Teenage Md. pageant 'not a skin show'

"The MISS BLACK TEENAGE MARYLAND PAGEANT is not a run-of-the-mill skin show." It deals with the young and therefore we do not feel that it is necessary. The atmosphere of the pageant, the caliber of its staging, the energy and high spirits of the participants and staff, the level of talent, the tension of competition make for a great performance in entertainment." Maurice Hubert, state director of the pageant said this week.

"We seek clean-cut, wholesome teenagers. The age requirement being 13 to 16 years of age, assures one that they naturally haven't reached their full potential. We like to think that our staff has much to lend in that direction.

Mr. Hulbert, was asked if he thinks he gets the finest Maryland has to offer.

"No. But we do have some who have the courage to compete and work very hard. They know that of a group of girls, who in just a few days get to know a little about each other, will have to pick from among themselves."

How do they get along socially, being [illegible]

"We try to bring about a together[illegible] win or lose, they get the experience of [illegible] being a part of the pageant."

Do the girls communicate well with one another? a great deal of beauty with in our contestants that will enhance all their other attributes.

Mrs. Marie Cooke of the AFRO-AMERICAN, women's editor and chairman of the panel of judges, announced the names of some of the other judges. They are: Mrs. Vertell Simmons of Washington, D.C., and regional vice president of Celebrity Fashion Jewels: M's Frankie Annette Reed, "They only have a few days together, and during that time they will have communicated well enough to choose one of the girls as Miss Congeniality."

WASHINGTON — Baltimore City Hall and St. Mary's Seminary Building behind the AFRO offices at 628 N. Eutaw St. have been entered in the National Register of Historic Places, Senators J. Glenn Beall, Jr. and Charles McC. Mathias have announced.

The two Maryland senators said the properties will now be eligible for federal matching grants for restoration and preservation.

Henryton State Hospital

Henryton State Hospital almost has a new swimming pool and needs volunteer life guards to swim with and supervise our adult retarded residents.

In order to open the pool June 25, volunteers are needed on a daily basis.

Volunteers should be 16 years or older; a good swimmer and compassionate for the retardate. Applicants may be male or female; but must be able to work certain days of the week from 8:30 to 5 p.m.

For additional information, please contact Mrs. Dorothy A. Cullison, Coordinator, Volunteer Services

State hospitals enter 100 in Special Olympics

More than 100 athletes will represent Maryland State Centers for the Mentally Retarded in the Special Olympics to be held today (Friday) and Saturday at Towson State College.

The Rosewood facility itself will put close to 100 residents in the track and field, swimming, volleyball, basketball and floor hockey events that make up the two-day calendar. Two boys' basketball teams, a boys' hockey team and coed swimming and volley ball teams will represent the Owings Mills Center.

* * *

A contingent of 12 will represent the Great Oaks Center in Silver Spring; and Henryton, which had a resident who won at Towson last year and represented Maryland at the International Special Olympics at Los Angeles, will be able to send only spectators due to the lack of training personnel.

In last year's state-wide meet at Towson, Rosewood won a total of 11 medals in the track and field events and 49 in the swimming competition. At Los Angeles, Rosewood athletes accounted for one gold and two silver medals among the many won by Maryland athletes.

Volunteers Needed

The Food Stamp Division of the Department of Social Services is required to complete over 10,000 applications from elderly citizens requesting food stamps. According to Food Stamp Program regulations, all eligibility determinations should be made within thirty days from date of application.

Because of staff shortages and other limiting factors the Department of Social Services is in urgent need of volunteers to help facilitate the task of processing these applications.

Persons interested in extending such volunteer services are asked to contact Mrs. Justine Turner, Chief of Volunteer Services, Baltimore City Department of Social Services, 1510 Guil-

2 youths charged with robbery

2 Youths Charged — 34 Pt.

Two youths have been charged with assault and robbery of a Maryland Institute student in his home, 1500 block Park Ave. Thursday morning.

