Cartridge TV makes debut in city stores

It's called Cartridge TV, and it lets you see what you want when you want to.

* * *

It is the television industry's answer to TV viewers' most common complaint — why can't the TV networks schedule their programs better.

This complaint often comes when the wife drags the husband away from the TV in the middle of an exciting football contest because they have to arrive at the party on time.

* * *

And how about home movies ready for instant replay on the living room set or a front door monitor. All this and more is now possible with the Teledyne Packard Bell cartridge television which first went on public display for Marylanders at Baltimore Hecht Co. stores Friday.

* * *

Demonstrations of the cartridge TV unit are currently being held at the following Hecht Co. store locations in Baltimore: Howard and Lexington, Northwood, Hillen Road and Havenwood Road, Edmondson Ave., Reisterstown Plaza and Patterson St.

Prices for pre-recorded tapes range from $16.40 and blank tape cartridges sell for $15.31.

Cartridge TV promises to revolutionize the television industry. Its effect may be greater than what happened when talkies replaced silent movies. TV viewers are no longer limited by the ... work TV.

Bell cartridge TV unit retails for $1,850 and it includes a color TV set with a 23-inch screen, a black and white TV Camera with microphone and a cartridge tape deck unit connected to the color television receiver.

Already a growing library of more than 400 different pre-recorded tapes is available in the areas of movies, music, sports, education and entertainment. ... feature length movies are set for sale including such legendary films as "High Noon," "Dr. Strangelove" and ...

CARTRIDGE TV, Teledyne Packard Bell's newest television system, easy to use as this young model makes it seem. Now you can tape any program on TV for your future viewing pleasure, tape your own home movies or select any one of more than 400 TV tape cartridges including movies and top sporting events to cut on the TV.

20-year-olds not on parents' Blue Cross plan

Maryland Blue Cross and Blue Shield has reminded parents that coverage of children under most family contracts continues until the end of the year in which the child reaches 19 years of age.

For most subscribers Dec. 31, 1972 marks the deadline for family coverage of children born in 19.3.

To assure continuous protection, the companies advise 19-year-olds to apply now for memberships of their own. Full-time students at approved schools may convert their present coverage to the special low cost Blue Cross and Blue Shield Student Program, according to the companies.

With help from black students from Morgan State College and others, she gained municipal permission to rope off streets for games, music, puppet theatre, [illegible] moved indoors to several churches and [illegible].

She is an avid camper, and has camped across the [illegible] times with her husband Gruver, a physicist at the Naval Ordinance Laboratory. She describes him as "the world's most wonderful husband."

Asked whether she has offer solutions to the problems of the schools today, Mrs. Martin said she thinks that is a question for "the magician of the year, not the teacher of the year," but added that basic honesty helps a great deal, including "the willingness to change when something doesn't work."
