Questions and answers on new rent control law

The Consumer Protection Division (CPD) of the Maryland Attorney General's Office has prepared a question and answer booklet on the 1973 Maryland Rent Control Law.

A spokesman for the office said the booklet was prepared due to the numerous inquiries about the law received by Attorney General Francis B. Burch. It was pointed out, however, that the office is not formally charged with the supervision of the new law. Despite this, the CPD was willing to supply assistance to those affected by the new law which is already in effect.

Here are the questions and answers.

Q. Does the law apply to ALL owners of residential property in Maryland?

A. No. The law is limited in its application to those landlords who rent (4) or more units. A private home rented to a tenant would qualify as a rental unit.

Q. When does the new Rent Control Law become effective?

A. The law provides that Rent Control become effective June 1st, 1973, and will remain in effect until July 1st, 1974, at which time it will automatically expire unless extended by the Legislature.

Q. Does this mean that if the landlord lives in a house and rents out the second floor he can raise the rent if he feels like it?

A. Yes. There would be no rent control in that situation unless the landlord owns other rental units which total 4 or more, and provided further, that there is no signed lease with an unexpired term.

Q. What is the date for which these increases are computed? — in other words, at what point in time do I choose an amount from which I can claim that my rent has been increased?

A. January 11, 1973 is considered the base date to use to compute any increase in your rent. In other words, if you pay your rent on the 1st of the month the amount of rent you paid for January, 1973 would be the base you would use.

Q. Does this mean that my landlord will have to return to me any money representing excessive rent increases after January 11, 1973?

A. This is a problem that the courts will most likely have to resolve. The law states that all rent increases after January 11, 1973, which exceed the authorized 5 per cent (plus proportioned increases covering any increase in taxes, water and sewer service charges, etc.) are NULL AND VOID.

Q. Does this law apply in every county throughout Maryland?

A. Yes. As of June 1st the new Rent Control Law will apply throughout the state of Maryland. However, if any county (or Baltimore City) decides to enact other or additional rent control legislation, they may do so and the county or city law will then replace the state law.

Q. What rent can be charged for an apartment or house which is now vacant or was vacant on June 1, 1973?

A. The landlord may charge a rent "equal to the highest rent charged for a comparable residential unit in the same residential facility." Thus, if the landlord was receiving $200 monthly for a two-room apartment under the same roof as the vacant one, he can charge $200 for the vacant apartment embodying the same space and facilities.

Q. Are any rental units exempt from the Rent Control Law?

A. Yes. The law specifically exempts those projects in which rent is calculated on a percent of the tenant's income — specifically those projects in which financing is guaranteed by federal funds.

Q. How do I go about filing a complaint if I feel that my landlord is treating me unfairly with regard to the new Rent Control Law?

A. The law does not provide for enforcement by any agency of the state. We would suggest that the tenant first attempt to discuss the matter with the landlord to see if the two can arrive at a mutually satisfactory accord. The tenant should utilize the worksheet at the end of this brochure in order to determine how much he believes he is being overcharged, and then if the tenant and landlord cannot resolve their differences, it would be necessary that one or the other would take the matter to court.

Q. I am a tenant in a small store. Can the landlord raise my rent above the legal 5 per cent?

A. Yes. The law only applies to residential premises. It does not affect rent charged for properties occupied for non-residential purposes.

Q. How can I calculate precisely how much my rent can be raised?

A. Do some figuring! Use the worksheet found at the end of this brochure. In order to calculate any allowable increase applying to you, you will need some information from your landlord, such as the amount of increase in real estate taxes since January 11, 1973, (using, for your purpose, only that percentage which applies to your unit) and your percentage of the water and sewer increases since January 11, 1973.

Q. But isn't there some simple rule-of-thumb that I can use to determine if the rent increase is proper?

A. You can rough-guess, but you still need to add 5 per cent of your rent to your percentage of whatever increases your landlord suffered from taxes, water and sewerage increased. The landlord is legally justified in adding — that is — your percentage of the cost of capital improvements actually constructed since January 11, 1973.

Q. If I have a written lease, may the landlord increase my rent?

A. No. He can increase your rent only after the lease has expired and he has given you the proper notice, and then only in the amount allowed by the Rent Control Law.

State, county partners in $220,070 program

David T. Mason, Maryland Secretary of Employment and Social Services, has announced that his department has entered into a contract with the Community Action Committee of Allegany County, Inc., for the implementation of a demonstration childhood development program in that County.

The program costing approximately $220,070, is funded through a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Project staff specialists, specifically Early Childhood Development Specialist, Health Nutrition Coordinator, and Volunteer-Resource Coordinator will operate from the demonstration center on a county-wide basis and along with a Social Worker Coordinator, the Pediatic Nurse Practitioner and the Speech Therapist will serve the 75 demonstration center children.

The centers will provide specialized services for 60 handicapped children and 150 children in the County's Family Aide Program and operate for one year from June 1, 1973.

Services held for baby fatally beaten

Funeral services for Marina Denise James, an 18-month-old baby girl who was fatally beaten June 13, were held at the Phillips' Funeral Home last Monday afternoon. Burial is in the Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Police records show the little tot was pronounced dead of wounds to the head, left side and the wrists at the Lutheran Hospital June 13 at about 8 p.m.

Assistant medical examiner, Dr. William Malloy, told the AFRO little Marina died from "bleeding in the head" as a result of severe beating.

Robert E. Carter, 900 block N. Stricker St., is charged with homicide. He is being held in the City Jail pending grand jury hearing.

Police quote the girl's 18-year-old mother, Miss Margaret C. James, 1800 block Westwood Ave., as saying they were visiting a male friend when the beating occurred.

Police records reveal, "upon arrival in the 900 block N. Stricker St., we saw a man standing on the steps with a smile on his face."

Police said when they followed the man into the room they saw the child lying on her back on the bed not breathing. All attempts to revive her failed.

Miss James, an employee of the Rosewood Hospital, is separated from her husband.

In addition to her mother, Marina is survived by her father, Leonis McRae; grand aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah James and grandmother, Mrs. Ruth James.
