Woodlawn HIGHlights

MRS. GREEN

By MARJORIE R. GREEN

By MARJORIE R. GREEN

Arthur E. Jones is a member of the cloth!! He is a Congressional Clerk in the Mail and Distribution Section of the Social Security Administration where he has been employed for the past 15 years.

He modestly refers to himself as an "Old country Preacher' ost thwest Baltimore.

The Rev. Mr. Jones is a man with a sincere dedication to his calling and to the spiritual growth of the church founded by his father. He stresses the fact that his job at SSA places him in a unique position for on the spot counseling when it is needed and requested by his co-workers.

When asked about a possible conflict between the two full time jobs, he smiles and speaks of them as "going together." With togetherness there can never be any real conflict.

March 1973 will mark his 30th year in the ministry and the members of Jones Tabernacle Church are planning a week of celebration in his honor.

He loves to boast about the complete Youth program that is flourishing in his church. These young people are well known for their singing ability and their voices are featured in the churches weekly radio broadcast.

• • •

His unselfish work on behalf of the Md. Baptist Home for the Aged is verification that he is able to relate to the elderly as well as to the younger set.

Not to be forgotton is the family of Reverend Jones. Lively Clttelle, the wife whe has been an inspiring influence ftr so many years. Then their is the son, who is a talented musician and the daughter, who like her father is a minister of the Gospel.

SSA is certainly fortunate to have Arthur E. Jones on its roll. Several Woodlawn employees are meembers of Jones Tabernacle Church. Among them is Charles Hassell: BDI, who is an organist in the church.

This past Saturday evening a group of Social Security Employees, including wives and Local 1923 executive Bureau Directors, their tive staff members were seen at the Washington Hilton Hotel in Washington D.C.

The occasion was the testimonial dinner given for John Griner, retired national president of A.F.GE.

Those making the journey were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zawatsky, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Creech, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Popick, Mr. and Mrs. William Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. Whittier Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Burton, also Mr. and Mrs. Beale Cooper. Mesdames Helen Tucker, Evelyn Holland, Avis Fagan, Stanley Starr, Joseph Bosley, Henry Moore, Nicolas Nolan and Joseph Rosenberg.

Mobile health program puts hospital in home

Three times a week a special VW bus pulls up in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pope of W. Saratoga St. Several young women step off the bus and quickly entere the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope eagerly await their arrival, in fact they depend upon these staff members of the Bon Secours Hospital's West Baltimore Home Care Program to provide them with essential medical care, as well as cook, clean and converse.

• • •

During their visit to the Popes, the staff swings into action. Mr. Pope, who is confined to a wheel chair as a result of a stroke has his blood pressure taken, as well as other routine medical checks.

His bed is changed, then he is assisted to his wheel chair. Any difference in his condition since the last visit is noted on his record.

Mrs. Addie Pope, who is severely limited in her mobility because of crippling arthritis, is helped to plan her menu and nutritional needs.

Her homemaking routine is discussed and she is helped by a member of the home health care staff who heats their meal.

Her own physical condition is noted on her record; afterward one of the physicians associated with the program will analyze both health records and other pertinent information to make any adjustments in their routines if necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope are the first couple to benefit from the home health care program, established by the West Baltimore Community Health Center. The Center, officially dedicated last September, is housed in three newly renovated and converted row houses donated by Bon Secours Hospital at the corner of Baltimore and Monroe Sts.

The center and the home care program have been funded by several sources: Department of Health, Education and Welfare Family, Health Care Program grants; the Maryland Health Care Corporation; the Regional Medical Program; as well as private business and charitable contributors.

Home care is now available to anyone living in the West Baltimore area requiring this service.

• • •

In order to qualify for home care, a patient must be physician-referred or referred from other institutions or agencies.

A member of the home care staff sees the patient and his family for an initial evaluation and the staff helps the family prepare the home for patient care and continuing service, as needed.

Usually there is a significant gap between hospital care and home care. The home health care program permits the community health nurse and home health aides to link the two by acting on doctor's orders.

The traditional physician/patient relationships are preserved as the program is fully physician directed. The staff includes a full complement of related medical and health disciplines including Dr. Ralph Twining, physician in charge; Miss Catherine Foxworth, coordinator; Mrs. Barbara Harrison, social worker; Mrs. Bernadette Barr, public health nurse; Mrs. Shirley Taylor, community health worker; Mrs. Scarlett Richardson, licensed practical nurse; Mrs. Rosetta Smith, home health aide; Miss Lorena Ward, secretary and Clarence Bond, driver.

The home care program focuses primarily on elderly patients, particularly those living alone, who might make frequent medication errors due to senility, poor vision and difficulty in moving around. Mr. and Mrs. Pope, who are both over 65 would be unable to maintain a medically sound routine, if not for the planned visits of the home care staff.

The Popes do not wish to sell their home and enter a nursing home while they can still enjoy their friends and neighborhood with the support of the home health care program.

FEELING BETTER— Mrs. Shirley Taylor (l) a community health worker, discusses daily routines with Mrs. Addie Pope (r) who suffers from crippling arthritis. Mrs Taylor will not only provide essential medical care, but will help with Mrs. Pope's cooking and cleaning chores. Pictured at right, another community health worker, Mrs. Scarlett Richardson, checks Mr. Pope's blood pressure. Mrs. Pope's husband is confined to a wheel chair as a result of a stroke. The couple really depends on staff members such as these from Bon Secours Hospital's West Baltimore home care program.

Medicare explained

Blind tailors enjoy success

Under state use industry contracts, blind clothing manufacturers at the Salisbury Training and Work Center of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind produced 175,039 articles of clothing for use in state operated institutions last year.

The clothing, which bears an official state manufactured "Marstin" label, standing for Maryland State Industries, was valued at $112,445.74, and provided 36 blind and multi-handicapped production workers with full time employment.

Among the items produced in quantity were men's bathrobes, bed jackets, coveralls, gowns of all types, ladies' housecoats, men's and boys' pajamas and shirts, men's denim jackets, scuffs, men's shorts and trousers, and ladies' slips.
