ANYTHING WRONG?

How often things do go wrong in our lives! Plans collapse like a house-of-cards! Trouble explodes like an A-bomb. Miseries spread like poison ivy. Where can you go? To whom can you turn for help?

THANK GOD, there IS ONE PERSON who is ever ready to help us. She is the Mother of Jesus and our Mother.

"Come to the foot of the altar" she says. Present your problem, and I WILL HELP YOU, as I did at the Marriage Feast of Cana.

COME YOURSELF . . . and tell others to come to our 12:10 Noon Mass, offered every weekday for your needs; 5:30 P.M. Holy Hour every Thursday; and ONE of NINE Novena Services held every Monday and Tuesday.

SPECIAL BLESSING of the SICK INDIVIDUALLY every Monday after 3:30, 4:30 and 8:00 P.M. Services. LOURDES WATER, imported from Lourdes, France, especially for the SICK is available in the rectory at all times. ALL Services are in English and last only 30 minutes.

Justice Department ordered to rehire top level worker

Dr. Dollie R. Walker must be wondering if ambition is really worth it after all.

The Baltimorean who is an education specialist with a doctorate degree from the University of Pennsylvania applied for a promotion in December, 1971. This move not only put her in the proverbial 'dog house;' it led first to her transfer to Texas and then to her dismissal from a $25,000 government job.

But Dr. Walker is a fighter and she took her employer, the Justice Department, before a special Civil Service Commission hearing in an attempt to regain her old job charging racial and sexual discrimination.

The hearing was last October, but a report on its findings have only recently been released.

Hearing examiner Charles K. Tinkler ordered the Justice Department to reinstate Dr. Walker to her former GS-14 post with retroactive pay. Since Dr. Walker was fired last March, the retroactive pay settlement totals nearly $22,000.

But Dr. Walker claims the fight isn't over yet.

She told the AFRO Tuesday, "I have been reinstated, but not to my former position. The agency wishes to send me back to Dallas (Tex.). This I will fight."

Dr. Walker joined the community relations service agency of the Justice Department in September, 1968, after working 15 years in the Baltimore City Public Schools system.

She was called in to set up an education unit, aid in developing programs and give assistance to five regional offices, she explained.

By December, 1970, she had earned a superior accomplishment award from her superiors.

In April, 1971, she applied for a vacant GS-15 post. She was turned down.

By May, 1971, her superfors had decided to try to fire her.

In late June, she was reassigned to a post in Dallas; a move which she claims was tantamount to "a demotion." The reassignment came after Dr. Walker's immediate superior had rated her job performance as satisfactory.

Dr. Walker claims her assignment to Dallas has worked a great hardship on her and her family as their home is in Maryland.

In response to being relocated in Texas, Dr. Walker filed a sex and race discrimination complaint with the offices of Equal Employment Opportunity in July, 1971

Three days after she filed the complaint, the Justice Department served her with formal notice of intent to fire.

Dr. Walker's attorney, Mrs. M. Wilhemina Jackson filed an appeal on her behalf March 30, 1972 with the Civil Service Commission. The appeal charged that Dr. Walker's removal was based on race and sex discrimination. It contended that "although much was made of the fact that consideration was being given to remove (Dr. Walker) prior to July 23, 1971, nothing was done until she filed her Equal Employment Opportunity complaint."

In rejecting the Justice Department's move to reassign or dismiss Dr. Walker, hearing examiner Tinkler also nixed Dr. Walker's claim that her removal was based on race or sex discrimination.

All five of the Justice Department's charges against Dr. Walker were found insufficient to warrant firing. They were: insubordination, malicious gossip, insolent behavior, negligence in the performance of duties and irresponsibility. Only the irresponsible charge was substantiated, but Tinkler ruled it was not grounds for firing.

Dr. Walker lives with her husband in Baltimore. He is an instructor at Morgan State College. She has a son attending Lincoln Pa. University.

Dr. Walker earned her B.A. degree from the University of Iowa and her M.A. degree from the University of Minnesota. She has taught at Morgan, the Community College of Baltimore and Essex Community College.

