Matron and two men found guilty of drugs

A matron and two men were sentenced to a total of eight years in prison when they appeared in Criminal Court on Wednesday before Judge Shirley Jones. The three were charged with possession of heroin.

Arrested, found guilty of narcotics violations and sentenced were Mrs. Deborah Dyson, 20, two years; John Bailey, 22, 1800 block Woodyear St. three years; Edward Bailey, 36, 500 block Mt. Holly St., three years.

Joseph Sherbin, assistant state's attorney, told the court Officer Bernard Harper went to the 600 block W. Mulberry St. on June 30, with an arrest warrant for Sherman Brown.

Officer Harper then went to the third floor and knocked on the door of the apartment. Officer Woignust was standing in the rear of the house. He observed bags being thrown from the third floor back window.

Edward Bailey and another man jumped from the window, Mr. Sherbin told the court.

Mr. Sherbin testified. Officer Harper then forced the door open and entered the apartment. John Bailey was hanging out the third

Uncle Sam wants Liddie to pay $1,050,061 taxes

Uncle Sam wants John E. (Liddie) Jones to pay the Internal Revenue Service $1,050,061.29.

According to an IRS spokesman in Baltimore, this figure represents what the IRS feels Liddie owes in income tax just for the 6½ month period from Jan 1, 1972 to July 12, 1972.

The IRS has filed what is called a lien against Mr. Jones in the Circuit Courts of Carroll, Howard and Baltimore counties and Baltimore City.

This means the government is in position to claim any money Liddie spends until the sum reaches that $1 million figure.

The spokesman refused to say if the IRS will soon charge Mr. Jones with tax evasion or if Liddie has partially paid some of the money.

Meanwhile, Liddie told the AFRO he does not plan any court action to lift the IRS lien and simply said, "It doesn't bother me. I don't have any money in the bank they can take."

He pointed out July 12 (the end of the assessment period) was the day he was arrested in Baltimore County and charged with being a major character in the city drug world.

This was also the day, Liddie claimed, city narcotics detectives told a county Circuit Court judge Mr. Jones makes $3 million a year from his alleged illicit drug business and the judge then set Liddie's bail at $700,000.

Mr. Jones said he believes it was these same detectives going to the IRS in the Federal Building and repeating their claim of his income that led IRS to set that income tax sum.

3 sought in Red Rooster holdup

Holdup squad reports it is still searching for three bandits who made off with a total of over $2,000 in a holdup of the Red Rooster in the 1800 block McKean Ave. Nov. 30.

Police records show Earl Banks, Morgan State College football coach, was one of the 13 customers in the tavern during the holdup. Police state he lost $300 to the armed men.

According to police shortly before 11 p.m. the three men entered the bar and brandishing pistols made everyone lie on the floor of the bar and then collected a total of $2,093 and a ring valued at $800.

Police said the bandits collected everyone's wallets and money and put them in a brown shopping bag and fled north on McKean Ave.

All the suspects are in their mid-twenties, two are reported to be about 6 feet tall each and the third is about 5 ft. 10 ins.

No one was hurt in the incident, police said.

Mayor wants more jobs cut this year

By SCOTT PONEMONE

Within a week Baltimore will receive $23 million, its first complement of revenue sharing funds, but this money, Mayor Schaefer predicted Wednesday, will not allow the city to cut property taxes but only to hold the line.

In fact, the Mayor announced he is seriously thinking about making more cutbacks in city jobs over the next year and not restoring any of the 1,000 jobs chopped off the city payroll since July 1.

He stated $10.5 million of the $23 million is definitely earmarked to replace the technical cuts made by City Council last June. These cut were made in the departments that could benefit from revenue sharing: police, fire, health, libraries, jail, and recreation.

At the time, the Mayor did not say where he would spend the remaining $13 million although he did point out his interest in spending $¼ million to clean up abandoned property and vacant houses and said "I'll think about" funds to extend library hours.

As to School Superintendent Dr. Roland Patterson's just proposed $237 million school budget (a $36 million hike from the present budget), Mayor Schaefer exclaimed, "I can't tolerate it. It would use up all the revenue sharing

Shoplifting is serious holiday problem

By MAJOR JAMES WATKINS

"No ifs, ands or buts, shoplifting is stealing . . . "No ifs, ands or buts, shoplifting is stealing," is the message merchants, educators, police and community leaders stress in a community-wide campaign to combat the serious, growing problem.

