CCB grant of $220,000 for high school pupils

By Dr. SIDNEY KOBRE

Community College of Baltimore has received three federal grants totaling $220,000 to be used for high school students with college potential, for veterans and for present CCB students.

President Harry Bard notes that $100,000 will be used for the Upward Bound Program, one of the federal programs under supervision of Dean Milton A. Dugger, of Community Services directed by Vernon Brown.

Upward Bound helps high school students who are recommended by principals and counsellors.

The students come to CCB for 20 Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon to classes in mathematics, reading, social studies and sciende.

In summer, they have a six-week intensive program, living on campus.

The second program funded for $80,000, is the Veterans Talent Search Upward Bound Program, operated in conjuction with Morgan State College, Dundalk Community College, Gilmon School and the Direct Search for Talent Agency, a federal organization.

In two parts Talent Search, or "Outreach" goes into the community to recruit veterans who would benefit by additional education.

The CCB team visits neighborhood centers, pool parlors, housing projects and other places to reach veterans to tell them about the educational opportunities open.

Directed by John Cantalupo, assistant director, the team is lead by Jim Henry and students who are veteans: John Simms, Randy Hart and Joe Spence.

* * *

The third grant for $40,000 provides special academic services for 110 CCB students, of whom are veterans. Both counselling and tutorial services are furnished for students who require help in academic subjects to succeed in their college studies.

Student tutors are used because they have been found successful in the past in other projects. Mrs. Christine J. Moore is director.

Job Corps offers youth success, pay, fine career

Mrs. Rosetta B. Williams, Job Corps program manager, announces the group is recruiting young men for enrollment.

Job Corps is a nationwide government sponsored residential training program to help low income, out-of-school, out-of-work, youth aged 16 thrugh 21, become responsible, productive citizens.

The Job Corps offers disadvantaged youth a chance to learn marketable skills, provides job training, work experience, remedial education, health and physical assistance, counseling, citizenship education and recreational opportunities in the regulated atmosphere of a residential Job Corps Center.

Job Corpsmen receive living and readjustment allowances, in addition to food, clothing, and lodging.

They must be willing to apply themselves and to abide by center rules and regulations.

To apply for Job Corps go to the office to be screened by one of the counselors: pen Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., 701 St. Paul St. (at Mt. Vernon Place), phone 396-5600.

Rehab Center trains the handicapped

The Maryland Rehabilitation Center, located in the northeast corner of Baltimore, is one of eight facilities in the nation designed specifically for the evaluation and training of handicapped persons.

Covering nearly six acres, the facility can accommodate over three hundred resident clients while their potential skills are tested and developed by Center professional rehabilitation specialists.

* * *

While at the Center each handicapped client is carefully tested to determine his or her occupational and academic aptitudes.

Once testing is completed, the results analyzed, and a specific career field is selected by the client, training begins.

Using the latest programmed learning techniques and equipment, each person is given individualized instruction leading to an entry position in the career of his or her choice.

* * *

During their stay at the Center, leisure hours may be spent swimming, bowling, playing billiards, attending motion pictures in the 300 seat auditorium, or taking part in professionally planned recreational activities.

All facilities in the new building, including the swimming pool and auditorium, are specifically designed for handicapped persons, thus affording them opportunity to enjoy normal recreational activities with a minimum of inconvenience.

Mark L. Stancil is director of the Maryland Rehabilitation Center and James D. Kirby, public information officer.

Mental health symposium June 12

A symposium on children and youth mental health services in Baltimore City will be held Tuesday, June 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Coppin State College in the Laboratory School Building, 2500 W. North Ave.

Sponsored by the Baltimore City Health Department in cooperation with Coppin, the symposium will bring together staff members of local mental health agencies and mental health professionals for the purpose of establishing improved communications and desired linkages in the city's community mental health programs for children and youth, ages 4 to 25.

The all-day sessions will be keynoted by Dr. Roger L. Olsen, Coordinator of Mental Health Services, Children and Adolescents, Mental Health Administration, Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

If you choose the Marines, maybe you'll choose Administration, too.

The Marine Corps believes that every young man wants to point himself in the right direction—toward the kind of work that will suit him best, the kind of skills that will stick with him for life.

So if you've got what it takes to be a Marine, and you can qualify for our new option programs, we'll let you choose the right direction. If it's administrative work, you'll be on your way as soon as you complete recruit training.

There's also aviation technology, combat support, food services, electronics...and many other directions you can go. Come in and look over the list. You tell us what you're interested in. We'll tell you if we can get you there.

We're looking for a few good men...to choose their own directions.
