Music Critics, Piano Teachers Group meet

By ADAH K. JENKINS

More than 70 music critics from the U.S. and Canada assembled in Wash., D.C. for the annual meeting of the Music Critic's Association, in cooperation with the John F. Kennedy Center of Performing Arts Music Festival; "The Old and the New".

In the Contiental Room of the Watergate Hotel, where the Association made its headquarters, Irving Lowens, presilent held the opening session.

There was an illuminating report on the JFK Center by its executive director, Martin Feinstein.

This was of special interest to the critics since their 1971 convention was held in conjunction with the inauguration of the Kennedy Center.

With the Concert Hall booked for 52 weeks, the Opera House for 49 and the Eisenhower Theatre for 47 weeks, a total of over 16 million people have attended performances at the Kennedy Center, while over two million more have visited as sightseers.

• • •

For its second season there was a two-week music festival "The Old and the New", featuring 12 days concerts, representing contemporary and Baroque Italian music.

Music critics were asked to list the most significant work of the last 25 years, which composers they considered most influential, those most undeservedly neglected and those they would predict would be performed half a century from now.

• • •

Among the oncerts by the American Brass Quintelle played early in the evening in the grand foyer, (which was crowded) was a quintet by the black contemporary composer, Ulysses Kay.

Julius Rudd music director of the Center, envisioned future plans with the Center as a showcase for the best work in our nation in theatre, opera, concert and ballet.

• • •

The commissioning of new works and the recognition of new young talent can make an important impact on American cultural life and activity.

The critics were taken on a guided tour of the Kennedy Center, parts of which were not completed last year.

Roger L. Stevens, chairman and members of the Board of Trustees of the Center, was host at a reception in honor of the visiting critics.

The opening meeting of the 1972-73 season of the Piano Teachers' Activity Group was held last Sunday at the home of the president, Mrs. Florence Carter, who was also dinner hostess.

• • •

A detailed discussion covered the six monthly concerts and two performance examinations which comprise the annual plan.

An informal holiday party for parents, pupils and instructors is listed for December.

Goals of interpretation and musicianship were clearly outlined.

Each member is to present at least two statements at each concert.

• • •

Mrs. Julia Calloway and Mrs. Nellie Parker were accepted as associate members of the Piano Teachers Activity Group, which was founded over 10 years ago by the late Mrs Lassiyer.

• • •

The membership roster includes Mesdames Lantha Clark, Caretr Norman Robinson, Mildred Bryant, Gladys Davis, Katrine Ehlem, your reviewer and Miss Bernadine Howard.

• • •

Margaret Lindsay, soprano, alumnus of Music Educations Morgan State College, and Earl Grandison, baritone, 1972 graduate of Peabody, were soloists for the wedding of Linda Grant and John Guest at Madison Ave. Presoyterian Church.

At the console was William Glascoe.

CALENDAR: Sun., Sept. 24 at 5 p.m. in Sharp St. Memorial United Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts.

Pierson's have 50th anniversary

Surrounded by family and friends Bishop and Mrs. Kato Pierson (Janie), celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 5.

The Pierson's were married in Shreveport, La. and then moved to South Carolina, where the Rev. Pierson pastored for many years before coming to Baltimore in 1944.

The Rev. Pierson started what is now the Bibleway Church, 529 Gold St., when he came to this city.

Their daughter, Mrs. Helen Morgan, is the wife of Elder Richard Morgan They have two children Michael, 17, and Sandra 12.

Bishop Pierson has often told his members, "The success of a long and happy marriage is to be sweet and king to one another."

Y celebrating 76 years in Baltimore

The Madison Avenue Young Women's Christian Association will celebrate the 76th year of its existence in Baltimore at a reception and evening program on Sept. 22 at 6:30 p.m. at the Madison Avenue Center.

The public is invited. There is no charge.

Mrs. Alice B. Arrington executive director of the YWCA center at 1912 Madison Ave. from 1938 to 1963 will be the guest speaker. Her subject is "Women Empowered For Action."