Sponsored by STEM (Shoplifters Take Everybody's Money) an organization of retailers, government and civic leaders (formed in 1971), the major thrust of the campaign will be aimed at teenagers and so-called "amateur shoplifters," since statistics show that sixty-five per cent of the annual shoplifting losses in the Baltimore area occur among these groups.

To reach these groups, has developed four major audio homes for use in print media, STEM radio and television Thet hemes are: "You'll get caught!" What happens When You Do Get Caught;" "Resisting Peer Pressure" and "Shoplifting Doesn't Make Sense."

Luke Durant gets outstanding award

Luke Durant Jr., a 24-year-old black businessman who owns and operates "Brothers Two", a liquor store-lounge and club, has been selected as one of the nation's most outstanding young businessmen in a program conducted during the past year by Jim Walter Corp. of Tampa, Fla.

Durant was one of 25 winners selected from a field of over 500 who had entered the Youth Enterprise Ward Program. He will receive a check for $1,000 from the corporation and a trip to Tampa to attend the firm's Annual Stockholders' Meeting, Dec. 8.

At age 22 Durant was the youngest black man of Maryland to get a $36,000 loan from the Small Business Administration. With it, he bought a liquor store-lounge business that was doing $1,200 sales per week. In a short time he turned it into a $6,500 a week enterprise.

One year later, Durant was granted another loan to buy two buildings next to his store which he rents as apartments and a beauty shop. Shortly afterwards, he purchased a carry-out submarine sandwich shop which has also been a success.

Today, Luke Durant is the businessman he wanted to be — with an annual gross of more than $200,000.

LUKE DURANT

He plans to get a degree in business administration, for which he already has 85 credits, and he plans to expand his interests into real estate.

The businesses of the 25 winners range from an 18-year-old Minnesotan who owns a flock of 1,200 geese, to a Texan who produces music and film for radio and TV commercials. The 25 winners include three women.

Interim Mental Health program due here

Dr. Addison Pope, the state's regional mental health director for Baltimore, has plans for an interim psychiatric evaluation designed to assist the city's judicial system in determining whether "deviant behavior" is the result of an emotional problem or "the mentally sound acting in a criminal manner."

"It's not a matter of the police doing what they should not be doing, it's more a matter of health agencies not fully assuming their responsibility in evaluation," Dr. Pope said.

The evaluation unit, which has been on a part-time basis since the middle of November, handles persons considered by their families to be mentally disturbed or who are picked up by police as a danger to themselves or society.

Prior to 1970, Dr. Pope said, psychiatrists evaluated patients when they were picked up often resulting in "hasty" evaluations.

Much more thorough investigations can be done at the unit's present location in the D Building of City Hospitals, under "clinical setting."

Patients can be given both psychiatric and physical examinations while at the same time tests are given for drug and alcohol use.

Dr. Pope noted that although the new program represented an improvement, he hoped that in perhaps five or six years neighborhood mental health facilities can be developed to provide the needed service.

JAMES L. BUNDY

List Bundy for judge

James L. Bundy, 51, Baltimore attorney is one of six persons recommended to Gov. Mandel for appointment to a vacancy in the city's District Court by the Eighth District Judicial Selection Commission.

Mr. Bundy, 600 block Cheraton Rd., in Cherry Hill, graduated from the University of Maryland Law School in 1949, passed the bar examination and was admitted to practice the same year.

He practiced privately with Linwood G. Koger from 1949 to 1952. He himself during 1953-57 and with W.A.C. Hughes, Jr., James W. McCallister, Benjamin Foreman and Donald G.

R.S.V.P. with Marie

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hom

In a double ring ceremony Miss Gail Diane Dorothea Gilbert exchanged vows with Henry Hom, at the Union Memorial United Methodist Church on Saturday. The Rev. Lovell Parham officiating.

The bride is the daughter of George Gilbert and Mrs. Lionel Davenport.

She is the great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. Harriet Murphy Gilbert and Harry Gilbert and the great-great-granddaughter of the AFRO founder John H. Murphy Sr.

