United Fund's Claim Of No Bias Called 'Outright Lying'

There's a new type of inmate today

By FLETCHER ROBERTS

Commissioner James Jordan, head of Maryland's prison system, feels that change will be slow, that only the people can demand change and "the public is not too sympathetic toward inmates due to the high crime rate."

Mr. Jordan, one of the three black heads of prisons in the nation, was interviewed by this reporter this week at his Anne Arundel County home where he is recuperating from a heart attack sustained in April.

Mr. Jordan is over all maximum security prisons. Riots this summer were at Jessup's institution for men and the Penitentiary in Baltimore.

Mr. Jordan says he will return to his desk around Oct. 15.

Among first duties will be examination of self-help groups which seek to aid prisoners.

He notes that some of the programs have been judged as non-functional and as not contributing to rehabilitation of inmates.

Mr. Jordan stated he hopes to terminate non-functioning groups and return to normalcy the "good" programs. All self-help groups were barred after the riots.

Asked his reaction to riots in his absence, Mr. Jordan listed overcrowding, sub-standard medical attention and poor food as the most often voiced complaints of inmates.

He stated, "Riots are not justified in the sense that riots do not necessarily change conditions.

"Prison authorities are dealing with a new type of inmate. Today inmates are more aggressive and more activists.

"Anytime a man is deprived of freedom, a reaction can be expected."

Mr. Jordan emphasized, in support of his staff, that no charges of racism were lodged against any officers on the occasion of the riots.

He informed that most of the complaints received by his office were from black prison officers and there were no complaints of corruption within the prison administration.

He cited the presence of a black administrator in each prison under his jurisriots do not necessarily change conditions

Human rights commissioner says: not so

By SCOTT PONEMONE

The United Fund released a statement Aug. 4 announcing "full compliance with Human Relations Commission recommendations" to improve benefits to and employment of minority people, but a Human Relations commissioner has called this claim "outright lying"

In response to a complaint by the Community Health Council, the Commission issued a report in November, 1971 that urged the Fund to allocate more funds to black agencies and "to eliminate systematic discrimination" in black employment and board membership.

The Fund's Aug. 4 statement read: "Raymond V. Haysbert Sr., Vice President of the United Fund, announced that the Fund has fully complied with the spirit and intent of the Commission's recommendations and improvements continued to be made."

Commissioner Sampson Green, on hearing the Fund's claim, told the AFRO, "If they are saying they're in full compliance, then they are outright lying."

He explained, "Nothing was given to the Commission to indicate full compliance and the Commission has not said the United Fund is in full compliance."

"From what I've read in the papers," Mr. Green remarked, "they're putting a few black folks on boards and some sort of reorganizing their structure. There is minimal if any compliance."

Labor leaders endorse McGovern, lay plans to 'oust' Pres. Nixon

Labor leaders representing 25 of the largest and most influential AFL-CIO unions and the United Auto Workers in Maryland announced Thursday their support of Sen. George McGovern, Democratic Party nominee for President.

Peter J. Moralis, Regional Director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees was elected to serve as chairman of the Maryland Labor Committee for McGovern.

Elected as co-chairmen were Troy Brailey, of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and Jerry Menapace of Meatcutters Local 117.

In Mr. Moralis' words "The Maryland Labor community is determined to oust Nixon.

"We have a choice between going forward in the progressive tradition of the Democratic Party to secure the income, the security and the dignity of the American working man, or to take labor a great leap backward with another term of Mr. Nixon's regressive anti-labor policies."

The purpose of the Labor Committee for McGovern is, as Mr. Moralis points out, to project the McGovern-Shriver position in order to allow the individual union member to make up his own mind.

When asked whether further union endorsement had been sought after, Mr. Moralis responded that his committee would actively seek wider endorsement of the candidate from union memberships throughout the state.

In what he termed a "personal assessment," Mr. Moralis offered that many of the unions not now endorsing Mr. McGovern "represented the old guard."

He continued "Substantial changes have been made in the Democratic Party. There is now more participation of the people."

