Coconut-pecan pie, a real man-pleaser

If you've been watching your grocery budget all summer but want to entertain, try having a dessert party to close the season.

Dessert parties are ideal occasions to bring friends together for a last fling before busy fall schedules begin.

Certainly Coconut-Pecan Chocolate Pie should be included. This fudgy pie with crunchy coconut pecan topping is a real man-pleasing kind of dessert. Basically, it's made with sweet cooking chocolate for richness plus flaked coconut for a bit of chewy texture. Coffee, hot or iced, is a perfect beverage to offer along with dessert.

* * *

If any of your guests are counting calories, serve them just a sliver of this deluxe pie but provide a bowl of fresh cut-up fruit that's been garnished with a light sprinkling of flaked coconut for a special touch.

Coconut-Pecan Chocolate Pie

One unbaked 9-inch pie shell, one and two-third cups (14½-oz. can) evaporated milk, three-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth cup butter, one package (4 oz.) sweet cooking chocolate, broken in pieces, three egg yolks, slightly beaten, one-third cup flaked coconut, one teaspoon vanilla, one-third cup chopped pecans, one-third cup flaked coconut.

Bake pie shell at 425 degrees until golden brown — about 10 minutes. Remove from oven. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees.

Meanwhile, combine milk, sugar, butter and chocolate in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture is blended and just comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Gradually pour a small amount of the hot mixture into the egg yolks, stirring constantly. Then quickly stir egg mixture into remaining chocolate mixture in the saucepan. Add 1/3 cup coconut and vanilla.

Pour chocolate mixture into pie shell. Sprinkle top with pecans and 1/3 cup coconut. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. (Top will look set and coconut will be toasted). Cool. Makes 8 servings.

Note: To prepare recipe with whole milk, combine the sugar and ¾ cup unsifted all-purpose flour in a saucepan. Gradually stir in 1 2/3 cups whole milk until smooth. Add chocolate and butter. Continue as directed above.

Gino's invests $35,000 in CAA Credit Union

Another record was broken in Baltimore today when Gino's became the first corporation in the nation to invest in a limited income Credit Union.

$35,000 check was made by Alan Ameche, vice-president of Gino's, to Willard Moore, managing director of the Federation of Inner City Credit Unions and to Lenwood M. Ivey, executive director of the Community Action Agency that sponsors the Federation.

* * *

As a corporation shareholder in this inner city program, Gino's joins with 10,200 Baltimore citizens who now have $410,000 invested in seven Credit Unions.

Many of the shares are brought by people who can save as little as 25 cents per week, but, persons working in the inner city, as well as corporations, are eligible for membership.

National recognition was given to the Federation this year when two Thrift Honor Awards were made by the National Credit Union Administration.

This corporation investment furthers the local Community Action Agency's faith that private funds can be the leader, as opposed to projects funded solely through government funds, in ending poverty.

Light Housekeeping

By MARIE P. COOKE
(Substituting For Mrs. Lula Mackay)

When we reach August we expect to find local produce in abundance and summer fruits coming to market in good supply. It is also time to enjoy crabs from the Chesapeake. Produce counters in the stores and at roadside markets will have a selection of cabbage, new potatoes, snap beans, sweet corn, peppers, cucumbers and summer squash.

Shop for quality for all vegetables you buy in order to get the most value for your money. Generally the price range for vegetables has remained firm even when commodities are at their peak. Water damage and hot humid weather following a cool spring will probably cause a low yield of many items.

Tomatoes field ripened, have a better flavor and a higher vitamin C content than tomatoes picked green or pink and ripened off the vine. Look for tomatoes that are solid, well shaped, free of growth cracks or decay from water damage. Ripe tomatoes should have a rich red color.

If you buy slightly underripe tomatoes allow them to ripen at room temperature out of direct sunlight. Store ripe tomatoes in the refrigerator. Plan to use tomatoes as a source of vitamin C in your diet.

There is no one guide for buying vegetables but your eye is a good judge of freshness and crispness. Handle produce carefully as you make your selection. Bruising and damages can be prevented just by being careful. The consumer often pays for the damage even though it is not obviously charged at the point of purchase.

If you want seasonal fruit the best buys can be found in local cantaloupe, watermelon and peaches and nectarines. Blueberries are still available. Remember too, the cantaloupe and blueberries also are good sources of vitamin C.

* * *

Fixing summer fruit cocktails? Don't forget that ascorbic acid helps to keep fruit and vegetables from darkening. Add one-fourth teaspoon of crystallic ascorbic acid (vitamin C) to a quart of fruit or vegetables before processing. It retards oxidation, one cause of darkening of home canned foods.

Can you refreeze meat? Thawed meat or poultry may be refrozen if it contains ice crystals or has been kept cold and has been held at refrigerator temperature for no more than a day or two. In general, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says — if a food is safe to eat, it is safe to refreeze.

* * *

If you have forgotten to take the meat out of the freezer in time — try fast defrosting — just place product in watertight wrapper in cold water or in closed double paper bag at room temperature. This will help to keep surface of product cool while it defrosts, thus protecting against bacteria growth.

* * *

What is freezer burn? It is the drying out of the surface tissues of food giving it a white appearance. It is not harmful, but does make the dehydrated area tough and tasteless when cooked.
