investigating office and or the U.S. Attorney's office, leaking information to the daily newspapers.

"The information was printed for over a month without any name.

"My client heard and came to my office. I spoke to U.S. Attorney Frank Brocato. I said if he was interested in Del. Turk Scott, I would surrender him at any time.

"He had no cause to flee. He is innocent of any of the charges.

SCENE CREATED

"Brocato said he'd call me. I tried him two or three other times. I called him against.

"Then, not only does he not call me and allow my client to surrender himself but he creates a scene at the State Legislature involving the Governor of the state of Maryland and striking at the separation of state and Federal rights.

"When the General Assembly is in session, the Maryland State Police have a duty to act on the instructions of the Speaker of the House to maintain dignity and order in the Legislative Sessions.

"Obviously, to have the U. S. Marshals and investigators hanging around in the halls, threatening to arrest a legislator is undignified and abusive.

PERPETUATED BY THE GOVERNMENT

"This was perpetuated by the Federal government to create the greatest degree of publicity.

"I say this explosive manner is due to U.S. Attorney George Beall trying to run as governor of Maryland.

MORE

"To set a bail of $30,000 (which the U.S. attorney says is modest) for a person who is a member of the State Legislature and a property owner, is further injustice.

"There is no indication he will flee the jurisdiction. He is a property owner.

"Knowing the Federal government was gunning for him, he stayed to submit himself to the judicial process.

"I feel the court, upon advice of the U.S. attorney, is in abuse of descretion or ill-advised on the $30,000 bail.

"If Del. Scott gets 1,000 years or not, it is an outrage upon society for the government to act so badly."

ARREST IN NATIONWIDE SPOTLIGHT

Mr. Kandel's statement came after an associate, Milton Rothstein stood by in Federal Court Tuesday morning to represent Scott. Mr. Kandel was out of town on another case.

During the bail hearing, Federal Judge Joseph Young failed to lower the sum below $30,000 and Mr. Scott went to City Jail.

The arrest of Del Scott has attracted nationwide attention.

The Maryland General Assembly was in the last of a double session near midnight when U.S. marshals detained Mr. Scott outside the State House.

Lawmakers inside report Del. Scott was in session when he was informed arrest was near. They state when he went outside an unprecedented group of newspaper people and photographers ran outside behind him.

Del. Scott's resident is in the heart of Baltimore, a downtown highrise apartment building not far from the old Post Office building, where the U.S. courts and the marshal's offices are located.

PIGGY IN PROTECTIVE CUSTODY

He has attended sessions of the General Assembly the past month and previously with some absences.

The indictments handed down by a special Federal grand jury claim Scott was involved in a conspiracy to move "millions of dollars of heroin" from New York to Baltimore.

An accused co-conspirator, also indicted is Charles (Peggy) Sedgewick, 31, 4636 Rokeby Rd., a longshoreman, who has not been arrested but is being in "protective custody," as a government witness.

What's on Mandel's mind in Scott case?

By FLETCHER ROBERTS
AFRO Annapolis Bureau

ANNAPOLIS — Having sniffed about the capital lawns all of 82 days like a pack of long-denied pedigrees, the midnight 'cops and robbers' arrest of a black Baltimore lawmaker may well have satisfied the appetites, if momentarily, of the corps of news hounds properly kenneled in the State House basement.

Like unweaned puppies, they seem contented with 'mother's milk' while the scent of prime beef lingers in the air.

To allegations that it appeared the Governor was now attempting to "wiggle out from behind 'Turk Scott' (Del. James A. Scott, D., 2nd Baltimore)," Thomas Burden, Mandel's assistant press secretary, reported the now familiar chorus.

According to the state constitution, he said, the governor had no choice.

There is no way a name can be rejected or not submitted to the General Assembly once the State Central Committee has acted, he continued.

With such protection assured him (Mandel) on 'Constitutional grounds', the subsequent disclosure that Mandel had refused several years ago to appoint Mr. Scott to a lesser political office (the city liquor board) seemed surprising. Mr. Burden snapped in reply the announcement had come after reporters had made inquiries.

Earlier in the week, a spokesman for the governor indicated that a routine police check into the background of Mr. Scott conducted in 1971, while revealing no criminal activity, had resulted in the governor's refusal to appoint him to the liquor board post.

