Civil war rages in NBA over Erving's services

Civil war broke out in the National Basketball Association early this week as the tug-of-war over Julius Erving continued to rage.

The already snarled case took two significantly warlike turns when NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy fined the Atlanta Hawks $25,000 and the Hawks responded with an anti-trust suit.

The suit asks for an injunction against Kennedy and the NBA so that Erving may remain with the Hawks. A preliminary hearing on the injunction will be heard in Atlanta Friday morning by U.S. District Judge Richard Freeman.

Erving is the former University of Massachusetts Basketball Star who played last season with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, then signed a $1 million contract with the Hawks a couple of days before the Milwaukee Bucks made him their first-round choice in the annual NBA draft.

Erving has a suit pending in New York aimed at getting him out of the two years remaining on his Squires contract. The Squires are trying to keep him because he averaged 29 points and 19 rebounds as an ABA rookie.

Kennedy had instructed the Hawks and Bucks to get together and work out an agreement regarding Erving. But when the Hawks refused to meet the Bucks asking price for compensation, the matter went before the NBA Board of Governors which awarded Erving to the Bucks.

The Hawks, refusing to accept the board's ruling kept Erving and used him Saturday and Sunday in games with the Kentucky Colonels.

Kennedy's fine against the Hawks for using Erving was the largest the commissioner, who was given sweeping powers by the NBA board last year, has imposed without league approval. The league's biggest fine was $20,000 against Seattle in the Spencer Haywood case.

"I have sent the following telegram to William Putnam, president of the Atlanta Club," Kennedy said in New York.

"For playing Julius Erving in two games over the past weekend in violation of my directives of Sept. 21-22, Atlanta is hereby fined $25,000. Please be advised that those directives are still in full force and effect."

Putnam was not available for comment but Hawks general manager Richie Guerin said, "Our anti-trust suit speaks for itself and I don't think we should comment on the case beyond noting that we feel we are legally and morally right in keeping Julius Erving."

Elder to play sickle cell golf benefit

BUTLER, Pa., — A two-day golf tournament, including a celebrity event in which participants from industry, television and sports will attempt to defeat professional golfer Lee Elder, has been scheduled Oct. 14-15 at Cosmo II Golf Club near here.

The unusual tournament will be co-sponsored by Gulf Oil Corporation and Channel 11 (WIIC-TV) with cooperation from a number of community groups including the Black Athletes Foundation, the Dandy Duffers Golf Club of Pittsburgh, Inc. and the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association.

* * *

The event will have a pro purse of $3000 and $1000 in merchandise and trophies for amateurs. Proceeds will benefit research on sickle cell anemia.

The celebrity event, which will be on Oct. 14, will pit a number of amateurs against pro-golfer Lee Elder. They'll use their handicaps to try to defeat the popular pro who has won the Nigerian Open and finished second in two recent PGA events.

A number of prominent sports figures have already signed to vie with Elder and attend a pre-tourney party, Oct. 13, at Cosmo II where nationally known musicians and vocalists will entertain.

Palmer Bird MVP

Jim Palmer was the unanimous winner of the 1972 Maryland Sportsboosters' "Most Valuable Oriole" award by vote of baseball writers and announcers who cover the ball club.

Palmer was listed first on all seven ballots cast. Under a 5-3-1 point system for 1st, 2nd and 3rd choices, rookie infielder Bobby Grich (14 points) was runner up and Brooks Robinson finished third (13 points).

Cage applicants should apply on Oct. 11

Attention, all teens and adults interested in winter basketball, the first organizational meeting will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 11 at the Montebello Elementary School, 32nd St. and Harford Rd., beginning promptly at 7 p.m.

Applications may be secured from the Bureau of Recreation, 1129 N. Calvert St.

For further information call or write the Bureau of Recreation and contact J. P. Kirby, Commissioner.

Jenkins misses turn; only twice in 6 years

MONTREAL (UPI)
Chicago Cubs righthander Ferguson Jenkins has been shelved for the year with a sore right shoulder.

Jenkins, 20-12 this season, hurt his shoulder earlier this month and said after warming up Tuesday night that, "the pain was too great and I won't be able to pitch anymore this year."

Jenkins has won 20 or more for six straight years. This is only the second time in six years that he has missed his scheduled turn.
