New Trinity Church holds Woman's Day

The women of New Trinity Church celebrated their 12th Annual Women's Day Sunday, with their special guests, the Rev. Harold G. Nixon, State Senator Verda F. Welcome and City Councilwoman Mary B. Adams.

The Rev. Mr. Nixon, introduced by Sen. Welcome, spoke to the audience of about 100 at the morning service from the 23rd Psalm.

A retired psychiatric chaplain of the ew York State Training School for Girls, the well-known minister added that he encouraged churches to aid and develop follow-up programs for the discharged students of training schools.

A recipient of the Distinguished AFRO American Newspaper Award in 1950 for public service, the Rev. Mr. Nixon has been active in many religious, educational and civic groups.

In 1947, he founded the New Life Presbyterian Church where he pastored until 1956. The minister was also listed in Who's Who in Colored America.

Also attending the service was his wife, Mrs. Sanoma De Beal Nixon, professor of Social Administratin at the State University of New York, Albany.

Mrs. Mary B. Adams, councilwoman of the fourth Democratic district, was guest speaker at the afternoon service.

Others participating in Sunday programs were: Elder Matthew D. Norton, founder and pastor of New Trinity; the Rev. Mrs. Maggie L. Norton, Cutor; and the Rev. Mrs. Annie Woods, assistant pastor.

Others were: Mesdames Beverly Jones, Dorothy Johnson, Ellen Pearson, Asleen Wilson, Vick Potts Inez Martin, Vicia Miller and Cynthia Martin.

Dr. Helen Edmonds at Sharp St. Memorial

About 300 members and friends of Sharp Street United Methodist Church attended its annual Women's Day Service Sunday to hear Dr. Helen G. Edmonds dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at North Carolina Central University.

The renown speaker, a 1932 graduate of Morgan State College, Spoke on the theme: "Do You Witness in His Favor?" Introduced by Mrs. Sallie Fletcher, she was described as "responibly involved in the social, political and educational life."

"Do you witness for the right as God gives you the light to see that right?" the eloquent speaker asked the attentive audience.

Focusing on today's youth, Dr. Edmonds stated, "The day is over for the shouting, the day is over for the confrontation." She added that young people should now be "sitting in" at libraries, biology and chemistry labs, and business and law schools.

Dr. Edmonds' accomplishments include writing and producing four historical pageants, a United States delegate to the Eighth National Conference of the U.S. Commission on UNESCO, national president of the Links, Inc., life member of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and membership in the American Historical Association of College Deans and Registrars.

She has also traveled and studied extensively. She received her Masters and Ph.D. degrees from Ohio State University.

Mrs. Hazel M. Phillips presided at the morning service. Also participating were: the Rev. Richard G. Clifford, pastor, Mrs. Myrtle Wake, Mrs. Frances Tillman and Morris C. Queen, minister of music.

Others were: Mesdames Esther Jackson, Louise Dennis, Augusta Smith, Lillian Gordon, Lottie Cale, Marjorie Bradley and Rena Irwin.

On Sunday's sick and shut-in list were Veris Roberts Lee, Dr. B.M Christmas and James Thomas.

'You will never believe me, but I'm almost speechless...'

'You will never believe me, but I am almost speechless.'

This was the way the Rt. Rev. Mr. Edward G. Carroll, class of 1930, acknowledged a standing ovation from the Morgan State College Alumni Association Saturday evening at the Baltimore Hilton Hotel.

Now prelate of United Methodist Church's New England Conference, Baltimore-born and reared Bishop Carroll kept the 500 guests in laughter as he told stories and anecdotes about his college days.

The audience included alumni from all over the U.S., as well as family members and friends, most vocal of whom was a toddler-grandson, Edward Gonzales Carroll 3rd.

* * *

The alumni group's 33rd annual reunion citation went to Bishop Carroll for what Dr. Edward N. Wilson, class of '21, called his 'determination' and success in spearheading integration in the church and for his humbleness despite his elevation to the church's highest office.

Dr. Wilson, registrar-emeritus of Morgan, was chairman of the committee which selected the honoree. He noted his contributions are immortalized on the campus of Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington where the new men's dorm bears his name.

* * *

After mentioning persons in the audience and recalling fond association with them, Bishop Carroll struck this serious note:

"I want to say that with deep gratitude, I accept an honor which I really don't feel I have earned, but I feel that somehow there has been stamped upon me the spirit and the genius of a great college.

"I remember reading about one of my late former colleagues, Bishop Francis McConnell, when he was going to a prep school. He was going up to be interviewed by the headmaster of this school.

"He went with fear and trepidation led by his father. He talked with the headmaster and he was quite sure that he didn't measure up to the interview.

"But, he noticed that when the students of this prep school would go by, the headmaster would tip his hat to them. After the interview and they were about to go, the headmaster got up and tipped his hat to Francis.

Bishop Carroll continued: "So Francis said, Why are you tipping your hat to me? I'm not a student. I doubt whether I am going to get in, the way I feel now. He said, "I salute you because of what we know you will become."

"I feel that Morgan saluted me, not so much for the greatness in me. I was not a football star from New Jersey, that Ed Hurtt would love to have on the team. I just did make cheer leader. (laughter).

"I think the college saw in me as in any student a person capable of becoming worthy of the name of a Morganite.

"And so I want to salute Morgan not just for this honor, but for the beginning of a confidence that they had in me as well as other students as someone they could salute who would become somebody who could carry on the tradition of this college, that must infuse itself not only into Baltimore, but into the very moral fiber of this country and the world. I am deeply grateful, and I want to thank you.