These actions bringing to mind yet another unanswered question—a question now being asked by numerous Second District Democrats who previously supported Mr. Scott's appointment to the House of Delegates: If the Governor had such grave reservations about Mr. Scott two years ago, why weren't these doubts brought to light again more recently?

Champagne party to end '73 Session?

The 1973 session of the Maryland General Assembly will close Monday, April 9, at 12 midnight.

By law, the Governor may extend the assembly an additional 30 days whenever necessary, though few observers believe this year's schedule will be prolonged.

Rumors being circulated in the state capital by those in the know that an all night 'champagne party' immediately following Monday's adjournment, is already in the workings.

A GOOD CITIZEN is registered and prepared to VOTE. Do so today at Supervisors of Election, Fayette and Gay St. Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Friends offer bail money, rally to support accused legislator

The AFRO learned Thursday that friends and fellow Maryland legislators of all races are helping raise bail money for the accused Delegate James (Turk) Scott.

One lawmaker said, "We couldn't take this laying down. Nobody could, the way he has been run down like a dog. We have never seen anything like it in life."

Speaking for Del. Scott most firmly was State Senator Robert Dalton who is a fellow Second District, Baltimore legislator of the accused man.

Sen. Dalton bitterly assailed the white press for its handling the story as "clearly unfair and unjust."

Sen. Dalton accents "a man is innocent until proven guilty."

The theme is reflected in statements by other Baltimore lawmakers including City Councilwoman Victorine Adams, House of Delegates members Walter Dean (D-5), Joseph A. Chester (D-2) and John Douglass (D-2).

INDICTED

An 8-count Federal indictment claims Del. Scott conspired in 1970, 1971 and 1972 to move millions of dollars of heroin from New York to Baltimore.

He remained in City Jail from arraignment last Tuesday morning unable to pay the $30,000 bail set by the government.

Until then Del. Scott's name remained rumor and unmentioned in a daily newspaper's month-long campaign to obtain indictment after Gov. Marvin Mandel refused to affirm anything saying, "Let the newspaper do its own dirty work."

CRY CRUCIFIXON

Following newspaper stories referring to the indictment as if the legislator were guilty without trial, citizens and lawmakers arose with the words, "They're crucifying him."

SEN. DALTON

Senator Dalton says, "I am a firm believer that a man is innocent until proven guilty.

"I think very often when black people are accused of something which more or less is rumor, already they are more anxious to say he is guilty before he is given a hearing.

"Del. James Turk Scott has been a man as long as I have been knowing him, since 1968 when he joined the Eastside Democratic Organization.

"He has been very active in the community and served on the board for the Champ organization for recreation for young people throughout the city.

"He ran for the House of Delegates on my ticket in 1970 called the Clark-Dalton Team.

"During the course of campaigning in 1970, knowing community people, if there had been anything of this sort, it would have come out.

RESPECTED

"The time that I have been knowing Mr. Scott, as an insurance agent and as a bail bondsman and known as a businessman, he was respected by all people and well-liked.

"An organization is like a church. We are open to anyone interested in politics. We do not run any records.

"We have no way of checking anybody's previous record. We take people at face value and what the community thinks of them.

"He has proven without a shadow of a doubt that he has been a man community people thought well of.

"A daily newspaper said he has been under investigation eight years by the Federal government and state agencies supposedly on a paroll.

How in the world do they think community people can look at a person and judge things that would be impossible?

HEARSAY

"I think as a race of people, we should not judge people on hearsay. We should leave it to the court or the jury to decide whether a man is innocent or guilty.

"And the sad part about it, even if the man is innocent, they have ruined his reputation for life.

"These are the members of the State Central Committee who recommend him: Mrs. Hattie Harrison, City Councilman Robert Douglass, Samuel Lloyd, Samuel Wright, Mrs. Kate O'Ferrell Freeman, Mrs. Patsy Garland, Joe Robinson and City Councilman Robert Fitzpatrick.

UNANIMOUS

"It was carried in the newspapers of this vacancy.

"A hearing was held at Dunbar High School and there were several candidates interviewed. The vote came out unanimous for James Turk Scott.

"We as a race of people should stop stepping on people when they are down until we find out whether there is guilt or not."

DEL. DEAN

Del. Walter Dean (D-5) Baltimore City states, "I am appalled with the way the Turk Scott case has been handled. The legislator should have been given the courtesy and any benefit that accrues. It is my desire that the facts be brought to light and this case will be resolved in the judicial manner."

