By the way...

by Joe Black

As we work our way into the 70's, we find ourselves working into a decade of meaningful change.

And one of the most meaningful changes that has developed, so far, is the increasing enrollment of Black youth in colleges and universities.

A giant step in the right direction for all of us. Because the better educated Blacks become, the better the opportunities for higher paying jobs, economic freedom, and power.

But education should include Black history and culture. And too often today, too many of our young people are bypassing the Black universities, where they can be exposed to this important heritage, to enroll in white institutions.

Are our students' egos leading them to other places, to achieve notoriety through militance? Have our Black colleges become unfashionable?

I sincerely hope not. And now is the time to make sure not.

Now is the time for Black communities to earnestly support our colleges. Enhance them. Aid them where necessary.

There is a solid need for these schools. They can effectively reinforce a Black student's identity. They can also make it possible for more inner-city educated Black youths to enroll in college.

If we are to continue making meaningful changes for Blacks, it's time to change our minds about Black colleges.

Morgan gridder to play in Coaches All-'A' game

Ron Mayo, Morgan State's 6-3, 225-pound tight end, has been selected to play in the Coaches All-America Game in Lubbock, Texas in the latter part of July.

Mayo was a seventh round draft pick of the Houston Oilers this year and will become the second Bear to play in the annual contest. Carlton Dabney, a number one draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons in 1968, was the first.

A former Spingarn (D.C.) graduate, Mayo was selected to participate in the contest by members of the American Coaches Association, and will be the only tight end on the East Squad.

"Not only is he one of the outstanding tight ends in the United States," remarked Bear mentor Earl Banks, "but he's one of the most versatile.

"In a game like this, with only 26 or 30 guys on a squad, not only must each guy have an abundance of ability, but he has to have versatility as well."

In addition to being an above — average receiver and blocker, Mayo kicks off, kicks extra points and field goals with either foot! On several occasions, he has even snapped for punts.

The East-West squads will be made public in their entirety at a later date.

Youth center opens

BILL RHODEN

A unique juvenile rehabilitation center was officially opened last Tuesday and promises to be more than just a fleeting attempt at helping delinquent teenagers get back on the "right track."

The Youth Service Center, (1600 W. North Avenue), is a non-residential program for 100 juvenile offenders, both male and female who are in need of specialized treatment services, more intense than those provided on Probation or Aftercare, yet are judged capable of living in the community during their involvement in the program.

The Youth Center is the only one of its kind in Baltimore and, if successful, could become a model after which other agencies could be patterned.

"The success of this program," a sportsman says, "means more than the renewal of the program, it means the development of other such center throughout the city."

The center serves approximately 100 youngsters per day, some of whom come from as far away as Arundel, Maryland, and Baltimore County.

Theoretically, all youths, upon a positive termination from the Center Program, will be placed in a job commensurate with his talents.

Blacks lead batting races

Going into the weekend activity, black athletes were leading the batting races in both the American and National leagues.

Pat Kelly, despite what the name implies, is the younger brother of Cleveland Browns fullback Leroy Kelly. He was also the leading hitter for the fourth straight week in the AL.

Kelly's sparkling .400 average had him sporting a 54-point advantage over Kansas City's Ed Kirkpatrick, and a 64-point bulge on his teammate, Dick Allen, the 1972 MVP of the Chicago White Sox.

In the NL, Davey Lopes and Manny Mota, both of the Los Angeles Dodgers, had the two highest averages at .370 and .363, respectively. But the legitimate leader was Houston's Bob Watson, who had been to the plate 50 times more frequently for his .355 mark.

Joe Morgan, having another sparkling year for the Reds, and flashy Cesar Cedeno of Houston, were sixth and seventh in the torrid race.

NFP*

NFP is Navy jargon for the NUCLEAR FIELD PROGRAM. It covers a wide range of technical specialities, all of which require a high level of skill and training. No, you don't have to know thing one about nuclear physics to qualify for the Navy NFP! What you must have is your high school diploma, or GED certificate, skill in math and science, and the willingness to tackle approximately two-years of the most interesting and demanding training the Navy can provide.

This training is no breeze, so don't expect it to be easy—but the challenge will make your future a whole lot brighter—in or after the Navy.

At the completion of your training you will take your place in the Navy's nuclear power program as a highly trained, well paid nuclear propulsion specialist. For complete information call toll-free anytime: 800-841-8000 (in Georgia call 800-342-5855) or mail in this coupon today.

The Navy needs the right people for its NUCLEAR FIELD PROGRAM—it could be you . . .

Barbers' group gives hair styling seminar

The Barber Shop Owners Association of Greater Baltimore held a barbers seminar March 29 at Rogers Beauty and Barber Supply to train young barbers in the latest barbering techniques, such as giving the popular Afro "bush" hairstyle.

The seminar was attended by 50 young barbers from all over the city and was conducted by Lawrence Hall, the 1970 International Hair Styling Champion and Roger Sanders of Rogers Beauty and Barber Supply.

Mr. Hall gave two demonstrations on how to properly give "blow ups" for the Afro bush, using a hot air and relaxer method.

He completed the styling by shaping the hair into a well-groomed form.

Mr. Rogers lectured about how to sell more hair products to customers and gave a breakdown of many of the chemicals that barbers are now using.

He further stated that customers should buy hair products from their barber, as he is best qualified to recommend the right products for the hair because he is familiar with the customer.

Mr. Rogers warned "The customer should not try to use chemicals on his hair.

"Unless the hair is properly treated, it will fall out and break up."

* * *

Mr. Hall added that barbers must learn how to give the styles the public is asking for and must get additional training so that the customer's hair isn't damaged with the chemicals used in the styling.

Herman L. Saunders, Sr., president of the association, told the AFRO the group was three months old and plans to give additional seminars covering other phases of the barbering profession to upgrade barbers.

The other association officers are Phillip L. Brown, treasurer; and Samuel E. Spriggs, secretary.

H. S. students visit AFRO

A group of 25 students from Forest Park High School visited the AFRO offices Tuesday to view the operation of a major metropolitan newspaper.

Accompanying the students on the field trip were two teacher-champerones, Miss Doris Browning and her assistant Wayne Garrison.

"These may be the most important tips I've ever given you."

They're tips from my new BP commercials. Tips that can save you money . . . and gasoline. And that's why they're so important. Because saving gasoline is more important than ever before. As you've probably heard, there's an energy shortage. The sources and supplies of energy, like gasoline, aren't unlimited. So try to use these, and all my other tips. They'll save you money . . . and conserve gasoline.

BP gasoline is designed for good performance and good mileage. And more than ever, it's too good to waste.

BP

Get that tune-up. When your car needs a tune-up, it can waste up to 20% of every tankful of gasoline. The BP Miser's tip is: Don't put off getting that tune-up.

Don't jack rabbit start. Jack rabbit starts can waste gasoline. Do it enough and you can waste 10% of your gasoline. The BP Miser's tip is: Start slow and smooth.

Inflate your tires. Underinflated tires cause increased road contact and rolling resistance. So your engine works harder, and can waste up to 5% of your gasoline. The BP Miser's tip is: Keep your tires properly inflated.