Mr. Hom is of the first generation of his family to live in the U. S. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hom, originally from Canton, China now of Baltimore.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gilbert, the bride wore a white peau de soir, full-length gown with a raise of white lace-roses and pearls on the train and bodice. The veil had tightly-fitted cap, similar to a baby cap, trimmed in white velvet. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink baby roses.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Carlee Solomon was the maid of honor. She wore a deep pink satin princess gown. Her bouquet was made of baby pink roses and green tinted carnations and ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Artis Wilkes and Janice Clayborne. They wore emerald gowns designed in the same fashion as the maid of honor. Bouquets were made of white carnations and pink roses with a pink ribbon.

Junior bridesmaids were Misses Theresa Newman and Penny Jones. They were in green dresses trimmed in white lace and carried baskets of pink and white autumn flowers.

Jerry Hurlt was best man. Ushers were Wesley Chan and John Ash. Junior ushers were Lindsay Solomon III and Phillip Solomon.

The couple greeted guests following the ceremony at the bride's grandmother's home on N. Ellament St. The house was also decorated with a flair of pink and white.

GUESTS

Out-of-town guests came from Cleveland, Ohio and Washington, D.C.

The new Mrs. Hom graduated from Western High School in 1971 and attended the Community College of Baltimore. Mr. Hom works as a file clerk with the Social Security Administration. He received his Associate Degree in Accounting from CCB.

The couple plans to honeymoon in late December.

December kicks off with parties, birthdays

By MARIE MURPHY PHILLIPS COOKE

Mother, wife, friend, teacher, nurse, singer, supervisor and Christian. Those are all descriptions of Mrs. Ella Mae Coleman White, Maryland's 1972 "Mother of the Year."

Mother of seven outstanding children and wife of the Rev. Arthur W. White, pastor of Ebenezer United Methodist Church, Lanham, Md., Mrs. White has lived a life worthy of the honor.

Born 59 years ago in Palmer Springs, Va., Mrs. White attended high school there and in Turner Station, Md. She later received a certificate in Library Science from Catholic Hospital Association, Washington, D.C.

Always a civic-minded and active citizen, Mrs. White has been member of the NAACP 15 years and of the United Methodist Church 40 years. She has served as chairman of the West Baltimore District of WSCS and as a member of the WSCS Nominating Committee Conference-wide in Baltimore.

With her husband, Mrs. White founded the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church in Baltimore and was co-founder of the Library School of Nursing at Provident Hospital.

A dynamic person, she has also served as Assistant Director of Nursing at Henryton State Hospital, Henryton, Md. Spreading her services throughout the state, Mrs. White was a Civil Service supervisor at Fort Holabird, Dundalk, Md., and has nursed in private nursing homes as well as nursing private patients.

A Sunday School teacher who sings in the Goodwill Gospel Choir, Mrs. White is well known as one who opens her door and heart to children and adults who need a helping hand. She has cheerfully volunteered her time to hospitals and community organizations.

Mrs. White has sacrificied to send her seven children to college and help her husband complete his education.

FAMILY

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. White's children, all making meaningful contributions to community life, are: Arthur W. White, Jr., foreman at the Admiral Television Co; Mrs. Mary Burke, teacher at Commodore John Rogers Elementary School; Mrs. Lillie Thaniels, counselor at Northern Parkway Jr. High; John Ronald White, minister at Nash United Methodist Church, Washington, and a student at Howard Theological School; Mrs. Jean Miller, principal of O.W. Phair Elementary, Laurel Md.; Miss Ella Meredith White, a nurses aide who attended Maryland State College; and, Robert Oliver White, Baltimore City policeman who attends Baltimore Community College.

NAMED

Earlier this year, ministers, educators, citizens and political figures joined to recommend Mrs. White be selected as "Mother of the Year" to Judge Allene L. Moreland, Lothian, Md.

Among those encouraging her selection were: Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D., 7th), G. James Fleming, Morgan State College instructor and AFRO columnist; the Rev. Wesley A. A. Kelley, Mrs. Lillie Y. Walden, Mrs. LaVerne Y. Kelly and Miss Josephine O. Young.

A woman of outstanding character, Mrs. White well deserves the state title, "Mother of the Year."

LT. ROBINSON RETIRES

Lt. Carolyn M. Robinson who rounded out some 30 years with the Baltimore Police Department in September of this year, retired from her post in the Community Relations Department on Wednesday.

A group of friends and co-workers who call themselves the Coalition of Friends headed by Kitty Moulier will gather at Martin's West on December 27 along with some 300 others to honor the lady who has given so much of herself to the community.

Born March 12, 1909, she attended the Baltimore Public Schools, including Carver High where she graduated in 1926.