In 1943, while Mrs. Arrington was executive director, $75,000 was raised in a few weeks by the community surrounding the present Madison Avenue Center. The money was used to buy and renovate the YWCA building at 1912 Madison Ave.

Mrs. Arrington left the Baltimore YWCA to become executive director of the Upper Manhattan YWCA Center in New York City, where she worked from 1953 to 1968. She still resides in New York City.

Mrs. Abdella Campbell treasurer of the national board of the YWCA and principal of Douglass High School, will preside.

Invocation will be given by the Rev. William Peters pastor of Grace United Presbyterian Church. Mrs Grace B. Hunt, executive director of the YWCA of the Greater Baltimore Area, will introduce the speaker.

Benediction will be asked by the Rev. Wilson Dobson, pastor of the Union Baptist Church.

A formal reception will begin at 6:30 p.m. Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be served. The program begins at 8 p.m.

CCB holds open forum for new voters to hear elections debates

By DR. SIDNEY KOBRE

The U.S. presidential symposium to acquaint young voters with the facts about the Republican and Democratic candidates was held at the Community College of Baltimore on Tuesday.

Because of the flow of questions afterward, it would appear that this particular CCB student audience favored the McGovern candidacy.

John Young, president of the Student Government Association, who presided, kept the debate moving along.

Arrangements for the event were made by the SGA. President Harry Bard and his administrative assistant, Mrs. Barbara Faw, to provide background for the young voters and give them an opportunity to express themselves, as part of their political education.

• • •

Representing the Democratic Party, Sen. Clarence Mitchell, of the Maryland Legislature, in his opening remarks, declared that Sen. McGovern "was supported by people from all sections of the country and from all walks of life."

• • •

"The country cannot go ahead until we deal with problems which affect the common people," the speaker asserted. "Nixon favors the multi-billion dollar corporations rather than the workers and the poor of the country. He opposed, for instance, federal assistance to low-cost housing."

Mr. Mitchell said that the Nixon administration used the wrong approach to stop the mounting inflation of prices.

• • •

Speaking also for Sen. McGovern, Mr. George Pitts, head of the CCB Veterans' Association, pointed out that the senator favored legislation which would help veterans. "McGovern understands the problems of the G.I.'s because he was a pilot bombardier, and, upon his return to the United States, from overseas duty, attended college under the G.I. bill. He even acquired a doctorate (Ph. D.) degree. McGovern believes that the veterans should get their fair share."

Mr. Verdell Adair, representing the Republican Party, and a candidate himself for congress in the 7th congressional district, praised the college for arranging the forum to acquaint young people with the qualifications of the candidates.

He believed that Blacks had good reason to support the Nixon-Agnew ticket, although he admitted that he did not agree with the president on all issues.

Regarding the Vietnam situation Mr. Adair pointed out that when Mr. Nixon took office more than 530,000 American troops were stationed in Vietnam, but now they have been reduced to 40,000.

15 of 577 Freshmen at Hopkins are black

The freshman class in the Arts and Sciences Division of Johns Hopkins University, on the Homewood campus since the Labor Day Weekend, has 557 students of whom 15 are black.

This is the largest class since 1946 when returning G.I.'s increased the class size to 570.

Included in the entering class are 130 women, seven of whom are black, an increase of 33 over last year's number.

• • •

These freshmen, plus 53 incoming upperclass transfer women, bring the total enrollment of undergraduate women to 384 in the University's third year of co-education.

John R. Riina, director of admissions, described the Class of '76 as "an academically select group."

He noted that of those freshmen ranked according to secondary school performance, 64 per cent ranked in the top 10 per cent of their school classes, and 82 per cent ranked in the top 20 per cent.

The entering class of 557 was selected from 2,370 applicants.

In addition, 84 new transfer students are enrolling, to bring the total enrollment of new undergraduates to 641, compared with 609 in September, 1971.

• • •

The freshman class represents 36 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and six foreign countries.