Police report charged as adults are Marvin Braxton, 16, 1600 block Division St. and Eloise Owens, 17, 500 block Presstman St.

Mark LaChance, 22, 1500 block Park Ave. told police he was returning home early Thursday morning when the teenagers, armed with screwdriver, forced him into his apartment.

* * *

He told police the two then tied him with electric cord, removed some valuables from the apartment and cracked him over one the shoulder with an iron pipe.

A neighbor hearing the commotion, called police, who picked up the two after a brief chase. LaChance was treated and released at the Maryland General Hospital for fracture collarbone.

Hawks select ex-AFL guard

Harold Curtis Gray, former guard for the old New York Titans of the American Football League, has been appointed head coach of the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore football team.

An all-around athlete, Gray received CIAA honors for football and baseball in 1958, 1959, and 1960, while a student at Maryland State College.

Studying under then athletic director Vernon "Skip" McCain, and line coach Earl Banks, Gray went on to a successful career in professional football before returning to his alma mater as assistant football coach and head baseball coach.

William Curtis, Rizzo bodyguard

PHILADELPHIA — Mayor Frank L. Rizo's bodyguard was buried in Rolling Green Memorial Park Friday.

William R. Curtis, 43, had been paralyzed by a stroke for a week before his death in Misericordia Hospital.

"It was the worst week of my life," Rizzo said of that period. "To see that big guy lying there in the hospital room, just looking at me. He couldn't talk, but his eyes moved and I know he recognized me."

He had worked with the major since 1957 when he was assigned as a patrolman to the center city 19th district, where Capt. Rizzo was raiding coffee houses.

Next to my family, there was no one who had a closer relationship to me," said the mayor. "He was my friend. We would have given our lives for each other."

During the 1971 municipal campaign, Curtis was assigned to guard candidate Rizzo. He and Officer James Turner were at Rizzo's side whenever he left his headquarters.

When the mayor took office, Curtis, Turner and Officer Tony Fullwood became his fulltime bodyguards.

Surviving are his wife Bessie; two daughters, Elaine and Marcia; two sons, Larry and Correll and three grandchildren.

Russell sworn in

George L. Russell Jr. called for "greater participation in the community by the Bar Association" following his installation Thursday night as the 95th president of the Baltimore Bar Association.

At the Hilton Hotel ballroom banquet, about 400 members of the bar listened and reacted enthusiastically to Mr. Russell's urgings that they help protect and to achieve rights of the poor, as well as those of the rich.

Mr. Russell is first member of his race to become president. He succeeds William D. Preston Jr. who served from 1972-1973.

Caldwell Sho' murder trial begins

The murder trial of Scott Caldwell in Harford County District Court will begin Monday in Bel Air (Md) with the selection of the jury, according to defense attorney Tucker R. Dearing.

Mr. Caldwell and Michael Thomas were accused of the double slaying of two sisters at a small Eastern Shore coin-operated laundry last August.

An Anne Arundel County District Court jury of nine women and three men acquittal months ago found Mr. Thomas guilty on charges of murder. He now awaits sentencing by District Court Judge Mathew Evans.

'Adopt-A-Child' month proclaimed in Georgia

ATLANTA — In recognition of efforts by the NAACP to place homeless children in permanent homes, Gov. Jimmy Carter has proclaimed the period between Mother's and Father's Days, May 13 and June 16, "Adopt-A-Child" Month.

Gov. Carter issued the statewide proclamation on May 11, two days before Mother's Day. His proclamation stated that every child should have a family, the right to be nurtured by permanent parents and be prepared for citizenship and parenthood within a family setting.

"Ed ucated for citizenship and parenthood within a family setting.

The NAACP, the proclamation continued, is urging citizens to support its adoption project. He, therefore, proclaimed the period up until June 16 "Adopt-A-Child Month" and urged everyone to "recognize and support this worthwhile project."

* * *

Since its creation in Atlanta last year, the NAACP Adoption Project has sought to have black children from abandonment in orphanages by placing them in permanent homes. Through this program, the local branch and regional office seek eligible families willing to accept parentless children.

