staff, the student body, the parents and the community. I feel that we will develop a very successful program at Dunbar that can be shared by all students in the Baltimore school system."

Mrs. Woodland is married to John C. Woodland, an employee of the Department of Employment Security.

She has one son by a previous marriage, Edward Richardson, 18, a third year student at Frostburg State University.

She and her husband make their home on Springland Ave. in northwest Baltimore.

Also approved were further key appointments in Dr. Patterson's reorganization plan, designed to streamline administration of the city schools.

These included additional coordinators, specialists and administrative assistants to work on the new regional teams which have been established under their own superintendents.

Also appointed were elementary senior teachers, and assistant principals.

Stephen W. McNierney, chairman of the board's personnel credentials committee, advised that further appointments under reorganization are still under study.

He reminded the sparse audience at Coldstream Park Elementary School that the fact that persons now in top positions have not been assigned does not mean that they are not under consideration for other jobs at their level.

Further, board president, Dr. John Walton, announced that the board will meet again next Thursday at 4 p.m., at the same place, to receive from the superintendent further recommendations for assignment of personnel.

Expected to be announced are principals for both elementary and secondary schools, as well as two new regional superintendents. Only seven of the nine have been named so far.

Present at the Thursday meeting, in addition to commissioners Walton and McNierney, were commissioners Maree Farring, James M. Griffin, Kalman R. Hettleman, and Elizabeth Murphy Moss.

Chairman Walton announced that the City Council is expected to act on Mayor Schaefer's appointment of Robert W. Schaefer (no relation) to fill a vacant post on the board on Monday evening. Mr. Schaefer is executive vice president of First National Bank.