Students from Maryland number 162, including 101 from the Baltimore metropolitan area.

Law enforcement can be studied now at CCB

Enrollment in the Law-Enforcement, Security and Correctional Program of the Community College of Baltimore is expected to reach a new high this year.

"Students will include not only young people taking the introductory and advanced courses, but also members of local police and security forces, such as those in public schools and other institutions," said Prof. Hayes Larkins, chairman of the CCB program.

• • •

Fifty-six persons representing both men and women and all the city's ethnic groups have registered for the introductory course, dealing with law-enforcement and corrections.

In addition, more than 500 law-enforcement and correctional officers attend CCB part-time.

• • •

One of the graduates, Lt. Col. Frank Serra, was made Chief of Patrol in the Baltimore City Police Department recently.

The courses are arranged so that police may attend during the morning, afternoon or evening.

The same courses are given at various times, hence police whose shifts are switched may attend classes and not lose any time or credit.

Officers work toward the Associate in Arts degree or certificates.

In addition, young people are attracted to law-enforcement and correctional work.

They see crime as an important social problem today, and therefore, would like to lend their hands in remedying the situation, either by working with juvenile offenders and with probation and parole agencies, or by serving in some capacities in correctional institutions.

CANDY STRIPPERS — Just capped and receiving their pins in recognition of this summer's training and services as candy stripers at the North Charles General Hospital are, left to right, Diana Hartman and Louise Turner. Making the presentations is Director of Nursing Mrs. Ruth E. Martin. Louise and Diana were two of 18 young people to receive these honors. They will continue working at NCGH as junior volunteers assisting patients and the nursing staff throughout the year.

New ad stresses self-interest theme

NEW YORK — "Who the hell lent a bunch of black boys $600,000 to start a clinic in New York?", challenges the ad headline. "Some very selfish people," answers the subhead.

Self-interest. That's the theme of a new advertising campaign for the Development Council prepared by Art Gelb Advertising, Inc. It's bound to cause comment among business, community, and government leaders. "And, hopefully, the desire to participate," says Samuel S. Beard, president of The Development Council.

"Charity is not the answer to economic problems in minority communities," explained Beard. "It demeans both sides. So we've come up with a more attractive approach: Public-private partnerships on a strictly business basis. With something in it for everyone involved."

The council can point to some dramatic success stories in its relatively short existence. As the first ad in the series goes on to explain, the non-profit council aided 30 doctors and dentists in raising the $600,000 needed for a health center in South Jamaica, Queens.

The investors included Metropolitan Life, Bankers Trust, and the Small business Administration. Their investment created the kind of ripple effect in the community that the council foresees on a national basis.

The clinic opened up 60 new jobs, and added new local spending power.

"The manufacturers of hospital equipment and pharmaceuticals gained a new customer. And the community is now a happier, healthier place to live.

In another instance, business, labor, and government agencies transferred over $250 million into minority banks as part of the President's Minority Bank Deposit Program. In 1970, the president of the council was asked to administer this program jointly with the National Bankers Association, the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, and the National Advisory Council.

Their efforts brought minority banks the largest infusion of economic power in U.S. history. And these funds made possible 25,000 new loans in low income communities.

• • •

"Our slogan is: 'Self-Interest Pays Off For Everyone,'" says Charles A. Sterling, director of the program. "And we're proving it every day. Right now, the council is working on $1 billion worth of local self-interest projects all over the country. And we're just scratching the surface."

The council estimates that a $40 billion-a-year market exists in low income areas, in home building, manpower training, health and social services, education, business development. But business, labor and government must be willing to take advantage of the potential.

The development council's series of ads is aimed at making them aware of the opportunities. The ad appeared in the New York Times recently and will run in minority publications across the country. In addition, ad reprints will be mailed to 3000 key executives in business, communities, labor, and government. A brochure explaining The Development Council's objectives and achievements will be offered in each ad.