She entered Howard University for two years, then transferred to Morgan and received an A.B. degree. Lt. Robinson didn't stop there. She took graduate studies at Morgan, Loyola and the University.

APPOINTED TO FORCE

On September 29, 1942, she was appointed to serve in the Northern District. On December 2, 1944, she was transferred to the Northeastern District and on August 31, 1969, to the Eastern District. On July 28, 1966, Lt. Robinson was promoted to Sgt. in the Community Relations Division, Central District, under Major James Watkins.

Tickets for the affair may be purchased from Mrs. Marion Crawford 462-5328," Mrs. Marguerite Campbell, 566-4085, or Mrs. Meuller, 466-9555.

MISS COPPIN

Pretty Miss Delores Acker, a charming Coppin State College Senior, has been elected "Miss Coppin — 1972-73."

The early childhood major received her crown last Friday at the college's Coronation Ball at the Winchester Armory.

Quite active in community projects, Delores is on the Board of Directors fort he Self-Help Poverty Program in the inner city, and is also a member of the Committee for Citizens United to Revitalize "E". She someday hopes to open a "day nursery" in the inner city, believing that the young impressionable years" in a childs' life are the most important.

PATTERSON PARTY

It was a birthday dinner celebration in Dundalk on Sunday. The honorees was Doward Patterson of 114 Oak St., retired Bethlehem Steel worker, who was celebrating his 69th birthday at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Patterson of Robinwood Rd.

About that evening were all of the honoree's surviving sisters and brothers. Originally, there were 15 in all. From Virginia came his oldest sister, Mrs. Martha J. Lewis, 84. Others present were Neil Patterson, 71; Earl Patterson, 73; Mrs. Betty Flood, 80, and George Patterson, 82.

Elegant was the honoree's wife, Mrs. Louie Patterson. Five of his seven grandchildren were also there.

MRS. MARY CLAYBURN

Accolades and more accolade were paid to Mrs. Mary Clayburn last Wednesday evening at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. It was the annual Woman of the Year banquet, sponsored by the Women's Advertising Club of Baltimore.

Mrs. Clayburn, Public Affairs Director at WWIN Radio, beautiful in black velvet with embroidered metallic ornaments was cited for her outstanding contributions to the Baltimore Sickle Cell Foundation.

sent that evening were Ms. Virginia Zeller, president, WACB; Mrs. Janet Covington, chairman, Woman of the Year committee; Mrs. Ruth Adams, 1971 Woman of the Year; McKinley Clayburn, husband of the honoree; Shelton Earp, WWIN; Al Jefferson, WWIN, and Daniel Loden, vice-president, VanSant Dugdale.

Also about that evening were members of Mrs. Clayburn's family; her two handsome sons, Mark and Myron and other relatives, Mrs. Eleanor Matthews, Mrs. Estelle Woingust, Mrs. Alice Talley, Mrs. Jessie Bosier, Mrs. Elizabeth Matthews, Mrs. Marilyn Coleman, Mrs. Mattie McPherson and Mrs. Alice Brooks.

Also seen that evening were Congressman Parren J. Mitchell, Del and Mrs. Troy Brailey, Dr. Herbert Frisby, Mrs. Enolia P. McMillian, and Judge Joseph Howard.

PLEDGE CLUB

Busy helping others is the Pledge Club of the Baltimore Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc. who recently entertained patients at the Ashburton Nursing Home and the Anna Mae Hunter Home for the Blind respectively.

The residents were served cookies and punch while they listened to religious music. They were given Christmas cards, stationery, and all occasion cards.

Individual gift packages were also given. Included in the packages were toiletries, comb and brush, and pens and pencils. A basket of canned foods was present to each home.

The members of the Pledge Club are: Sorors Barbara Cruise, president; Claudetta Cockrell, Evelyn Douglass, Dorothy Dunston, Mary Ervin; Pearl Evans, Marian Finney, Annette Hall, Muriel McDonald, Mabel Murray, Janice Page, Anita Powell, Carole Talley, Rosita Uncles, Zefferine Wheeler, Grace White, and Sylvia Wooden.

While the majority of the Supreme Seventeen were at the Anna Mae Hunter Home, one member participated in a dinner for 16 children from the Villa Maria. These children are homeless. They were transported to Randallstown Woodridge Club House for a show and dinner and will be given Christmas gifts. This effort was coordinated by Mrs. Mabel Murray.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Georgine M. Johnson of Harlem Ave. was honored by her children and two nieces on her 7th birthday recently.

