Fashionettes

Calvin Klein captures the feeling of spring in a fabulous collection ranging from cardigan and sweater and shirt/skirt ensembles of imported [illegible] topper and coat. Rainwear in the collection [illegible] constructed for a free and easy fit.

If classic was the byword for fall ready to wear, classic elegance is the key to spring and summer in the fashion season ahead, says designer Ralph Lauren.

• • •

Hardly anyone today needs a label to know Stephen Burrows' clothes. The red zig zag and lettuce trim have become a signature instantly recognized by devotees all over the country.

The way the world dresses today is the Anne Klein way of sleek sportswear. Anne Klein says so.

• • •

Legs and arms will be much in evidence in the fashion season ahead. Arms via sleeveless dresses. And legs? Via shorter hemlines showing the knee.

• • •

Fabrics popular for [illegible] thin jersey, downy mohair, georgette and nun's veiling. Evening fabrics stress lightness and austerity: wedding ring matte jersey, ultra thin satins, crepe de chine, georgette and satin striped chiffons. liquid-moving sequins on marquisette.

• • •

Double crepe is used for the new informal evening clothes which play up tennis [illegible] tops over pleated skirts and little battle jackets over sexy bias dresses.

• • •

To most designers, hats are in for spring. Whether they actually will be in with the customers depends on traffic to millinery departments. The hat business could stand a boom, say industry sources. Oddly the younger (under 30 crowd) is going for its floppy brimmed hats in a big way.