Baltimore's NAACP Thanks Churches

This is the first in a series of articles to publicly thank those churches and other groups in Baltimore for their continuing moral, financial, and spiritual support of our Local N.A.A.C.P. program.

Since the Black Church holds a unique place in our community, it seems natural to begin these series with our churches.

Today we wish to give recognition to those churches that are supporters of our "Life Membership" endeavors.

Some have completed one or more life memberships while others are subscribing members and are making regular payments on their life memberships.

• • •

The outstanding church in the fully paid Life Membership category is Wayland Baptist with five fully paid as follows: two for the Church-one for the past Pastor, Rev. W. W. Payne, one for NAACP church Captain, Mrs. Susie Murphy-and, one for the Rosebud Charity Club of Wayland.

Next is Enon Baptist with one fully paid for the Church, plus four others by the Pastor Dr. A. J. Payne for himself and Mrs. Payne and two youth members of the Payne family, Jerilynn and Jerryl Payne.

• • •

Unity United Methodist is third with three fully paid memberships, one for the church; one for the late pastor, Dr. Levi B. Miller and one for the Church Sunday School.

Those churches with two fully paid Life Memberships are: Douglas Memorial Community, one for the church and one "In Memoriam" for Dr. John T. Colbert.

• • •

Union Baptist one and one "In Memoriam" for Dr. Harvey Johnson; and, Union Temple Baptist with one and one for the pastor, Rev. C. H. Churn.

The Churches that have finished paying for their Life Memberships are:

Ames Memorial U.M., Bethel A. M. E. Central Baptist, Christian Memorial, Church of the Holy Trinity, P.E., Concord Baptist, Cornerstone Baptist, Emmanuel Christian Community, and Faith Baptist,

First Baptist, Fountain Baptist, Friendship Baptist, Israel Baptist, Leadenhall Baptist, and Macedonia Baptist.

Madison Avenue U.P., Memorial Baptist, Metropolitan U.M., Morning Star Baptist, Mt. Pleasant Baptist, New Friendship Baptist, New Shiloh Baptist and Providence Baptist.

St. James P.E., St. Peter Claver R.C., Sharp St. Memorial U.M., Trinity Baptist, Trinity U.P, Union Memorial U.M., and Zion Baptist.

Black history group transferred to Morgan

The Maryland Commission on Negro History and Culture, established by action of the Maryland General Assembly and placed under the Office of the Governors of Maryland has been transferred to Morgan State campus.

The purpose of the Commission is "to identify, catalogue, collect, and preserve historical materials related to Negro life and culture in the State of Maryland.

The "business of the Commission is the collection, research and preservation of these materials for posterity to insure that they pass into the public domain so that future generations of scholars and students of history can be exposed to the rich heritage of Negro history and culture.

All materials collected will become part of a permanent Archive-Repository to be housed in the new Soper Library now under construction on the Morgan State kkcampus.

The language of the Executive Order bringing about the Commission's transfer states:

"The Commission on Negro History and Culture as established by Chapter 6-72 of the Acts of 1971, is hereby re-assigned from the Maryland Department of Economics and Community Development to Morgan State College.

The said Commission shall work with the President and staff of Morgan State College and shall, in addition to its other duties and functions, report to the President of Morgan State College."

• • •

After tropical storm Agnes, the Veterans Administration put into effect disaster relief measures to assist veterans whose homes were damaged or destroyed.

• • •

More veterans and servicemen trained under the current GI Bill in April than any month in its six year history, according to the Veterans Administration.

Truck drivers, beware of Alaskan offers

A warning has been issued to truck drivers, heavy equipment operators and construction engineers, to be wary of persons offering them high paying jobs on the trans Alaska pipeline.

It is reported that these individuals offer, in some cases for a placement fee, a guaranteed offer of a job on the Alyeska Pipeline project and promised reimbursement for travel to Alaska upon reporting to the pipeline office.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Company has said that no construction work is being done by the trans Alaska pipeline nor would any work be done this year, and the company has no agents authorized to hire or recruit construction workers.
