ton County, court clerks, and abolishing Orphans Court judges in Harford County.

But that's not all — there's more piling up in some voting booths.

For example, there are 13 local questions on Baltimore City ballots, 14 in Anne Arundel, Howard has one for elected school boards, and Harford County even has 30 candidates running for council in its first charter primary.

Montgomery County has liquor questions in two of its districts, plus a charter amendment.

A school board election (always hot) spices Montgomery's ballot, while Washington County has the only judicial contest tied to Governor Mandel's appointment powers over local choice.

Harford, Cecil, Dorchester and St. Mary's have charter questions on their ballots as a result of the near-disenfranchisement by reapportionment.

Those counties are predicting big turnouts, but the voters may be so bored by the rest of the ballot that they'll vote a straight party ticket and make a random swipe at the levers to vote all yes or all no on the questions.

That kind of reaction could put some dark horses in office and knock off some experienced and capable congressional candidates.

And elections administrator Willard Morris points out that if a boycott defeats the reapportionment question, it could mean a far more complicated ballot in 1974.

That's another story, too. Briefly, it means that Senate and House districts that now overlap would then overlap into congressional districts and councilmanic districts in some counties meaning, for example, that Prince Georges County would have 22 versions of ballots instead of the current three, and Baltimore City more than 100.

If that's what the voters want, apathy is one way to get it. But a great many important Maryland laws are, in fact, put directly to the voters, and it would be a shame to see our State government shaped by default.

Speaking of other issues, legislators are reacting strongly to Governor Mandel's conditions for his support of the new education aid formula.

That proposal would pump into local schools $100 million more in State money over the next five years at the rate of $21 million more a year. It would mean $5.5 million more the first year for Baltimore City for a total of $55.3 Georges County Volunteer

But in return, Mandel wants the legislature to promise not to override his vetoed bills, particularly those with "long fuse" funding programs, like one having the State take over the counties' growing costs of taking care of poor hospital patients.

Mandel also wants to avoid a cigarette tax increase, proposed by some Task Force members to pay for the school aid plan. And he wants a promise that the counties won't go after the State's traditional taxing sources, like the sales tax.

Montgomery County Del. Laurie Maurer, author of the plan, reacted angrily to Mandel's suggestion of a ceiling on local school spending or even a penalty for those subdivisions that spent too much local money. She called this idea "a demand that our citizens pay a ransom to the State in order to use the right they have had to improve education for their children."

A HOT ISSUE

WOMEN SHOULD BE REFORMED if they want to, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein told the Prince Georges County Volunteer Fire Companies and Ladies' Auxiliaries at their 50th anniversary. The ladies, he said, "should no longer be back-seat drivers content only to serve at social functions and in fund-raising capacities." Now they can be back-seat drivers on a hook and ladder . . .

Bomb scare evacuation at Bowie State

Some 150 girl residents in Tubman Hall at Bowie State College were evacuated at 4 a.m. Thursday after the college received a phone tip that a bomb was planted there.

Dr. Samuel L. Myers, president, confirmed the report for the AFRO today (Friday). He said that coeds understandably were "quite upset" about being forced out in the middle of the night.

He explained that security officers checked the dorm thoroughly and found nothing. Today (Friday) at noon, he reported things were normal at the State College which has 2,700 students, 1,800 of them full-time.

black Americans.

Soul food which originated in the south but is popular among blacks throughout the country has an extremely high sodium content, heavy with spices, sauces and smoked meat.

"Surveys have found the incidence of hypertension among black Americans to be two to three times that of the general population," says the doctor. "Many persons feel that the emotional and psychological stress under which blacks live in this country is responsible and this may be part of it.

However, since the genetic factor is dominant in the development of hypertension, it might possibly be a combination of a hereditary predisposition and diet excessively high in salt."

As a preventative measure, Dr. Saunders strongly recommends that anyone with a family history of hypertension maintain a low sodium diet, emphasizing the particular need of salt control for blacks.

The American Heart Association believes that moderate salt restriction should be practiced universally to help promote good health and decrease the staggeringly high illness and death rates from hypertension.

HOLLIS — In loving memory of our dear daughter, and sister, GWENDOLYN O., who passed away September 28, 1971:

LEACH — In loving memory of my dear husband, Deacon GEORGE LEACH, who died September 28, 1971:
When the evening shads are falling,
And I am sitting all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing
If you only could come home.
Often and often my thoughts do wander
To your grave so far away
Where I laid you, dearest husband,
One year ago today.
His Devoted WIFE and SISTERS

MATTHEWS — To the memory of my dear mother who passed away September 30, 1971:
God made man of beautiful things;
Sunset and roses, and trees,
Birds, and starlight and loyal friends.
And, after he made all these,
He gave to the earth a gift more rare,
More loving and more true,
Of all God's gifts, the one most rare—
A mother as dear as you.

ROCK — In loving memory of my dear husband and my father, XENOPHON, who passed away October 1, 1967:
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone.

Our love for him will still keep green, and never fade away.
Loving Wife, MARTHA L. and Daughter, HARDENIA ROCK

REDMOND JR. — In loving memory of our loved one, ALEXANDER, who passed away September 29, 1971:
We are thinking of you, this day
Thinking of the past
Picturing you in our memory,
Just as we saw you last.
How could our heart forget you
When everything we do,
Is something that reminds us of hours spent with you.
Our thoughts and love are with you.
Although we are apart,
We will always have you close to us,
Because you are our heart.