The grand hall was held at St. Pius Hall. After cocktails and greetings, Father John gave the invocation.

The honoree was elegant that evening. She waltzed with her sons before dinner.

Edward Williams of Catonsville, cousin of Mrs. Johnson and principal of Bragg School, proposed a toast to the honoree Guests danced to the music of he 'Mello Rocks.'

FROM BALTIMORE

Mrs. Johnson was born and married in Baltimore, Md. and is the mother of 12 children (one of whom is Judge John R. Hargrove, Chief Municipal of Bragg School, proposed a toast to the honoree. Guests danced to the music of the 'Mello Rocks.'

Mrs. Brooks honored Friday

By BLAINE TAYLOR

"I think it's wonderful and beautiful, and I was quite thrilled and surprised by both the awards and the mayor's presence, neither of which I expected," commented the lovely Mrs. Pauline Brooks last Friday evening.

Her comment came only minutes after the conclusion of a fashion show, banquet and awards ceremony held in her honor at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Brooks, president of Pauline Brooks Fashions, Inc., was the special guest of honor at the Baltimore Marketing Association, Inc.'s fifth annual awards dinner.

The BMA, according to its awards committee co-chairman, Garey Reynolds, was founded in 1966 and is "A predominately black business association but," as he added, "we're getting more and more white applications all the time."

On hand to honor Mrs. Brooks, besides Mayor Schaefer, was guest speaker Earl G. Graves, president of the Earl G. Graves Publishing Co. and the founder and publisher of Black Enterprise magazine.

Other distinguished guests were Mrs. Barbara Mikulski, who conducted the showing of fashions; commentator, Mrs. Odelle Rea; toastmaster, Thomas Gregory; the Rev. Harold L. Dobson, who delivered the invocation; Mrs. Delores Lashley, BMA executive secretary and the group's president, Eugene M. Smith;

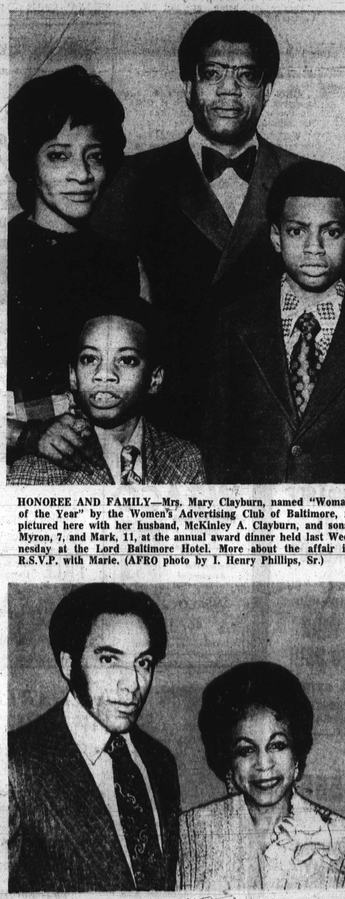
In addition there were, Acknell M. Muldrow, BMA chairman of the board, who introduced Mr. Graves; Frederick A. Bailey, Jr., who introduced the honoree, and John E. Edmondson, vice-president of entertainment.

The audience contained many distinguished persons also, including AFRO President and Mrs. John H. Murphy, III; Del. and Mrs. Troy Brailey, Del. Walter Dean; and Henry Parks, head of Parks Sausage Co.

Mrs. Brooks, radiant and beautiful in an elegant, metallic-silver, floor-length gown, was presented with the BMA's Annual Civic Award, the Mayor's Citation for her contributions to the city's business community, the State of Maryland Certificate of Distinguished Citizenship, and a letter of praise from Congressman Parren J. Mitchell, (D. 7th)

The 200-strong audience applauded heartily after listening to Mrs. Brooks graciously accept the awards by thanking her family, friends, business associates, the BMA and the audience itself.

Mrs. Brooks will be featured in the special AFRO Holiday Hosting color magazine coming soon.



FETED ON FRIDAY—Mrs. Pauline Brooks, owner of the Brooks Boutique in Mondawmin, was honored by the Baltimore Marketing Association last week. Guest speaker for the occasion was Earl Graves, publisher of Black Enterprise. Mrs. Brooks is celebrating her 20th year in business. (AFRO photo by John H. Murphy, III.)