CITY COUNCILWOMAN ADAMS

Baltimore City Councilwoman Victorine Adams states: "I certainly would say a man is innocent until proven guilty. This is the hinge upon which our judicial system rests.

"We certainly do not want anyone tried for any reason except through the courts."

DEL. JOSEPH CHESTER

Del. Joseph A. Chester (D-2) "I feel that every man and woman indicted by either Federal or state grand juries for any cause whatsoever, neither one is ever guilty until given a fair trial.

"They must be completely tried by judge or jury.

"At this point, we can not say Del. Scott is guilty until the completion of his trial.

"I feel also if the State Central Committee and the Eastside Democratic Club which controls the State Central Committee, if they had made a complete investigation of perspective candidates, this could have been avoided.

NO BLAME ON SCOTT

"Therefore, I do not blame Del. Scott. I place the blame completely on the State Central Committee and the Eastside Democratic Club.

"I feel this is a disgrace to the citizens of our Second District for such an organization to call themselves representatives of this great district of ours.

"The district deserves better than this.

"We will not tolerate this type of representation through this organization.

"At the next election the people should examine each and every candidate.

NEW ERA GROUP

"My organization, the New Era Democratic Club, 10 years old and with some 700 members, is expected to give the kind of representation the people deserve.

"My slate for the 1974 election includes Titus Garnett for state senator; Walter Brooks and Mrs. Pat McDaniels, for the House and Del. Joseph A. Chester for relection to the House.

"We feel that these are the type of people the 2nd District can put their faith and trust in.

"I interceded through Gov. Mandel, House Speaker Thomas H. Lowe and the State Central Committee for Mrs. Thelma Adams to succeed her deceased husband, Floyd Adams.

"But, she was withdrawn from the list of nominations."

DEL. JOHN DOUGLASS

Del. John Douglass (D-2) states, "I am deeply disturbed by these developments which serve to further shake public confidence in public officials.

Del. Scott and I have been members of the same organization (EDO) for three or four years. My dealings with him were mostly political. I didn't know much about his personal life.

"He was a hard worker. I never had any idea about any involvement in narcotics."

have another year to plan are white.

3. All schools which have been excluded from a cluster are predominately white.

4. Cluster No. 5 of the Northwest Area submitted its minority report because of financial difficulty that would arise without subsidy. Since there is no universal tuition plan, the financial problem still exists, but in greater dimension.

Catholic education for black as it presently exists has been undermined.

In order to correct the present inequities and lack of uniformity within the diocesan plan, the group demands the following.

1. That all the schools in the black neighborhood remain open or an equal number of schools in the white neighborhoods be closed.

2. That implementation of the cluster plan be delayed for one year to allow for planning by all schools.

3. That parental involvement be considered a necessity rather than a luxury in this planning.

Del. Scott gets out on bail

Judge Joseph Young refused on Thursday to lower the bail of Del. James Aubrey (Turk) Scott in Federal Court.

Del. Scott, a member of the State Legislature is suspected of dope trafficking. He was arrested Monday night around 11:30 in Annapolis where he was attending sessions of the Legislature.

However, the defendant met the bail and was released from City Jail Thursday.

The hearing was scheduled to began at 11 a.m. but did not start until 12 noon because the defendant was late arriving from City Jail.

Highlighting the 30-minute hearing, Nelson Kandel, defense attorney, told the court "The defendant is 48 years old and has no prior record except for a non payment of a sales tax in Washington.

"The defendant has been subject to the most prejudical publicity before indictment and before arrest. It did not have to be that way, your honor.

"For the last two or three months, the defendant has been aware that he was the focus of the scandal in the press and other media.

"My client called me early (12:30) that morning telling me he was arrested leaving the state legislature. There is no physical evidence obtained against my client.

"Why? For two months perhaps the news media was being furnished information. No indictment was brought, it only leads me to believe the government's case is weak.

"The district court in the state of Maryland had to be aware of it if it read the news media."

Del. Scott showed no emotion during the time his attorney was speaking. He continued to hold his head down. Mr. Scott was dressed in the same clothing that he wore on Monday to Federal Court.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Francis S. Brocato, told the jurist "The bail is extremely modest, $30,000 is not high. When we deal with bail, we should take into consideration the circumstances of the defendant.

"A $30,000 bail is a very low bail. Mr. Scott has a 72 Cadillac he drives but it is not in his name."