At his side as he spoke was Bishop Carroll's wife, the former Phenola Valentine, also a Morgan graduate and a Baltimorean. They met and courted while in college.

Other family members present were daughter, Nanci, well-known singer who recently gave a concert tour abroad; son, Edward Gonzales Carroll Jr., and his wife, Beatrice; and their son, Edward 3rd, all of N.Y. and Mass.

Also, sister-in-law and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spencer, (Marjorie); brother-in-law and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Valentine, (Courtney), all of Baltimore.

A standing ovation also went to the evening's entertainers.

The Morgan State College Choir under the direction of Nathan Carter dedicated to Bishop Carroll. "I've Got Plenty of Nothing," "Summertime," and "I'm on My Way." The soloists were Joseph Pearson baritone, and Jocelyn Hall, soprano. At the piano was a recent graduate, Herbrette Clinton.

There was also sustained applause for excerpts from "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope," by the college's musical theatre workshop.

The 25 year awards for meritorious service, were announced by Jerry Jackson of '72, newly elected president of the M. J. Naylor Chapter of the alumni association.

The recipients were: Dr. Roger Kenton Williams, Mrs. Alice Cook Woodson, Thomas Bedward Burke, and Sandy Jean McIntyre II.

In response, Dr. Williams said: "I cannot tell you how swiftly these twenty-five years have passed. Of all the years of my life, I hold those the most pleasant and serviceable. I am deeply honored. Thank you."

Mr. McIntyre, is an associate professor of foreign languages who was recently named to the rank of knight by the government of France, received the citation during the program.

John W. Waters, class of '51, announced life membership honorees as follows: Dr. Herman Brown, Mrs. Martha Patterson Allen, John H. Stevenson Jr., and Mrs. Rose Tyson Kinney.

Morgan president, Dr. King V. Cheek who was seated at the head table with Mrs. Cheek, told the group:

"You have been witnesses this evening to some of the strengths of Morgan State College, as evidenced in the students who have appeared before you. These are our finest. We are proud of them.

"You also, through your actions, through your deeds, and through the strengths of your commitments, represent so much of what is valuable for our college. At a time when the values of cherished institutions are challenged, the justification or validation of our colleges is found in the impact they have had and continue to have upon the individual, personal lives of our students.

"Thus, the Alumni of Morgan State College represent and symbolize and validate the worth of what we are.

"You are ours and society's vital resource."

Mrs. Jacqueline J. Hall, '44, was a delightful mistress of ceremonies. Other program participants: Earl Lawrence, 'class of '73; Miss Lisa Cooper, class of Martha Patterson Allen, '76; John W. Patterson, '61, executive director of alumni affairs; and Dr. Howard Cornish, director, Morgan Christian Center, who said the prayers.

Reunion classes represented and introduced were: 1898, 1903, 1908, 1913, 1918, 1923, (applause.) 1928 (applause), 1933, 1938, 1943, 1948, 1953, 1963 and 1968.

Miss Lota Howard, '40, was chairman of the dinner committee. She is first vice president.

Other officers: second vice-president, Mrs. Rowena Lewis, '35; recording secretary, Mrs. Jeannette Johnson, '50, treasurer, Dr. Clara Adams, '54; assistant, Charles Hall, '62 financial secretary, Mrs. Martha G. Bradford, '46 and legal advisor, W. Emerson Brown Jr., '42. — E. M. MOSS.

ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR at Morgan State College honors went to Methodist bishop Edward G. Carroll, shown here at 33rd alumni dinner in his honor at Baltimore Hilton Hotel Saturday evening, with Mrs. Carroll, the former Phenola Valentine, also a Morgan graduate.

Political clout added to BTU arsenal, Moore

In a statement of goals and priorities, newly elected Baltimore Teacher's Union (BTU) President Godfrey Moore asserts, "The only tactic that I have seen successfully utilized in constructing positive change has been the effective development and use of political power."

Mr. Moore, the union's former executive secretary, soundly walloped in a landslide victory past president Dennis Crosby receiving more than a 3 to 1 voter mandate (893-292) in last Thursday's election.

Further clarifying his understanding of the term 'political power', Mr. Moore states it is "the consistent shortchanging that education receives because educators have not effectively used the political machinery available."

"This year for example," notes the 35-year-old president, "the 'city fathers' saw fit to include in the budget funds that would raise every city department's salary levels by 10 per cent, while the department of education was granted a 6.7 per cent increase for teachers.

* * *

Pointing to his concerns in other areas, Mr. Moore cites specific needs in the improvement of working conditions, the possibility of the reduction of class size, books and materials, and a proposal to make "free college credit courses" available to teachers.

Of the utmost importance, Mr. Moore hopes to "see the BTU continue building upon the groundwork begun during past administrations "that has placed our Union in a position of prominence and respect."

The 4,800-member BTU, roughly half of the city's education force, first gained exclusive negotiating rights for teachers in June, 1967.

* * *

For five years (1963-67), Mr. Moore taught elementary school, in both the city and county before becoming BTU executive secretary in 1970.

A native Baltimorean, Mr. Moore is married to the former Miss Ann Smith and has two children: Channing, age 9 and Andrea, 4. Mrs. Moore also a teacher, teaches at School No. 16.

GODFREY MOORE

An honor graduate of Winston Salem College in 1961, where he also shined as an All American member of the track team, Mr. Moore majored in elementary education, humanities and art.

* * *

During his collegiate years, he was selected to represent the U.S. in track competition throughout the world. He continued in this distinction for ten years

He is considered an "avid reader" who devotes much of his time to "reading and analyzing educational problems."

Despite the rigors of an active campaign, Mr. Moore still managed to spend several hours a day coaching his "high school track proteges."
