She's well and happy on her 100th birthday

By PAM WIDGEON

"When I became 100, I felt like I was in another world. I feel like I am coming out of an old world into a new world."

The above statement made by Mrs. Georgianna Burgess was told to this AFRO reporter recently at her home in the 300 block Carrollton Ave., Mrs. Burgess who is still active and very alert was 100 years old on July 17. She was born 1872, in Columbus, Ga.

Mrs. Burgess, also well-known as Sister Burgess, was dressed in a bright yellow shirtwaist dress with gold beads around her neck. A colorful corsage pinned on her dress, was given to her at her birthday party held at Charity Community Church of God where she is a member.

As this reporter set in her immaculate home and listened to Mrs. Burgess tell of some of past experiences and things she could remember, I asked her what was her secret for a long life.

She stated, "As long as God says I can make it, I will make it. I have a friend whose husband died at least 15 years ago and my friend has been dying every since her husband died, but she is still living. Always remember, you must (for) the dead and you keep on living."

• • •

Mrs. Burgess gets around just as well as someone 50 years or younger. She stated, "I do my own washing, ironing, cooking and marketing. When I go to the market, my pastor's wife, Mrs. Harriett Thornes goes with me.

"I don't need any eyeglasses to read and sew. I use a needle with a little eye. I am kind of independent."

• • •

Among some of the things Mrs. Burgess said she could remember was when James A. Garfield was President and was assassinated.

She also mentioned that when Benjamin Harrison was President "money was so scarce that the government was giving little slips of paper out value for 25 cents.

"You would take it to the store and turn it in for food. These were similar to the food stamps we have today. Times were very, very hard, we have come a long way."

• • •

As Mrs. Burgess, took this reporter on a tour of her house and she showed pictures of her parents and noted "The men used to work for 50 cents a day. The women were working in the fields and truck gardens for 35 cents a day."

During her younger years, she was employed as a housekeeper. Her mother worked as an infant nurse in Columbus, for wealthy families.

When asked, had she ever been ill, she explained, "I was in the hospital for six weeks with arthritis and could not walk." Now she walks anywhere she wants to without a cain or without the help of anyone.

Some of the changes she has seen during her 100 years are "Children of today are raising themselves. They don't want to go to school, or Sunday school. They are snatching pocketbooks. The Bible speaks of all of this that is going on today."

• • •

'All these wars we are having the president can't settle them. As soon as they have one war settled down, another one rises up."

When asked was she on a special diet, Mrs. Burgess said, "I eat anything I want to but I don't know if I should."

What does a person 100 years old do during the day? This active lady said "There is always something to be done. I clean the house and mop the walls. I read my Bible in the morning and night, pray through the day for everyone in the world, read the newspapers and listen to the radio.

"I can stay here for year in and year out. I am not afraid because I trust in God."

As this reporter left her home, Mrs. Burgess expressed "I'm not telling nobody I had it easy. I don't have time to sit around and think about myself.

"I have a determination and-I can't flop. I just got to keep on living."

99-year-old church continues to serve South Baltimore

By JACKIE ALLEN

The history of the Leadenhall Baptist Church, Leadenhall near Cross St., is rich in heritage and memories of days past. Dedicated May 12, 1873, the church is one of the city's oldest institutions.

Organized with just eight members, the church has grown in membership to over 1,500.

In the 99-year history, seven ministers have served as its head, including the present minister, the Rev. Eddie R. Davis Jr.

• • •

Leadenhall Baptist was instituted after the Civil War and Emancipation to give the black citizens a place to come together and worship.

On Sunday, March 31, 1872, $8,000 was contributed by the Seventh Baptist Church for the construction of a building "for the colored Baptists of South Baltimore."

The first deacons of the church were Joseph Luffman, Peyton Taylor, David Pitts, George C. Warren, James Williams, and Peter Allor. Richmond Freeman served as Church Clerk.

• • •

Past ministers of the old and prestigious church were the Rev. Robert W. Jefferson, Rev. Samuel H. James, Dr. Madison C. Allen, Dr. Thomas B. Davis and Dr. H. Hudson Robbitt. The church is presently under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Davis.

With the AFRO celebrating its 80th birthday by pointing out other people and places Leadenhall Baptist deserves special note.

The church in any community must be the permanent fortress for all to gather around. The long and productive 99-year history of the Leadenhall Baptist Church has been that for many citizens of Baltimore.

Mr. Kyle got 14 cents for 2 weeks' work

By PATRICE MYERS

Surrounded by relics of his past — a fez and dress apron from the Shriners, a consistory plaque from the 32nd Degree, a Mason Bible, and a 1920 derby hat, Harvey T. Kyle revealed the secrets of his "new birth" and long life, "80 full years."

"I believe in God and I live in Christ. God guides me. Everything I do I acknowledge Him for doing," he said.

"The Bible says: If a person is righteous, the Lord increases his years. If a person is wicked, his life will be shortened."

Mr. Kyle is a living example of this Biblical saying because the Lord will "increase his years" to 80 on Aug. 26. Proof of his righteousness was apparent when he said, "I am living to please God."

