Rewiring dilapidated Fulton Ave. building

Last year the building-industry students of Carver Vocational Technical High School, in an effort to better the community and to enhance their on-the-job work skills, undertook the renovation of a dilapidated and all but gutted row house at 1409 Fulton Ave.

So successful has been the work on the project — within weeks it should be ready for occupancy — that the Housing Authority, working through Henry Johnson, Carver's principal, consented to fund similar rehabilitation projects in the future, all designed to provide quarters for families who might otherwise find them difficult to obtain.

Work on these future projects will all be done by Carver students, under the supervision of their instructors, Sumner Clark, George Jones and Anthony Watson.

• • •

The House on Fulton Avenue," as it has come to be called, is reaching its final stages of completion.

Now that the carpentry and masonry work are grinding to a halt, the school's student-electricians, under the tutelage of Mr. Jones, electrical instructor at Carver, can be found in the Housing Authority funded project busily installing the necessary circuit breakers, plus wiring needed to render the dwelling a safe, well-lighted place

Mr. Jones, who says his phase of the work is moving according to schedule, emphasizes that though the labor is done by students, the electrical work must agree with the standards established by the city's rigid building codes, which include the need for ample outlets, capable of handling the demanding "pull" of such modern conveniences as air conditioners and energy-consuming washers.

STUDENT ELECTRICIANS — Work on wiring at Fulton Ave. house in Carver project.

Realizing this, the student-electricians take their work very seriously, and look upon the enterprise as an opportunity not only to provide housing where needed, but as a viable learning experience, comparable in nearly every aspect to an actual job.

• • •

Thus far, the house has been completely re-wired, since most of the old wire was either too frayed to meet safety standards, or inadequate for modern electrical demands.

Preparing the structure has proven to be a large undertaking, requiring not only the work of electrical students and their instructor, but countless other school personnel, and departments, who have contributed both their time and labor to see the project to its fruition.

• • •

Started last year on an experimental basis, and originally intended to be terminated when work on the Fulton House is completed, the project is now viewed as merely a springboard for future projects of the same nature, all of which, it is believed, will provide even more "on-the-job" training for students in Carver's Electrical Department.

• • •

Students who have worked on the project are: Brenden Franks, Wesley Harden, Steven Johnson, Paul Smith, Charles Thompson, Michael Anderson and Percell McNeill.

To provide transportation of school personnel to and from the work site, as well as the transportation of tools and material, Carver recently acquired a minivan.

The current year model, the van, the only one of its type in the city allocated to a school, is expected to make work on future school projects considerably easier, eliminating the need for instructors to use their cars, as they graciously did in the past.

• • •

The van, Chrysler-made, is capable of seating nine comfortably—and is expected to be able to house a similar number of tool chests, plus the multitudes of sundry items carpenters, electricians, etc., find necessary to complete a job.

WORKING OUTDOORS — Carver students install wiring on building's exterior.

Hire the handicapped

Chester Troy, Chairman of the Governor's Committee to Promote Employment of the Handicapped, asked all employers, public and private to give full and equal consideration to handicapped men and women in filling jobs.

He stated that he asked this for the sake of the handicapped and as a sound business principle. "Experience," he said, "has taught many employers that handicapped workers, properly placed in jobs they can perform, are assets to a firm. Their performance is good; their attendance is above average, their safety record is enviable."

Mr. Troy also stated that it is good personnel policy to retain workers who were injured on the job.

Mr. Troy asks, particularly, that employers in Baltimore give highest priority to employment of disabled veterans. Many of these former servicemen have acquired valuable skills in military service, as well as rehabilitation and further job training to make them fully job-ready. "They have served their country well as members of the armed forces," he stated.

Bays to conduct 3 soccer clinics

The Baltimore Bays in conjunction with the Baltimore City Bureau of Recreation will conduct three soccer clinics beginning tomorrow (Saturday).

Joey Speca, coach of the Bays along with Windsor Bellano, Karl Minor, Hank Kazmierski and Roy Wilher will be instructors.

The first clinic will be held at the North Harford Playfield located at 6800 Hamlet Avenue on Saturday at 11 a.m.

Clinic No. 2 will be held at Herring Run Recreation Center on October 14, located at 5001 Sinclair Lane.

Local Vulcan Blazers members elected to national posts

The International Association of Black Professional Fire Fighters held its 5-day convention in St. Louis, Mo. with delegates from cities of every section of the country.

President David Floyd stated that "Black Fire Fighters" are bound to their communities and that they will fight discrimination in any form by working with and through citizen organizations.

Congressman William I. Clay spoke on the racial makeup of the Fire Service and urged the Black Professional Fire Fighters to continue their fight to get more "Black Brothers" in their various Fire Departments.

The Vulcan Blazers of Baltimore submitted a resolution that was adopted by the convention stating "all affiliates of The International Association of Black Professional Fire Fighters file complaints with their local EEOC office against their various municipalities for the discriminatory hiring and promotional practices in their various Fire Departments."

The following international offices were filled by members of The Vulcan Blazers of Baltimore:

Vice President, Charles R. Thomas; Financial Secretary, John O. Fryer; Regional Vice President, Calvin Brown.

African art being shown at college

WESTMINSTER — African artifacts, many collected by Westminster residents, are on exhibit in Gallery One, Fine Arts Building, Western Maryland College.

Under the sponsorship of the sociology department at the college, the exhibit is a combination of materials from the collections of Dr. and Mrs. L. Earl Griswold, the Reverend Kenneth S. Jones, Miss Sally Reinecke, and Francis Thomas.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. On Monday, Oct. 9, the collectors will be in the gallery from 7-9 p.m. to discuss the exhibit with the public. The exhibition will remain open until Oct. 13.

Dr. Griswold says that most of the artifacts are from northern Nigeria, in the area of the Hausa people, and from the central Congo, now the Republic of Zaire, where the Batetela tribe lives.

In the exhibition are ivory carvings, African raffia work in mats, dolls, and baskets; Congolese masks and weapons, and a number of pieces of African cloth.

Amin firms on Asians departing

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—President Idi Amin said Wednesday he had "no intention whatsoever" of extending his Nov. 8 deadline for the expulsion from

Amin denied he ever said he would change the deadline he would change the deadline.

The Zaire News Agency was reported from Kinshasa earlier as saying Amin mentioned a deadline extension to visiting Zaire President Mobutu Sese-Seko.

But Amin said Wednesday he merely told Mobutu he cabled United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to explain, among other things, that the Asians' safety while in Uganda was assured.

In giving the assurance, Amin said he would be pleased if Waldheim would use his good offices to persuade Britain, India, Pakistan and Bangladesh to speed up the airlift of Asians out of Uganda.

Amin also said he would cancel a meeting with Mobutu and Rwanda President Gregoire Kayibanda set for Oct. 27 because of the situation now prevailing in Uganda."

He said there was a number of "an invasion of Uganda by Britain, India, Tanzania, Rwanda, Zambia and two other countries."

A group of Ugandan exiles based in Tanzania crossed the southern border last month but the invasion ended in a bloody fighting.

In Mogadishu, Somalia, Uganda and Tanzania opened talks, meanwhile, to try to end the conflict which began with September's unsuccessful invasion.

Somali President Mohamed said Barre told both sides before the talks began that the conflict between "two sister African states" was a "colonialist conspiracy" aimed at weakening African unity.