The program has been well received. By the end of 1972, the number of parents seeking adoptions had about matched the 100 children available for placement.

But, because of traditional barriers, said Warren Howard who oversees the program from the National Office in New York, only three children have so far been placed.

Consequently, Mrs. Ruby Hurley, director of the NAACP Southeast Region, has been working to reduce some of these barriers.

* * *

She achieved a notable success on April 18, when the Georgia legislature amended its Children and Youth Act so that the state could provide financial assistance to families with adopted children.

Such assistance will be given to families who could not ordinarily provide for those children.

The continued strength of the Adoption Project was also assured by a second-year grant from the federal Government of $138,000. This amount was $26,000 larger than that of the first-year grant and will allow the NAACP to expand the program into Augusta and Savannah.

National Urban Fellow

Special to AFRO

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Cecelia Jakovich, a research associate at Federal City College in Washington, D.C., and former Baltimorean Vernon L. Robinson Jr., who holds three posts at Columbia University, are among six persons to receive National Urban Fellowships.

Frank Logue, director of the NUF program, which is designed to develop leaders in urban government, announced the selection.

Alexander Dixon of Brooklyn, N.Y., is a parole officer with the New York State Department of Corrections.

James Jones, another fellow formerly o[illegible] earned a B.A. at the University of Connecticut in less than three years after serving team for a Pennsylvania holdup conviction in 1966.

Eliza H. Minor, formerly of Roselle, N.J., is project director of manpower programs and training for the Berkeley, Calif., Model Cities program.

Carole Smith of Philadelphia, a housing specialist with the Community Relations Service of the U.S. Justice Department and a former writer for the Philadelphia Inquirer, is also a fellow.

The six are among nine women and 11 men selected from 311 applicants for 1973-74 fellowships in the NUF program's fifth year.

The fellows, who are mainly from ethnic minorities, were chosen competitively on the basis of their leadership potential.

The NUF program is aimed at meeting the nationwide shortage of urban administrators, which is acute among minority groups and women.

They will embark in July on a year-long program sponsored by the National League of Cities, U.S. Conference of Mayors and Yale University, and funded by the Ford Foundation.

The program will start with an intensive six-week course in urban studies at Yale. Each fellow will then be assigned to a mentor, who may be a mayor, city manager, budget director or other top-level administrator.

* * *

The fellows will learn-by-doing as they work with urban administrators for 10 months. On completion of the fellowship year, they will be equipped to work at policy-making levels in urban posts.

Robinson, a Morgan State College graduate, who was a teacher in the Baltimore public schools and a caseworker with that city's Public Welfare Department, is an associate professor in Columbia's School of Architecture.

He is co-director of the Urban Center's Urban Action and Experimentation Program at the university and serves as technical director and chief administrative officer of the center's Faculty-Student Technical Assistance Project.

He is co-author of "Partnership of Equals," published by Columbia in 1971, and "How Much Power to the People?", a study of the New York State Urban Development Corp.'s involvement in Black Harlem.

Robinson was previously assistant director of the Stryck-er's Bay Community Action Project and community-organization director and executive director of the Community Association of the East Harlem Triangle.

* * *

Mrs. Dixon joined the Corrections Department in May, 1972, after serving almost five years with the New York City Office of Probation.

She is a graduate of Upsala College and has been working for a master's degree in public administration at John Jay College of Criminal Justice.

She has been active in the Concerned Black Parole Officers' Association, the Fort Greene Rehabilitation League and the Brooklyn Evening Branch of the League of Women Voters.

* * *

Jones, a native of the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, has been a worker in drug-rehabilitation, housing and correctional-reform programs.

In 1971 and 1972 he was a special assistant to the director of the University of Connecticut summer program.

He is a director of an Eastern Connecticut drug program and treasurer of Outmates, a national organization which assists prisoners and parolees.

