The Maryland Humanities Council was formed in 1974 in response to the federal law creating the National Endowment for the Humanities (P.L. 94-462). The Council is a private, nonprofit Maryland corporation funded by the federal government, foundations, corporations, and individuals, and by the Division of Historical and Cultural Programs, Department of Housing and Community Development.

The Council conducts programs and awards grants for projects to promote public understanding and appreciation of the humanities in Maryland. The humanities include history, languages, literature, jurisprudence, ethics, philosophy, archaeology, linguistics, comparative religion, cultural anthropology, and history and criticism of the arts.

The Governor appoints six of the Council's twenty-six volunteer members.

The Maryland Statewide Independent-Living Council was started in 1988 by the State Department of Education as an advisory body to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. In September 1993, the Governor established the Council as an independent policy body in accordance with 1992 amendments to the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Executive Order 01.01.1993.24; 29 USC 796d). Today, the Council and the Division of Rehabilitation Services jointly develop the State Plan for Independent-Living Rehabilitation Services and monitor its implementation. To provide and improve independent-living services to individuals with disabilities, the Council coordinates its work with the State Rehabilitation Advisory Council and other agencies.

The Council helps keep persons with disabilities active in family and community life rather than isolated in institutions. It aids them in becoming as self-reliant and self-sufficient as possible. Whenever appropriate, it helps them secure work.

The Governor appoints Council members to serve three-year terms.