Samuel Snowden, 75, AFRO employee buried

Funeral services for Samuel Snowden, 75, 2305 Anoka Ave. and longtime AFRO employee were held today (Friday) at St. Peter Claver Catholic Church where he had been a member for 40 years. Burial followed at Baltimore National Cemetery.

Mr. Snowden, known as "Brother Sam", "Sam", or "Uncle Sam" by fellow AFRO employees died Monday at his home where he had been bedridden for two months.

For 48 years an AFRO employee, Mr. Snowden began work on March 1923 as an advertising compositor make-up man

He was composing room supervisor when he became ill in Sept. 1971.

Mr. Snowden an easy going man who was known to get things done without making much fuss in the process, had done some of just about everything that gets done on a composing room floor.

In March 1959, when he received a pin with rubies and emeralds for 25 years service, he commented:

"I'm beginning after 33 years to understand why they call it a newspaper game. It is more or less a challenge. It has been a pleasure working for the AFRO all these years."

The Ph.D.—as the late Dr. Carl Murphy, AFRO publisher, termed him and the man who had top tenure in the AFRO composing room, was tal' and likeable.

His full name was Lawence Samuel Reginald Snowden.

Mr. Snowden once recalled bring recommended for his job at the AFRO by John H. Murphy, Jr.—now 92 and the sole surviving son of the senior Mr. Murphy, AFRO founder.

At the time Mr. Snowden was employed by the Gabriel Maddox job printing firm. His first job after his discharge from the Navy at the end of World War I was as ship's printer for the Matson Navigation Co. During the war, Mr. Snowden made seven trips beetween Hoboken N.J. and Brest, France. He was assigned to the U.S. Navy transport Service.

One of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel (Ellen) Snowden, Mr. Snowden was born in Prince George's County, Md. He moved to Baltimore with Snowden attended the Old his family in 1906. Mr. Colored High School here which was at Pennsylvania and Dolphin St., where he studied no

He and his wife, the late Mrs. Ca, the parents of three children, Lawrence, 32; Mrs. Sandra Wickas, 30; and Anthony, 28 all whom survive.

In addition to his children, Mr. Snowden is survived by a sister Mrs. George Wood and a brother, Thomas Snowden.

Also surviving Mr. Snowden are ten grandchildren, Allan Campbell, Toney Campbell, Alonzo Snowden, Michele Green, Keith Scott, Georgie Payne, Bernadette Payne, Justine Payne, Charlotte Payne, and Antoine Webster.

Dental care gets Mayor, county boost

Mayor William Donald Schaefer and Baltimore County Executive Dale Anderson have proclaimed the week Feb. 4-10, as "Children's Dental Health Week" in their respective political localities, it was announced today by the Baltimore City-Baltimore County Dental Health Council.

In stressing that good dental health is an important factor in their communities overall health picture, both leaders called upon citizens to cooperate in promoting dental health among the younger generations.

"Children's Dental Health Week is an annual program to generate an awareness of the need for children to receive dental care," said Dr. Donald J. Forrester, co-chairman of the program in the Baltimore area, and chairman of Department of Pedodontics all the University of Maryland Dental School.

"It also points out the value of teeth—especially in children—and, hopefully, will generate an awareness in children of the need to seek out dental care," he said.

During the upcoming week, such special programs as a "brush-in" and puppet show at the John F. Kennedy Institute, and a demonstration on the proper method of brushing teeth at the Maryland School for the Blind will take place.

In addition, members of the University of Maryland Community Pediatric Center are traveling to a number of inner-city schools to demonstrate the "how's" and "why's" of dental health.

The theme for this year's program is "Plaque Free in '73" and if everyone pitches in, a pleasant smile is close behind.

Dr. Patterson discusses varied school problems

By BLAINE TAYLOR

"Early childhood education has to be a priority for this school system," Dr. Roland N. Patterson, superintendent of Baltimore City City Public Schools, told the AFRO in an interview recently.

The meeting took place across a conference table in his 25th St. school administration and headquarters office.