Mr. Brocato asked John McCauley, Assistant Chief of Intelligence Division of Internal Revenue Service to testify to the major source of Mr. Scott's 1971 income tax.

Mr. McCauley told the court "The major source of income of his 1971 tax was gambling income. The amount was $21,000. Mr. Kandel asked Mr. McCauley "Is there anything there that says he owed the government $4,000 income tax?"

Mr. McCauley answered "I was testifying to something I heard over the phone. Mr. Scott's adjusted gross net income for 1971 was $18,980."

Mr. Kandel told the court he has filed a motion to dismiss the indictment because of the news media. "It will deny Mr. Scott a fair and speedy trial after what has been going on in the media. What the gentleman said from U.S. Internal Revenue an $18,000 income does not put him into any category."

Judge Young stated, "This is a multi count against Mr. Scott. The bail must be a reasonable one. I am satisfy with the bail. The amount will not be reduced. The motion will be denied."

Sgt. Johnson honored here

Local Air Force Recruiter Technical Sgt. Joe Johnson was recently honored as the top air force recruiter for the fourth quarter of 1972, for the metropolitan Baltimore area. Sgt. Johnson is assigned to the 26 S. Howard St. Office.

Mandel says it's unfair

At a Thursday press conference Governor Mandel stated, "This a criminal case and the man is charged with a criminal offense. I will not answer any more questions about it.

"You (the news media) are being unfair to a man who has been charged with a crime. When the case is over I'll answer any questions you have."

Delegate Turk Scott, a businessman, well-liked in the Eastside community

Maryland State Senator Robert Dalton, head of the Eastside Democratic Organization, a close friend of Delegate James A. (Turk) Scott, describes the accused legislator thus:

"Turk is a businessman, reared in Washington. His people (the Fraziers) have a funeral home. He is divorced. He has a very fine daughter in college.

"He is a person that minds his own business. He is well-liked and respected by everybody. He has been an insurance executive, real estate broker and at one time had a tailor shop.

"He is treasurer of the Eastside Democratic Organization, and, a very active member.

People judge people on their own merits. He is one of the finest in our community. When we gave out Christmas baskets, he was always a part of it.

"We as black legislators should be very careful what we say about one another. We should let the courts be the judge. Until then, a man is innocent under the Democratic system of justice in this country."

City's 1st merger of black, white churches

By BRENDA J. WRIGHT

Black and white members of a Lutheran congregation sat shoulder-to-shoulder and sang side-by-side Sunday, for the first time as two Baltimore churches became one.

The long, narrow columnlined chapel of Our Savior Lutheran Church, 33rd St. and The Alameda, was filled with almost 400 members Sunday, as Our Savior merged with St. Matthew Lutheran Church, formerly of 1901 Druid Hill Ave.

The special Sunday service celebrated the merger after one and a half years of discussions after St. Matthew formed a committee to investigate the possible relocation of the church.

The members of St. Matthew gathered for its last service in the Druid Hill Ave. building Sunday at 11 a.m. The Rev. David L. Luecke, D. Rel., pastor of St. John Lutheran Church, Columbia, Md., was the guest speaker.

More than 100 members of St. Matthew formed a procession after the service and travelled to Our Savior for their first service in the new church. Enroute to the church they stopped at the Martin Luther statue at Montebello Lake where they palced a wreath in memory of their departed members.

Arriving at the church in the downpour of rain, they joined other members of Our Savior for the celebration service.

Until Sunday, St. Matthew was a predominantly black church with about 110 members and Our Savior was predominantly white with 325 members.

Among those attending the service was Mrs. Margaret Campbell, representing the mayor's office. "Although it's a rainy day outside, the sun in shining in here," Mrs. Campbell began as she stood before the congregation.

She presented the officials of the church with a proclamation from the mayor designating April 1, as "Our Savior and St. Matthew Church Day."

In part the proclamation read, "Whereas Our Savior and St. Matthew are merging for the purpose of bringing a greater Christian ministry to people of Baltimore," the mayor urged "the people of Baltimore to give proper recognition to this historical merger of these two congregations."

Guest speaker at the service was the Rev. Karl E. Lutze, executive secretary of the Lutheran Human Relations Association of America. In his 30-minute speech, he praised the members of the two churches for their decision to merg and called them "saints of God, salt of the earth and the light of the world."

"Do not think that this is something little that you do; it is something great," the Rev. Mr. Lutze added.

Following the sermon the church officials stood at the flower-covered altar and signed the merger agreement.