• • •

Born in Mount Harley Springs, Pa. Mr. Kyle came to Baltimore in 1938. He had previously lived in Gettysburg and Harrisburg. He worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as a cleaner and red cap for 38 years before retiring on Feb. 14, 1958.

Mr. Kyle related some interesting experiences about his years at the Railroad. In Feb., 1939 the railroad paid him 14 cents for 2 weeks' work. Mr. Kyle and his union went to D.C. to fight for better wages. When he left the railroad he was making $15 a day.

He was AFRO 1901 newsboy

By PATRICE MYERS

Bernard R. Byrd Sr. born Aug. 22, 1892 vividly remembers when a white Southerner put him off a streetcar on Caroline and Biddle Sts. in 1901. He remembers when East Baltimore had pigs, chickens and goats running in the streets.

Mr. Byrd states that his secret for a long life is simply 'living a Christian life." He recommends that people "stay away from liquor and dope" if they would like a long life.

Proficient in music the octogenarian was a trumpet player for 50 years. He is a life time member of Locals 540 and 543 of the American Federation of Musicians and played for the soldiers from overseas in the 10th regiment.

Mr. Byrd was a trumpet player in a night cabaret and played for the Elks, Reindeers and Marons during their conventions.

During 1900 and 1901 Mr. Byrd was an AFRO carrier. He stated, "Then the AFRO only cost 3 cents for 4 pages."

Mr. Byrd was the manager of the Free Public Bath and Laundry on Argyle Ave. and Preston St. for 35 years. He retired in 1960 because the building was torn down for new modern apartment buildings.

Born in Anne Arundel County Mr. Byrd came to Baltimore when he was very young. He attended Macedonia Baptist Church for 68 years and played in the John Wesley Sunday School for 40 years.

• • •

When asked about his memories of old Baltimore Mr. Byrd said, "I remember when there was a Boys' School at 1611 W. Saratoga St. I remember my first and second grade teachers and that George Murphy was principal of the school. I can remember the Baltimore fire of 1904."

Perhaps another contributing factor to Mr. Byrd's longevity is his eating habits. He is mainly a vegetarian but occasionally eats meats. He raises his own vegetables, grapes, cherries and flowers.

Besides being a gardner, he also likes to play pool.

Mr. Byrd resides at 624 N. Carey St. He and his wife, Mrs. Willie E. Byrd, have 3 children. They are Miss Selma H. Byrd who retired from University Hospital as a senior nurse, Albert Byrd III who teaches art in Sacramento, Calif. and Bernard Byrd Jr., a stepson who teaches art in Baltimore.

A stepgrandson, 9-year-old Gregory Byrd, lives in Baltimore.

TRUMPET PLAYER — Bernard R. Byrd Sr. who will be 80 years old Aug. 22 was a musician for 50 years. His favorite instrument was the trumpet. Mr. Byrd stated that he owed his longevity to "living a Christian life." (Photo by John Dorman..)

Coppin State gets money for Model Cities

Coppin State College recently received a grant for $19,874 for Model Cities Related Comprehensive Planning.

The first job will be starting the Planning Council, which will include two faculty members (the project coordinator and the urban planning coordinator), two students to be selected by the Student Government, the education coordinator from the Baltimore Model Cities Program, and two Model Cities residents (one from each of the two areas (D and F) to be studied, selected by the Model Cities Neighborhood Council).

The study will begin with the educational needs of the students and residents of Baltimore's Model Cities Areas (D and F), and will include an analysis of characteristics of Coppin students, including social and economic background, achievement and motivation.

The primary emphasis will be on facilities to meet employment training needs.

Dr. Jerusa Wilson, Director of Institutional Research at Coppin State College, is the coordinator of the program and states, "I will make every effort to coordinate regularly with the Maryland Council of Higher Education and the State Department of Planning.

"The program is a nine-month effort and is presently in the planning stages of selecting an advisory council and selecting consultants," he concluded.

Sen. Beall to be floor chief at Convention

Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., (R.-Md.) will be President Nixon's floor manager for six delegations at the Republican National Convention.

Sen. Beall today was named a regional whip to coordinate the activities of the delegations from Maryland, New York, the District of Columbia, Rhode Island, Nevada and Puerto Rico.

Sheriff can help out in Juvenile Courtroom

Attorney General Francis B. Burch has clarified the role of the sheriff's office in relation to the Juvenile Court and Masters' Hearings during the court day.

Mr. Burch noted that many original functions of the sheriff and his deputies have been taken over by bailiffs or other officials.

With particular regard to the Juvenile Courts of Baltimore City, other officials such as clerks, stenographers, and probation officers have been provided to staff the court, but the sheriff's office could help if necessary.

As examples, Mr. Burch said: "If a large scale disturbance occurred in a juvenile courtroom, the Sheriff's office could be called for assistance even though court personnel were prerent.

'An abnormal security problem, an unusual need for extraordinary close supervision of numerous co-defendants, the unanticipated presence of a large number of witnesses to be transported to and from correctional institutions are also such situations which might require the court to request additional assistance from the sheriff's office," he concluded.
