"can be completed by early December or by mid-December and implemented by the end of January, 1973."

He stated that careful counseling and planning are required "but the awesome burden will be present whenever the changeover occurs, be it mid-year as of Jan. 29, 1973 or September, 1973."

Bussing for students of all ages he said, "should be coordinated and completed at one time."

The jurist said the total and final desegregation plan should be presented to the court on Monday Dec. 11 at a scheduled hearing.

Attorneys for the students and the defendants are required to submit memoranda no later than Oct. 1.

Judge Kaufman said he will hear oral argument on a date in October.

He noted, "This case raises questions pertaining not only to assignments of students but also to the racial balances in faculty and administration as well as plans for new school construction."

His direct statement is: "This court will hold a hearing on Monday, Dec. 11, 1972.

"In connection therewith, this court notes it is not hereby ordering at this time any action by defendants which requires the transfer or transportation of any student or students from any school attendance area prescribed by competent state or local authority for the purposes of achieving a balance among students with respect to race, sex, religion, or socioeconomic status as provided in Section 803 of the Higher Education Act Amendments of 1972, Pub. L. 92-318." He also noted, "This court is required neither to postpone the effective date of its within Order as provided thereby, nor to construe that section, nor to constitutionality, the latter question having been reserved by counsel for plaintiffs herein.

However, those issues would seemingly arise during the December hearing.

NAACP attorneys are Ken Johnson and Gerald A. Smith. Richard Falcone is the American Civil Liberties Union attorney.

The Prince Georges students, parents and friends that filed the case, March 3, 1972 are, Sylvester J. Vaughns Jr., by his father Sylvester J. Vaughns; Toka E. Wheatfall, by her father Walter E. Wheatfall; James R. L. Brooks Jr., by his father James James R. L. Brooks; Reginald A. Jackson Jr., by his father Reginald A. Jackson; Reginald Wiggs and his father Hosea D. Wiggs; Denise A. Ligon, by her father Dennis J. Ligon Jr.; Carolyn Gilmore, by her father Sterling K. Gilmore; John A. Williams, by his father John J. Williams, and of all other people involved in this kind of situation.

On July 25, the court filed an opinion in this case ordering desegregation within this 10th largest public school system in the United States and "an end to lack of conformity with the constitutional standards made by Supreme Court in 1954.

On Aug. 22 the Prince Georges County School Board of Education filed a report on the desegregation plans it had rejected.

Lengthy hearings were began Friday, Aug. 25 and terminated late Thursday night.

Baltimore. Police were looking for another man.

In the Thursday Eastside killing, other persons on the scene said, "A couple of other brothers and I were standing at the alley in the 1800 block Collington Ave. just below North Ave. and we saw this brother running up the alley with a cop close behind him and he (the policeman) was shooting.

"He could have shot other people standing around. He shot the brother. He could have shot us.

"Everything isn't in order because these men over here are really upset."

* * *

Another eyewitness said, "I have four witnesses to verify what happened. The boy that got shot didn't have a gun, no knife, nothing.

"He was shot from the back. The cop fired about three or four times."

Also on the scene were two teenagers who told the AFRO, "They didn't need to kill that boy. If they had run just a few feet more, they could have caught him. They could have stopped him with a bullet in the legs, but the policeman held his gun up and pointed it right at his head. It was awful. He stumbled and fell. You could tell he was gone. He was dead."

Drunk drivers are now listed by State MVA

The Motor Vehicle Administration has given Baltimore Alcohol Safety Action Project administrators a list of 8,363 Baltimore area motorists convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol since 1965, and whose driving privileges are revoked.

The list will enable law enforcement officers to more quickly identify and charge revoked drivers who continue to operate vehicles.

It contains the names, addresses and descriptions of Baltimore area motorists, including vehicle and tag numbers who, since 1965, have been convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol and whose driving privileges currently stand revoked.

* * *

The list will be updated monthly.

A state-wide list of more than 11,000 motorists whose privileges have been revoked for operating under the influence of alcohol has been developed and is being turned over to law enforcement agencies throughout the State.

An individual whose driving privileges are revoked for the first time can apply for reinstatement after the expiration of a 60-day waiting period, the MVA said, adding that subsequent revocations disqualify an individual from applying for reinstatement for a period of one year.

Driving on a revoked license requires mandatory second revocation of privileges.

"The purpose of this program," Elner J. Johnson, MVA administrator, said, "is not to impose additional punishment on individuals who may be alcoholics.

"Rather it is our desire to identify these people so that they can be channelled into rehabilitative programs.

"It is essential, however, that they not be permitted to operate motor vehicles unil after rehabilitation."

The Motor Vehicle Administrator said the MVA also has revised its Driver Handbook which will be issued in the near future to place increased emphasis on drinking driving.

Legal Aid to Start Consumer Law Center

The Legal Aid Bureau in cooperation with the Model Cities Agency will soon be opening its Consumer Law Center as the Board of Estimates on Wednesday approved a $103,259 contract between Legal Aid and Model Cities.

Although the decision is not final, reliable sources say School Board member Calman (Buzzy) Bettleman will get the Center's top $15,000 job.

Charles Dorsey, deputy director of Legal Aid, later told the AFRO the Consumer Center will be located in the Legal Aid office and will consist of two attorneys, two secretaries and ten law students.

* * *

"I anticipate," Mr. Dorsey stated, "the Center will have very close contacts with all areas of Model Cities communities."

The Consumer Law Center is expected to be talking soon to various groups about consumer law, which is concerned, Mr. Dorsey remarked, with everything from increases in gas and electric fees to insurance to everyday food and clothing shopping.

Mr. Dorsey added, "We will make every effort to get the information out to the communities."

* * *

According to the contract, the Center's chief attorney will receive $15,000 a year, a senior attorney $12,000, two secretaries at $5,500 each, 10 summer law clerks at $1,560 each for the three months and 10 school year law clerks at $1,140 each for the eight months.

Total personnel costs including $6,400 in fringe benefits are $70,400.

Of the $103,000 for the program for a year, $77,444 is being provided by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and $25,815 as the city's local share.