Hence, Mr. Moralis concludes, perhaps dissenting union leaders resent "not being able to get into the backroom" and are therefore maintaining George Meany's policy of "neutrality." — FCR

City adds 145 jobs for storm clean up

Some 145 2-month jobs to clean up Agnes storm damage were placed in the Job Bank on Monday and were gone by Wednesday, according to officials in the Public Employment Program of the Mayor's Manpower Resources Office.

The jobs became available Monday as the U.S. Department of Labor approved a $155,000 grant to Baltimore. The Board of Estimates, then, approved the spending of the money at its weekly meeting Wednesday.

James Morlock of the Manpower Office said the AFRO orientation for the new employees has already begun and they will begin work Monday.

Over 90 per cent of those just hired, he stated, are

N.Y.C. youths have served city, state

The 8,000 young men and women who have worked in the Neighborhood Youth Corps In-School Program this summer completed their assignments Aug. 17 of eight weeks, serving over 328 city, state, federal and other non-profit agencies in Baltimore in a variety of ways.

They worked for 30 hours a week in the agencies to which they were assigned, and have supplemented the regular staffs of these agencies, helping them accomplish many things they could not have done with their minimal number of workers.

The young people were paid for their work by the Federal Government at $1.60 an hour.

In eight weeks' time, this could've amounted to $374.40, if the enrollee worked every day of the 224 hours permitted him.

They have also received invaluable training and supervision from their supervisors in more than 850 work stations to which they were assigned.

This may serve as a stepping stone into a regular fulltime job when they finish high-school for some, and as a valuable work experience for those who apply for other types of jobs in the future.

Slain mother of 9 buried here Thursday

HERBERT NUTTER, funeral director, sustained a heart attack Thursday night. Reported this morning (Friday) as in serious condition in intensive care unit of Sinai Hospital, his wife state he is resting comfortably and is improving. Only members of the immediate family are allowed as visitors.

Mrs. Mildred Williams, 43, 600 block W. Lanvale St., mother of nine children and four grandchildren was buried in Baltimore National Cemetery Thursday after last rites at the Phillips Funeral Home.

Mrs. Williams was slain Aug. 18 by one slash of a knife around her neck while she was sitting — about — 7 p.m. on her front steps talking with neighbors and playing with one of her grandchildren.

Neighbor witnesses told police a man came from inside the house and committed the crime as they stood horrified.

They also told police that Mrs. Williams got up and stumbled a few feet away and fell to the pavement bleeding excessively.

Relatives state that she had recently asked a roomer, Joe Nathan Brown, 53, to move.

Police have charged Brown with the incident they say was performed with an 8-inch hunting knife found later in the back yard.

Relatives told the AFRO Mrs. Williams, separated

Senate OK of revenue Sharing soon

Congressional approval of $35 billion in Revenue Sharing funds appears more assured Wednesday as the specter of $10 million of municipal budget cuts, including a likely $2 million from the Department of Education, in Baltimore seems to fade away.

Senate Finance Committee approval of the bill Wednesday is said to all but assure the bill's passage in the Senate. The House has already passed a similar bill.

Mayor William Donald Schaefer has recently lifted his Sept. 1 deadline for Revenue Sharing passage and the start of severe city cutbacks since he felt the bill's passage was forthcoming.

The city budget for the year that began July 1 was set by City Council in a way that made the city

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Elegant is the word for Masonic dinner dance

BY MARIE P. COOKE

(Substituting for Mrs. Mackay, who is recuperating from an illness)

Elegant indeed was the dinner dance given by the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Masons on Monday evening.

The black tie affair, which attracted some 300 guests, most of them delegates from the Maryland Jurisdiction in town for the 125th Convention, was at Blue Crest North.

When guests arrived at the Pikesville hall, they were serenaded with organ music and served strawberry champagne.

As attendants parked their cars, they moved inside to the beautifully decorated rooms where Grand Master Samuel T. Daniels and Mrs. Daniels led Masonic officials in greeting them.

Mrs. Daniels, (Gladys), was a picture in a long white linen accordion pleated skirt with matching top, highlighted by pussy cat bow.

Music throughout the evening was by the Wilbur Phillips Orchestra which ended the dance at midnight with an inspiring rendition of the National Anthem. Guests joined hands and formed a circle to sing the beautiful words.

