Bill awaits Mayor's signature

Bill No. 138 passed unanimously by City Council in June is vital legislation to the citizens of Baltimore.

It has been awaiting the signature of Mayor Schaefer all summer.

The League of Women Voters of Baltimore City considers this bill important because it provides that all boards and commissions contained in the City Charter or created by ordinance have at least one public meeting a year; that all meetings be announced publicly and that minutes be taken.

The bill was formulated because the public has a right to know what the boards and commissions are doing and because the city government should be table to the public.
table to the public.

We have spoken to the news media and they hove welcomed the opportunity to publish dates and times of these meetings.

This means everyone interested will know about these important meetings and can attend.

We have asked Mayor Schaefer to give this legislation his serious consideration and sign it promptly so that the public may become more aware of the proceedings of city business.

HELPING FIGHT FALSE ALARMS — At Tuesday's Fire Board meeting, the Commissioners awarded Certificates of Appreciation to several citizens for aiding in the apprehension of people convicted of pulling a false alarm. Holding their plaques (in the left panel) are Frank Henderson and Rodney White, shown with Mrs. Earlene Henderson, and Rodney's family, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Stevenson and their son, Phillip, 4. Mrs. June Wise congratulate her daughter, Miss Debra Wise, on her false alarm fighting efforts. Bernard Burnette (right panel) is pictured receiving a $50 check from Mrs. Nathan Hendler, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Box 414 Association, for his making of a false alarm prevention poster. His mother looks on.

NEW LIEUTENANTS — Made Lieutenant at the Aug. 22 meeting of the Fire Board, Lt. Henry Folkes and Lt. James Tolson appeared at Tuesday's meeting and received the congratulations of the commissioners and Fire Chief Thomas Burke. (Photos by I. Henry Phillips)

MONIQUE HOLLAND, 6, is telling Officer Friendly, Bingham Hunt, her address so she may receive an "Officer Friendly Helper" badge. Photo taken at Lexington Terrace Elementary School No. 19, by I. Henry Phillips (Afro) Wednesday.

Officers make friends with school youngsters

"I hate cops," is frequently spoken by children who do not have the right outlook on policemen and their purpose in the community.

To overcome this undesirable outlook, the Officer Friendly Program was formed by the Police Department and the Public Schools in cooperation with the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

The effort began Nov. 9, 1970 under direction of Lt. Carolyn Robinson in the Community Relations Section of the Police Department.

The main purpose is to provide the primary grade child with the opportunity to develop an intelligent understanding of his rights, responsibilities and obligation as a junior citizen.

Another reason is to develop the relation, the image and basic rules and regulations that govern the expeirences and activities within the child's environment.

The program has three phases, an orientation period, classroom demonstrations and a follow-up period.

The orientation period is to help pupils and teachers acquainted with the officer, the uniform and the program itself.

Classroom demonstration is an instructional period of about 30 to 40 minutes wherein the officer and the pupils cooperate in a teaching and learning experience.

In the follow-up period, the officer returns with materials that the children can take home, police equipment and junior citizen awards such as an "Officer Friendly Helper" badge.

Four officers were selected by the Community Relations Section on the basis of their patience, personality and ability to work with children.

The four officers assigned from the start are, Officers Robert Deans, Bingham Hunt, Robert Franklin and John Harbin.

Under supervision of Sgt. Mercedes Rankin, the officers visit from 30 to 40 schools on three different occasions during the school year.

Before Officer Friendly visits the classroom the teacher usually prepares the student by telling them there will be a "surprise visitor" who is very important in the community.

She may make up riddles as a guessing game and when they finally guess she will introduce them to the policeman's function in the community.

When Officer Friendly enters the classroom the teacher asks, "Do you know who this is, class?"

Officer Friendly deals mainly with the kindergartners and the first graders, so most of the time children are not acquainted with him.

The officer explains who he is to the class and what he does to help the boys and girls and what is right and wrong.

He then returns to carry out little skits to prove the right and wrong points he had spoken about.

At the end of his program he will review with the children and appoint them as one of Officer Friendly's Helpers.

You don't have to be a child to participate in this program because it takes the cooperation of everyone in the community.