As they returned to their seats and the congregation began to sing, the sun appeared for the first time in 24 hours. The members began to look around and comment, "A new birth and the sun is shining."

The first service of the new Our Savior Lutheran Church ended with the sun shining on the members.

The Rev. Erwin Prange, pastor of the former St. Matthew, and the Rev. Robert W. Metzger, pastor of Our Savior, have been extended terminal calls as joint pastors of the new Our Savior Lutheran Church.

Serving on the St. Matthew Merger Committee were: James Gray, chairman; William Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. William Cutis and Mrs. Marion Dixon.

Members of Our Savior's committee were: Michael Dausch, III, chairman; Thomas McGinn, Sr., Miss Dadell Ruths, Brooke Lerch, Mrs. Judith Volkman, Michale Hagbusch, Donald Wicke, John Hofmeister and the late George C. Plotter.

Hikes consultants' fee on X-way to $500,000

Last month, the Board of Estimates agreed to spend about $400,000 on a consultant to study the noise and pollution effects of the proposed 3 A expressway system. The price now has jumped to $500,000.

The extra $118,000 supposedly was left out of the original request inadvertantly. It is to pay for subcontracts to other con sultants.

Comptroller Hyman Pressman, who generally distrusts consultants, refused to vote for what he called "consultants' consultants."

The Board also approved an advance of $105,00 to the Legal Aid Bureau to cover costs for April and May in its operation of Community Action Agency (CAA sponsored) Legal Services to the Poor Program.

The loan is expected to be reimbursed when grant funds arrive from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). CAA has received assurance the funds are coming.

The grant will cover the period of April 1 to September 30. The federal share is $252,000, and the city contribution is $28,0[illegible]

Also, the Board over Mr. Pressman's 'No' votes decided to pay convention trips for CAA Director Lenwood Ivey and School Superintendent Dr. Roland Patterson.

Mr. Ivey will have $349 for a Community Development Conference in St. Louis, Mo., April 8-12.

Dr. Patterson will have $426 to go to sunny Pheonix, Ariz., for the Large Cities Superintendents Conference, April 11-14.

'Sensational news created by government'

A motion to dismiss indictments filed Thursday before Judge Joseph Young by Nelson R. Kandel, attorney, says:

Comes now the Defendant, James A. Scott, by and through his Attorney, Nelson R. Kandel, and moves this Honorable Court, pursuant to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, to enter an Order dismissing the indictments filed herein, on the grounds that failure of the U.S. Attorney and other agents of his office to protect him from inherently prejudicial publicity which saturated this community depriving defendant of any possibility of a fair trial consistent with due process. In support of this Motion, defendant respectfully represents as follows:

1. The publicity generated from the investigation and news leakage by the U.S. Government has diverted the very purpose of the Court system which is supposed to adjudicate controversies, in calmness and solemnity according to legal procedure and not by publicity causing incidents. And that information has been leaked to the news media by the government to cause sensationalism and to mold public opinion.

2. That the means of arrest and surrounding circumstances utilized the greatest possible news-coverage and sensationalism. And that the attorney for defendant was given assurances that if an indictment was returned, the defendant would have an opportunity to appear and submit himself to arrest, in order not to disrupt the legislative process of Maryland and to minimize the impact on news coverage.

3. Due process requires that accused receive trial by impartial jury free from outside influences. This right afforded to defendant by the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been violated by the Government and in particular, the U.S. Attorney, granting interview (s) with reporter (s) from The Evening Sun and other news media.

4. That the U.S. Government has done nothing to avert publicity that threatened fairness of judicial process including trial.

5. Collaboration between government and press, even if tacit, affecting fairness of a criminal trial is subject to regulation by the Court and in this case amounts to a denial of due process afforded defendant.

6. The District Court for months prior to indictment was aware or should have been aware that adverse and prejudicial publicity was denying defendant of a fair trial consistent with due process and failed to protect defendant from publicity weighed against the accused.

7. This Court failed to take steps by rules and regulations that would protect its processes from prejudicial outside interferences, and neither prosecutors nor enforcement officers coming under jurisdiction of this Court should be permitted to frustrate its function.

WHEREFORE, the premises considered, defendant prays:

1. That an evidentiary hearing be conducted in this case on the defendant's Motion to Dismiss Indictments.

2. That this Court enter an Order dismissing the indictments charging defendant with said crimes.

3. And for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and proper.