Among special guests from abroad were handsome Masonic brothers from Germany who occupied a special table for dinner.

In the group was Brother George Reeder Jr., the prosperous Stuttgart businessman. His discotheque is a favorite meeting place for American GIs in Germany he is special assistant district deputy of Prince Hall Masons.

Other officials of German lodges present were:

William Sayles, Augsburg, J. Nicholas Glenn, Wiesbaden, John L. Baynard and Warren Broomer, both of Stuttgart.

Among out-of-town guests was beauteous Mrs. Alvin Morris (Saverna), of Richmond, where she is a member of the popular Epicureans Club and national vice-president.

She wore a very becoming long print gown with V neck, was squired by one of Baltimore's most eligible, Armstead Jenkins.

Another town eligible, William (Bill) Simmons escorted Connie Brent, the teacher. Her dramatic gown was a navy organza top with navy and white check skirt, with red sash.

Pretty as a picture, also, was the Ronald Scotts' teenage daughter, Candance, who is as brainy as she is attractive, having recently earned her master's in economics from Tufts University. She and her mom selected colorful print gowns.

Most energetic dancer of the evening was Brother Bernard Benns. Even though he escorted his sister, he tipped the light fantastic all evening. Had a ball!

Cuff Note: The Monday evening affair coincided with the 28th wedding anniversary of Grand Master and Mrs. Daniels. There was a special cake and the orchestra played their special number and they danced alone to the applause of guests.

The convention marked the twelfth consecutive reelection of Grand Master Daniels. At the closing session on Tuesday afternoon, he was returned to office.

Others reelected were: Elmer T. Hawkins, Chestertown, deputy grand master; James T. Dorsey, grand senior warden; Benjamin Waters, Nanticoke, grand junior warden; Frederick T. Hicks, grand secretary; Ronald D. Scott, grand treasurer.

Nice gesture: After the session closed on Tuesday, a number of the grand officers and German visitors, journeyed to Chestertown, Md. to visit Deputy Grand Master Hawkins, who has been ill.

Traveling about is Mrs. Ruth T. Williams. She's visiting her daughter, Mrs. Shirlen Reid and her husband, Jimmy in Los Angeles, Calif. She's expected back in town in about three weeks

People visiting our town: In Baltimore for the first time in eight years is Miss Yolanda H. Nelson, 15, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Linwood H. (Ret.) Nelson of Anchorage, Alaska.

On her way to this city, she made stops in Scott Field, Ill. to see her sister and her family, Sgt. and Mrs. Don E. Mays, and spent two weeks in Atlanta, Ga. with former schoolmates.

While in Baltimore, the young miss is staying with grandparents Mr. and Mrs. George L. Skinner of McCulloh St.

(Cuff note: Miss Nelson and her sister, Mrs. Mays plan to meet soon and make short visits in D.C. and Philadelphia before journeying home in time to return to West High.

The William Lintons (Catherine) returned to the city this week from Dayton, Ohio after their son, Capt. William Linton Jr. and the former Miss Jo Ann Robinson exchanged vows.

The couple was married at Wright Patterson Air Force Base (It was a military wedding and an elegant one, too). A reception followed at the Officers Club, main ballroom.

Capt. Linton was graduated from City College, here in 1960, and is a product of the University of Md. where he received BS degree in electrical engineering and MS from the University of Tenn. Those attending the wedding from this city were his grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Linton; Mrs. Carolyn Willis, Mrs. Helen Giles, Mrs. Anne Woodlin, Mrs. Geneva Roberts, Thomas Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Boardley.

MR. AND MRS. CURTIS CHARLES GIBSON

The Gibsons are in the islands

Miss Carole Lucille Wiles and Curtis Charles Gibson, Jr. were married in a double ring ceremony at St. James Episcopal Church on Saturday. The Revs. Donald O. Wilson and Crayton Dudley performed the 6 p.m. ritual.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Wiles of Ellamont St. Mr. Gibson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibson of Payson St.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white embroidered silk chiffon, with an empire waistline. Long bell sleeves with a flowing floor-length train complemented her outfit made by her aunt Mrs. Nannie Ogburn. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and orchids.

