Alpha Fraternity's 66th Founders' Day celebration on Saturday evening.

It was held at the Center Club, at One Charles Center, offering a beautiful view of the city. Inside, the view was beautiful too, with gowns and their men in black tie.

It was the first time in the history of the elite Center Club that a predominately black organization has made use of its elegant facilities. Attorney Charles Howard, an Alpha and member of the club, made the necessary arrangements.

The Program Committee chairman, Wilson Bell, introduced the speaker for the efening, Brother Charles P. Howard Jr.

Attorney Howard earned his Doctorate of Jurisprudence from Howard University and a Masters Degree from New York University in International Relations. He is a senior partner in the Howard, Brown and Williams law firm of this city.

He is a member of several Bar Associations which include the American, Maryland State, Baltimore and Monumental. He is on the Executive Council of the Boy Scouts of America, from whom he has received the coveted Silver Beaver Award. Brother Howard is also on the board of the Arena Players and the YMCA, and is presently Eastern vice-president of Alpha Phi Alpha, Inc.

Brother Howard cited some of the city's great Alpha men who were giants in their vocations as well as in the Baltimore community.

Among those Alpha men mentioned were Dr. P. D. Q. Pennington, Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, Dr. A. Bradshaw Higgins, Dr. Carl Murphy, Dr. Walter Dixon, Mr. Miles Conner and Mr. Frank Veney.

MRS. WHITE RETIRES

Orchids went to a loyal Avon Products representative who has served the company for two decades.

She's Mrs. Ella Mae White, who recently gave up her job with Avon after 20 years of devoted service.

She joined the cosmetic company's staff on Dec. 16, 1952 as a representative and has been a 'real salesperson' ever since.

Mrs. White is not new to this community. She's always doing something for others and has won numerous awards. She's the wife of the Rev. Arthur White, minister of the St. Matthews United Presbyterian Church.

Accolades and more accolades were paid to Mrs. White at a reception given in her honor at the Forest Manor. Mrs. Christine Strawther, manager, noted, "a lady with a goal in view, she set out to reach that goal.

"She won the highest honors offered by Avon. She's a Diamond Planer, a bond winner and a member of the President's Club. She's collected many of the prizes offered by the company for her outstanding work."

Also commemorating the fine job she's done was past manager, Mrs. Edna Colfield.

Dance classes swing at North YMCA

Cha-cha, discoteque, swing, merenge, and many, are many more, dance steps for you to enjoy and master at the North Baltimore YMCA's adult dance class.

Milton and Mary Smith are instructors. Groups are limited to 20 persons and meet at 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

The Smiths have been teaching dance classes in Baltimore for the past 15 years at schools, clubs and in their own studios. Both are members of the N. Y. state Chapter, Dance Educators of America, Dance Masters of America and numerous other professional societies. Both serve frequently as judges of dancing contests and exhibitions.

Metal crafts exhibition at Bowie

An exhibition of metal work by Evangeline J. Montgomery will open to the public in the "Little Gallery" at Bowie State College — Science Building, room 105 — with a reception Wednesday, Feb. 14, from 5 to 9 p.m. The Exhibition will stay on through Wednesday, Feb. 28, Monday thru Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The metal crafts exhibition will feature, along other things, pendants, rings, bronze boxes, incense burners, and ceremonial cups that have finished look of landscapes, skylines, water, and tree textures. Made of gold or silver, copper or brass with enamel, they are cast, fused and forged.

Describing her work, Mrs. Montogomery noted "I use my enamels as a painter uses his paints ... My inspiration comes from nature first and second from the twisted rubble and discarded forms left by man against the beautiful forms of nature ... I prefer to create art that is functional rather than art that is only decorative."

Mrs. Montgomery is a graduate in Metal Arts at California State University in Los Angeles and a former student of metalsmither Hudson Roysher. She is presently an Ethnic Art Consultant to the Oakland Museum.

Her work has been presented at the 1972 San Francisco Annual Art Festival, the University of Southern Illinois "Black Existence", the University of West Floridia "Art by Black Artist", DePauw University "Afro-American Art Exhibit", the 10th Annual Collection of Arts, Los Angeles, 1972.

Her "One Man Show" at Bowie is one of her most comprehensive exhibitions. It includes some photographs which, she said, "are inspiration for my work — people, nature, happenings." The photographs are mostly in color.

and the scene ended. Each culture lived happier ever after doing their own thing.

The parable of this scene seemed to be that individuals can attempt to become totally assimilated into other cultures, but generally find happiness and success in their own National Culture.

(Cuff Note: This was a play and is not necessarily true, but it is quite heavy — think about it.)

The last scene, a personal search for the exit from a Neverland into reality. The dancers finally realize that Neverland was only a fantasy world; their imagination had reached a little too far and they wanted to come back into a world of reality.

Mrs. Anne Allen was the artistic director; John Taylor, associate director.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

"I know what pleasure is, for I have done good work."

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

curtain to open to see their over 75 children perform. The number including the dancers, actors and singers included the first and second company.

There were many scenes in the program such as, a ballet student's Neverland; The Never Neverland Super Bowl, an escape to an ever, never, ever, NEverland, but the most impressive scenes in my opinion were the black experience scene and a search for the exit from Neverland.

NEVERLAND

Neverland, the land of make believe, a land where everyone could feel free to do as they please. The dancers went through many changes to get the fantastic world. For instance, in the black experience scene, there a character named Captain Hook, who always gave out false values to children. Along came seven black dancers on their way to the mythical world. They were stopped by this character Captain Hook, who made them believe that they could join the white dancers and dance better then they could. He gave them cosmetics, ballet shoes. . .

The black dancers tried it, but they were not wanted, and were pushed out of the white group. Very disappointed were th pretty black dancers. They decided that they would go back into their own culture, but the Africans would not accep them back.

Finally, John Taylor playing the part of Peter Pan, was able to bring them back into their own culture,
