Macon County, Ala. sheriff, first black ever elected to that position in the South.

Women jail inmates enjoy Yule party

"You would be surprised at what it did. It was very uplifting."

This is acting Deputy Warden Guy Smith's reaction to the first Christmas party ever held in the Women's Detention Center at City Jail Dec. 25.

Roughly 30 children as well as mothers and grandmothers, came to the Jail for a few precious hours of merriment with about half of the 60 women detained there.

Deputy Smith told the AFRO correction officers and matrons "chipped in" from their own pockets to sponsor the party so the youngsters could enjoy a beautifully decorated Christmas tree, toys, candy canes, ice cream and oranges.

Deputy Warden Howard Parks, acting warden, agreed with Deputy Smith, saying, "Unquestionably, the party was a success as far as I'm concerned. The inmates and their children were very happy."

The success of the occasion, Deputy Smith added, has sparked him and Lt. Harry Vaughn, director of the Women's Detention Center, to seriously consider having other parties on the major holidays.

Youth gets 30 days for shoplifting

"You have been given one chance and you blew it. I think you will have to serve time in jail."

Judge Marshall Levin made the above statement in Criminal Court to Miss Brenda S. Hill, 19, 300 block Reisterstown Rd. Miss Hill was found guilty of shoplifting.

Court records show the teenager was arrested on Aug. 9, at a food store in Reisterstown Plaza Shopping Center. According to evidence placed before the court, Miss Hill approached the meat counter and placed two cans of crab meat valued at $8.00 in her pocketbook.

Court docket states the defendant is a graduate of Northwestern High School and was on probation for shoplifting at the time she was arrested.

Judge Levin told the defendant, "This is not a long time and it will not be a pleasant time. I am very sorry."

Reed retires

JEFFERSON CITY — Lincoln University's Dwig. T. Reed officially ended 28 years as the school's head football coach last week when he announced his decision to resign in order to devote his time completely to his duties as athletic director.

Miss Jones, Mr. Reed, dynamic teachers

By BLAINE TAYLOR

"I really like working with children and I enjoy meeting them daily," says Miss Beverlyann Jones, 23 first-year fourth grade teacher at School No. 132, Coppin Elementary, 1114 N. Mount St.

Her boyfriend, 22-year-old Walter Ellis Reed, is a substitute teacher at the same school, and he told the AFRO his recipe for handling troublesome students: "I try to talk to the child first and then call the office."

Both graduated last June from Morgan State College, where they first met during their sophomore year.

Miss Jones, an only child, resides in the 2400 block Collerton Heights Ave. with her mother, Mrs. Angela V. Jones, a nurse at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

She majored in elementary education at Morgan and did her student teaching last year at Sir Robert Eden Elementary School No. 20, 1601 N. Eden St.

One of her heroines is Mrs. Ethel Brewington, principal of No. 20.

She wants teaching to be her career and says "You meet problems in the classroom and you deal with them."

Although she has 32 youngsters, ages 9 and 10 in her class, Miss Jones states "I've gotten to know the parents of all my children, and that's important.

"They're most cooperative and cordial," she adds.

She believes in rewarding her pupils for good behavior in the classroom and takes them on side trips.

"The boys go to the roller derby with Walter and me and the young ladies will be taken to my home for the holidays."

Her mother also likes children, and has helped Miss Jones entertain the pupils at her home on their post visits.

Miss Jones encourages her students to get involved in outside projects, two of whom are doing art work for the Red Cross and having a pen pal in Ghana, Africa.

* g *

Her duties at the school include teaching a non-graded "right to read" program, math, oral and written English, health, social studies and literature

In addition, the children receive physical education, go to the school library periodically and participate in the free school lunch program.

Miss Jones says that the school, predominately black, is very community oriented, and receives aid from Model Cities.

"This includes getting glasses for the children and having dental vans come into the neighborhood.

"There is also free tutoring by Morgan and Johns Hopkins University students."

People who have helped her along the way to becoming an effective teacher are she says, "Dr. Haywood Harrison and Harold Chin at Morgan; Mrs. Vivian Burckhard of Bowie; my critic teacher at No. 20, Mrs. Claire Artis;

"Also Mrs. Lucille Williams, principal; and Mrs. Geraldine Griner, Mrs. Bernice Lewis, and Mrs. Ward Freeley, all at School No. 132."

Miss Jones has been a member of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., a national sorority, for two years.

Mr. Reed, 2100 block Clifton Ave., majored in history at Morgan, but decided not to teach for a career.

He currently teaches prototype, one day weekly, at No. 132, but wants to get a full-time job with either the Veterans' Administration or Travelers Insurance Company as a claims adjuster.

His parents are George Read, 56, a retired B. and O. Railroad worker and Lucy Jane Reed, a housewife.

Health people elected to national posts

In his Weekly Letter to the Mayor dated Dec. 22, 1972, Commissioner of Health, Dr. Robert E. Farber.

"The Health Department is represented among the newly elected officers of the U.S. CONFERENCE OF City, Health Officers.

"At its recent meeting in Atlantic City, Dr. John S. Neill of Tampa, Florida was elected President and I have taken office as Vice President."

Comprising 113 members from city and city-county health departments, the Conference is currently directing efforts toward strengthening federal aid to community health programs.

Without such federal assistance many health departments including Baltimore's would find themselves financially incapable of continuing many needed programs.
