Arts, crafts to be shown at City Fair

Exhibits and demonstrations of Arts and Crafts will be presented by the Baltimore City Bureau of Recreation at the Baltimore City Fair, Sept. 29, 30, and Oct. 1.

A new program sponsored by the Bureau will be represented in the Bureau booth which will be located in the Sportsarama area adjacent to the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company Building on Liberty Street.

The Bureau's Senior Citizens Recreation Aides who have been recently hired under the Model Cities grant and the Title III Program of Older Americans Act will demonstrate and exhibit beading, twining, millinery, mosiac tile work and other crafts that they are teaching in senior citizens clubs and centers throughout the city.

Participants from their classes will be at the booths to demonstrate the skills that they have been taught.

The two above mentioned grants were awarded to the Bureau of Recreation Senior Citizens Program as a project to evaluate the employment of older people as leaders and instructors.

giving the female ex-offender (first offender) a second chance. It is a pilot program designed to implement and test a program capable of rehabilitating federal women offenders. The success of the program depends upon volunteers dedicated to the prevention of recidivism among women ex-offenders.

Maryland is one of the 15 states involved in this pilot program negotiated with the Justice Department and contracted by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA).

Participating existing community resources include representatives from Community Action Agency, Model Cities, Federal Parole Officers, Logical Technical Services, Morgan State College, Manpower Resources, Vocational Rehabilitation, Prisoners' Aid, and, the Department of Mental Health.

According to Field Coordinator, Mrs. Bernita Fuller, the purpose of the conference is to have everyone involved become more knowledgeable of the services rendered by some of the existing agencies as well as to interest other members of the community to join in this effort.

Reservations for the luncheon may be obtained by calling Mrs. Edward (Ellen) Fisher, at 367-1745.

The Baltimore Area YMCA has two hands of new young professionals on staff as of this week.

At the Towson Branch as Youth Program Director, a first, is John W. Robinson. He baled from Detroit and is a graduate from the University of Wisconsin.

At the downtown branch serving as Director of Urban Action on the Metropolitan Staff is Samuel T. Richardson. He hails from Chicago, is a graduate of the George Williams College.

Cuff Note: Both of these young men are temporarily staying at the branches were they are assigned until they locate apartments and their families arrive. You can give them a soul welcome by calling at the branch where they're temporarily stationed.

Or the reunion scene: Some 150 members of the Watkins, Adams and Dorsey families gathered last weekend for an old fashioned family reunion.

On hand to greet guests was Mrs. Louise Dorsey the of Dorsey's Service Station (dest, (she's Jim Dorsey's, of Dorsey's Service Station, mother).

At the close of the affair, the family presented a check to Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church (they helped organize it many years ago.)

Charles Adams was responsible for bringing the relatives together and says it going to be annual gathering.

Bowie college has problems, highlights

BOWIE, Md. — Increased enrollment, insufficient housing, new academic program for freshmen, new major in Music Education, enlarged faculty and a new football team, are among the highlights this fall at Bowie State College.

When registration began Sept. 1, more than 2,500 students enrolled, 1,500 of them at the undergraduate level. This substantial increase in the college population creates a difficult problem for the housing department.

Anyone willing to share his home with one or more students, may call Director of Housing at 262-3350, ext. 225 or 335.

The college has become a member of the Consortium for Curricular Change, and in cooperation with the Institute for Service in Education, is initiating innovative teaching methods for 150 freshmen in the areas of English, Mathematics, Science and Social Sciences.

In the department of Music, a new program leading to a bachelor of science degree in Music Education has been approved by the board of trustees as announced by Dr. Eugene T. Simpson, chairman of the department of music.

A list of 22 new members of the faculty has been released by Dr. Samuel L. Myers, president of the college. This will bring the total instructional staff to 147, an increase of 15 over last year.

Another young man has been given remodability to lead a Bowie State College football team back to the gridiron after nearly 40 years. The new coach is Staley T. Jackson, 29, a graduate of Howard University and a former assistant football coach at Federal City College.