Mrs. Carmen Artis, sister of the bride from Randallstown was the matron-of-honor. She wore a multi-colored chiffon gown with flowing sleeves.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Nancy Gorroden, and Misses Jill Ogburn and Theda Wiles, cousins of the bride from Brooklyn, N.Y. Others were Mesdames Sheila Gibson, Carmen Reid, Beverly Simms and Cynthia Corbin, all of Baltimore.

They were in summer colors of green with yellow, baby blue. They too, had empire waistlines and flowing sleeves.

Two little ladies carried baskets of flowers. They were Angela Best and Dawn Williams. In blue chiffon, white trimming and short puffed sleeves brought out the beauty in their outfits. Alexander Nance was the ringbearer.

Aaron Gibson, brother of the bridegroom, from Spring Lake, N.C. was the best man. Ushers were Alfred Nance, Douglass Bryant, Wilbert Miles, Curtis Ray Artis, Freddie Corbin, Wendall Reid, Alvin Gibson, brother of the bridegroom, and James Simpkins, all of Baltimore.

Church decorations were arranged by Osborne Dixon. The altar and choir stalls were beautifully banked with palms and baskets of white gladioli.

Maurice Murphy was at the organ, while Mrs. Roslyn Wood was the soloist. Mrs. Rosalie Thomas directed the wedding. She was assisted by Mrs. Margaret Land.

A reception followed at Le Fontaine Bleu with a sit down buffet dinner. Tables were decorated with pale yellow cloths and multi-colored floral centerpieces. Mrs. Ruby Taylor and Miss Doris McCaddy headed the receiving line.

After a champagne toast to the newlyweds by the best man, the couple joined the bridal party and guests in dancing until after midnight.

The new Mrs. Gibson is a product of Eastern High, Morgan State and the Helene Fuld School of Nursing of Provident Hospital. She is employed at the Greater Baltimore Medical Center as an operating room nurse.

Mr. Gibson is a graduate of Polytechnic High and the Ministers take off for 8-day Jamaican trip

Three area ministers and their wives left Wednesday morning for an eight-day vacation in the islands.

They were the Revs. Montague Brackett, pastor of Central Baptist Church and his wife Mrs. Helen Brackett; Carlton O. Cooke of Union Baptist Church, Sparrows Point and wife Mrs. Vera Cooke, and Samuel B. Redd, Mt. Aravat Baptist and Mrs. Ida Redd.

A bon voyage breakfast was given for the group by a prominent mortician of the Morton and Dyett Funeral Home, Leroy Dyett and his wife, Mrs. Ann Dyett.

Talking over omelettes hot cakes and eggs, one member disclosed that the little group had been traveling companions for over 15 years, visiting most of the 50 states.

After they leave Montego Bay, Jamaica, the six travelers will attend the National Baptist Convention in Fort Worth, Tex. which opens on September 5 for a week. (The Rev. Brackett is president of the Md. Chapter.) Some 30,000 are expected to attend.

Illustrious Women

MRS. GLORIA HOLLAND
selected for training program

Mrs. Gloria Holland, Chemist at the Aberdeen Proving Ground Technical Library is the first librarian at APG ever to be accepted into the Department of the Army Long-Term Training and Education of Civilian Employees Program. She lives in Harve de Grace, Md.

Under the program, Mrs. Holland, will attend Atlanta University in the fall where she will begin work toward a master's degree in library science.

The purpose of the Long-Term Training and Education program is to seek out those individuals who show exceptional promise and potential in their field of specialization and make it possible for them to pursue advanced studies in a job-related discipline.

During her stay at Atlanta University, Mrs. Holland's expenses will be met by the Department of the Army and, she will continue to rereive her regular salary.

Mrs. Holland has not always been involved in library work. After graduating from Havre de Grace Consolidated School and earning her bachelor's degree in biology at Morgan State College, she began her career at APG as a clerk-typist at the U.S. Army Ordnance Center and School.

Commenting on her selection, Mrs.m Holland said, "I guess I really won't be excited about it until I get registered in School," she explains. I won't be able to believe it's true until I actually get there" she added.
