The couple left for a honeymoon in Miami Beach, following the reception.

Columbia Capers

By Pinnie Ross

Martin's West was the scene of a fabulous fashion show last Sunday. "If you've got the time, we've got the magic to make you beautiful." The avid devotees of fashions were at the beautiful inscribed invitations of the Holiday Magic. After a scrumptous buffet luncheon, the show got on its way about 1:30. Introducing the show was glamorous Helen Mae Chamberlain, a well known club woman and director of the Neighborhood Youth Inter-School Program.

Mrs. Ann Drayton, one of Baltimore's original milliners and owner of Moses Royal Dress Shop presented a variety of collections that put the summer season in proper prespective. This collection served notice to the many fashion conscious people who attended the show.

Graciously modeling down the T-shape runway, pausing here and there, and really looking professional was Provident Hospital's Gift Shop Manager, Maggie Watkins. What a show stopper when she dashed out wearing a lavendar ballroom gown which slightly gathered at the waist in and a wide band of sequins, the deep plunge neckline had rows of sequins, the deep v neckline had rows of sequins complemented the dolman sleeves which had covered slits in sequins. Clearly the use of a large size model was a factor in maintaining a link between the audience and Mrs. Drayton's special large size collection.

The lively audience was generous and enthusiastic of the fast moving show, looking from back stage, I spotted in the audience a very vivacious lady, who played the leading role in "Save the Children," Mrs. Mary Ellis, and her guests: Mrs. Alice Williams, Mrs. Annie Harper, Mrs. Minner James, Mrs. Pensukola Jorden, Mr. and Mrs. Prince Gilmore and their two sons Tony and Ray.

Miss Black Teenage Maryland, Miss Edna Hill has been really busy since receiving the coveted title. A party was given in her honor by the teen centers and sponsored by the Columbia Association last week. Also, she received a citation from the Columbia Association. She will be a guest speaker here in Howard County Sunday at Hopkins United Church. Tuesday, she was among the County Queens to be presented at the mall during the NASA exhibit.

According to the Executive Director of the State Pageant Maurice "Hot Rod" Hulbert she will be leaving for New York on the 20th of July and will be accompanied by staff. The seven-day all expense paid trip for two is compliments of WBAL Radio Station. "Rod" said the National finals will be held at the Broadway Theatre on the 27th of July.

PIERIANS

The Pierians invited their husband to their closing meeting in Columbia at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Emerson C. Walden. They installed the following new officers for next year:

Mrs. Walden, president; Mrs. Glenn Tarter, vice president; Mrs. G. James Fleming, recording secretary; Mrs. G. Luther Washington, financial secretary; Mrs. Saul Perdue, treasurer; and Mrs. Ernest Johnson, historian.

Dr. Walden showed films and lectured about acupuncture and his recent tour of the Peoples Republic of China. He and Mrs. Walden modeled the latest Chinse fashions to the delight of all present.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

There is so much good in the best of us, that it behoves all of us not to talk about the rest of us.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Some of the other participants in the Miss Black Maryland Beauty Pageant held last Saturday at the University of Baltimore were from left: Misses Marie Macklin, winner of savings bond for Most Talented Non-Finalist; Marletta Winston, Loretta Wiggins; Sandra Douglass, runner-up; Patricia Love, Miss Black Maryland; Cassandra Edwards; Leavanna Calhoun, V'Nell Carroll, Leletia Diggs, Maria McSwain and Dorothy Davis. Not shown are Misses Shirley Harris, Margo McMillan, and Floretta Mitchell.

BDI's — SSA's

The BDI Toastmasters and SSA Toatmistresses recently held their first combined meeting. Featured speaker was Mrs. Anita Garcia, coordinator, Social Security Administration's Federal Women's Program.

The Toastmasters and Toastmistresses are two Social Security Employee Activity clubs dedicated to more effective communication and leadership through better listening, thinking and speaking. They each meet on a weekly basis at lunch time. Garcia, who's office is at the SSA Woodlawn Complex, presented many facts on women's and minorities' present employment status throughout the SSA. She stated that 2 out of 3 people working for SSA are women.

One of three of those women is of a minority group with blacks comprising over 90 per cent of the minorities. She also said that only one women in every 36 working for SSA is a supervisor, whereas one man in every seven has a supervisory position. In the eight major job categories within SSA, women's average grade levels are below their male counterparts. However, she said that the outlook for women in SSA is improving; especially in the last six months.

She concluded by stating that, more must be done, particularly for minority women. She added, however, that portunities for women seem at the present time better with the Federal Government than in private industry.

FOR COL. STEWART

People remembering others. This was so on Sunday in Washington when former Baltimorean, the late Capt. Willard C. Stewart, was memorialized and honored.

Occasion was the second annual military ball given by alumni of Morgan State College now in the military and by the Washington Chapter, Morgan Alumni. The affair was held in the officer's club at Bolling Air Force Base.

Mrs. Stewart was guest of honor and received a plaque recalling the contributions of her late husband to the young men in ROTC program during the five years (1953-58) he was professor of military science at the college. Lt. Col. William Cummins Jr., made the presentation.

Dr. Martin D. Jenkins; president-emeritus of Morgan, was also honored.

GENERAL THERE

The speaker of the evening was Brigadier General Lucius Sears, one of nine black generals presently serving in the army.

Cocktails and dinner preceded the program. Dancing followed with the Clef Sounds furnishing the music.

The sponsoring committee in addition to Col. Cummins, the chairman, included Mrs. Vesta Bive, Mrs. Mildred B. Johnson, Ms. Maureen B. E. Miles, Ms. Jeanette Wade and Major S. Rodney Hull.

Major Richard A. Carey and Captain and Mrs. Joseph D. Gelsthorpe and Dr. and Mrs. G. James Fleming were Baltimoreans who attended.

PITTSES' FETED

Those beautiful people gathered at Holiday Inn on Saturday were there for a luncheon and card party in honor of Mrs. Nathan Pitts (Mary), wife of the U. S. official home here in Baltimore for a six week vacation before returning to Paris.

Hostess was Mrs. Louise Lockerman, a Mole, like the honoree. Luncheon color scheme was blue and green with the lovely wrapped gifts carrying out the color scheme.

Gifts went to Mesdames Christine Moore, Bertha Forte, Bea Wright, Beth Patterson, Anethia Williams and Helen Queen.

Other guests were: Mesdames Mary McPherson, Geraldine Winckler, Helena Hairston, Ella Hughes;

Also, Mesdames Blanche Beckham, Hermione Weaver, Annabelle Rawlings, Vivian Pendleton, Phyllis Shamwell, Hazel Bailey, Jimmie La Forest, and Mesdames Margaret Land and Catherine Adams, sisters of the honoree.
