Youth Program is attracting nation wide attention. Only last week educators from eight colleges of music in this country visited the conservatory. With Charles Pallos in charge, there were pertinent discussions of educational and financial problems of the independent music college.

Represented were: San Francisco, Cleveland, New England, Juilliard, Manhattan, Mannes and Philadelphia Music Academy Conservatories.

Also visiting the program were Quentin Lawson, from Mayor Schaefer's office, with Michael Hood.

Joining Model Cities and CAP the Mayor's office funded the Summer Youth Program with approximately $14,500, to which the Maryland Council in the Arts contributed $3,000.

• • •

At the conclusion of the Summer Youth Program of six week, the most promising students will continue at Peabody Preparatory if sufficient scholarships are available.

Of last summer's 50 students 30 were to continue this fall on scholarships.

Earl Gandison, a 1969 Summer Program student, graduated this year, winning a scholarship to the Wolfe Trap Farm this month and four years scholarship to Philadelphia Music Academy.

On Friday morning closing closing exercises for the summer program were held at the Conservatory. Among the numbers was a vocal solo by Karen Hill.

Jobmart aids those laid-off by city

A jobmart has been established to aid members of the Classified Municipal Employees — Association liad-off by the recent city budget cut-backs.

This is the word from Charles P. Fischbach, executive director. At a Wednesday press conference Fischbach also expressed displeasure at some city officials after returning from a morning meeting of the Board of Estimates.

According to Fischbach, "Those city employees accused of wrong doing shouldbe officially changed and not fired without a hearing. This denies them of due process of the law."

• • •

It was revealed that approximately 1,000 persons have been laid-off. And reportedly if the proposed revenue sharing is not passed another 5,000 will be without jobs.

The jobmart was established in cooperation with Lew Ruth of the Beneficial Employment Services, Townson. A list of job opportunities for CMEA member city employees who have been or possibly may be laid-off is provided for them to study.

• • •

Those members who need jobs are told to fill out applications that match them with the job skills they possess. It is estimated that hundreds of laid of will find jobs in this way.

The director of the CMEA said, "To lay off employees for economic reasons is one thing, but charges of wrongdoing deserve a hearing."

In concluding he stated, "It's outrageous to fire city employees when the city is paying for a 'situation room.'"