* * *

Minor, a Jersey City native was a correctional officer at Rahway, N.J., State Prison, a group leader at the Kilmer Job Corps Center in Edison, N.J., and a counseling supervisor at the Parks Job Corps Center in California. He was later an executive of two job-training centers in the same state.

Before taking the Berkeley post, Minor was program manager of the Concentrated Employment Program in Oakland/Richmond, Calif. He attended Iowa State University and Fresno, Calif., City College.

REPORT FROM EUROPE

Influence denied in barring asylum

By OLLIE STEWART

PARIS — "It does not seem that the person concerned runs any particular risk in his present country of residence (Algeria) because of his political convictions or ethnic origin."

This preamble to a conclusion was made in a written answer by Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin to Socialist leader Francois Mitterand on May 19.

"In the absence of these elements, and taking account of the past activities of the party making the request, it has not been judged opportune to authorize him to come to France."

The name of the person "concerned" was omitted — he was referred to as a "Mr. X" — but the Interior Ministry confirmed that it was Eldridge Cleaver.

This Cleaver's request for asylum in France was turned down.

One report, which I cannot verify, has been that Cleaver had already reached France, was in hiding, and that the American embassy had not pressure on the French government to refuse the request for asylum.

The French lawyer, Cleaver addressed his appeal directly to Prime Minister Pierre Messmer — citing a clause of the French constitution which says: "Any man persecuted for his political ideas must be admitted to France."

Said Cleaver's lawyer: "He is persecuted for political reasons in the United States. He has always fought for the liberty of blacks and against racism in the United States."

After refusal of asylum by France, a U.S. embassy spokesman is said to have remarked: "As far as I know, the embassy has taken no action in the case." But it's known that this has been done in other cases — as I've been told more than once.

Cleaver fled the United States in 1968, and news stories placed him first in Cuba, then for the past few years in Algeria.

His wife and several other Americans were with him in a villa in Algiers for a time, but something evidently happened last year after the arrival of a group of hijackers who brought with them a half-million dollars from an airline.

The money was confiscated by the Algerian government and returned to the airline, — after reported insistence by Cleaver that the hijackers be allowed to keep the loot.

Whether this is true or not, some months later the villa became empty and nobody knew exactly where Cleaver and the rest had gone.

Cleaver is the author of the best-seller, "Soul on Ice."

Libya, according to travelers passing through Paris, is shaking up the western world as never before — since the passport battle began January 1.

Colonel Moamer Qadhafi's cultural revolution which began with the announcement that nobody would get a visa unless his passport carried Arabic translations of identification data, has now escalated to include everything.

No language but Arabic can be used for street and building signs. All bars and brothels have been closed in Tripoli, and the crescent of Islam now perches on all churches.

But what's got American oilmen screaming for the Marines is the bitter fact that there are no Marines in Tripoli. One of the few capitals in the world without U.S. Marines, Libya threw out the last ones in February.

Diplomats have also had their liquor allowances cancelled. And all beaches, private golf and social clubs have been denied them. They can't even bring in English-language movies, nor even a copy of Playboy.

The white man is getting a taste of his own medicine.

Alfred Williams head interreligious program

MUSKEGAN, Mich. — Funeral services for Alfred Williams, director of the South Bend Regional Office of the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organizations, Inc., were held here recently.

Williams, well-known in the struggle for liberation and a strategic actor in the development of IFCO's resource coalition for community organizations, was killed in a tragic automobile accident, May 18. He was to have graduated from the Notre Dame Law School May 20.

Lucius Walker, executive director of IFCO's national office said, "Al was a humanitarian who had acquired precious skills needed by Third World people.

"He sought only to serve. We mourn his untimely death and resolve that his memory will propel us into effective positive action. While others walk, we must run."

Williams was active from his early teens in the civil rights movements. Before entering law school, he was instrumental in creating the Hansel Neighborhood Center and the Liberation School.

He was a delegate to the National Black Political Convention and was an advisor to Gary's Mayor Richard Hatcher.

Williams is survived by his wife, Jennifer and two daughters, Tracy, 6 years and Aileen, 3 months.