Dr. Patterson's statement was in regard to President Nixon's announced budget cuts from the 1974 fiscal year, which he said could be "As high as $600,000 to $800,000 for us in impacted school areas.

"I don't know the details of the cuts' effects yet," he added, "because I haven't B gotten the word back from the department heads with the various facts and figures."

He is very concerned with how the cuts may damage the early childhood education area, however, "Especially in regard to disadvantaged children"

He explained how he and his department will try to cope with the now-limited Federal money: "As with the other budget cuts we had last year from Baltimore City, the Federal cuts will mean modification of some programs — or somehow having the cost of them picked up by the local governments."

Because the cuts were only announced last Monday, Dr. Patterson wasn't able to identify exactly which school programs would be affected.

Asked whether he had any feedback on the recently-launched "Right to Read" program, Dr. Patterson replied, "No, because it's too early to tell any results yet."

Turning to the topic of the "monosex schools" — Poly, Western, City and Eastern — the school superintendent stated, "I would foresee a court challenge in the future to them."

This means that a female student might file a court suit to enter, on a full-time basis, either Poly or City — an entrance which is denied females now.

Last year, a female applied to take certain technical courses at Poly, and was allowed to do so, while remaining a full-time student at neighboring Western.

Still ,Dr. Patterson said, he felt that the maintenance of the monosex schools was a good idea, "because it offers the students of Baltimore another educational variety that many of them want."

He stated that, although the monosex schools are "Can't be justified at all on Constitutional grounds," he personally wouldn't recommend a change to the board of school commissioners.

"Only the board can make the change," he stated.

At its last regular meeting, Jan. 25 at Colestream Elementary School, 1400 Exeter Hall Ave., the board passed Dr. Patterson's resolution on drug abuse and education.

The resolution does the following:

* The School system will try to upgrade its drug education program to its maximum effectivenss;

* It will continue and extend its cooperation with city, state and Federal agencies working on drug education and treatment:

* The system will continue and expand its staff training and re-training programs dealing with drugs;

* It will keep its policies and procedures on drugs up to date with state and local laws, state board of education by-laws and other guidelines;

* The system will recognize the importance of "Legal actions and enforcement procedures coupled with the significant role of the educator in helping students who seek to overcome drug involvement."

"This will include a "Strong preventive educational program and cooperation with rehabilitation services."

Lead poisoning under study

The City Health Department has announced the establishment of a Baltimore Citizens Advisory Council on Lead Paint Poisoning in Children.

The council will advise the health commissioner on matters relating to the city's expanding program of detection, treatment and prevention of lead poisoning in children.

Council members designated so far are Mrs. Lilly Stevenson, temporary chairman, Mr. Clarence Ringgold, Mrs. Betty Purnell, Mrs. Susan Bennett Anderson, Mr. Roy Moody, Mrs. Frances Reynolds, Mr. Lester Buster, Mrs. Constanie F. White, Miss Marilyn Elfvin, Mr. David Tabler, and Mrs. Mary Timmons.

Untreated lead poisoning can cause permanent physical and mental damate or death.

Under recent legislation, men whose wives die or become 100 per cent disabled as a result of military service now share equal rights with wives and widows of male veterans under the GI Bill.

How President would reverse federal clock

WASHINGTON — The major cut in President Nixon's $268.7 million budget would eliminate the Office of Economic Opportunity, saving $328 million and cutting the payroll by 1,900 employees.

The list of 106 cuts included more than $7. billion from social programs. Some of them were:

—Ending "depressed" areas programs started in the earlier days of the Kennedy administration.

—Shutting off new funds for the National Defense Education Act college student loans started during the Eisenhower administration ($264 million).

—Killing the public service employment program started near the end of his own first term (670 million).

—Ending regional medical facilities and local mental health programs.

—Penalizing states that mistakenly pay out any federal welfare funds to ineligible persons ($592 million).

—Continuing the current freeze on home purchase subsides for the poor and on aid for new sewage and other water quality projects. The freeze on polution programs would save $950. million.
