A VETERAN'S FLAG covered the casket of Delegate James (Turk) Scott as it was carried into the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Washington for final rites Wednesday. At right is Dr. William (Buck) Tompkins, Philadelphia, the friend who helped pay for the $30,000 bail the delegate had to post pending litigation of the narcotics violations charges. Federal authorities have marked the charges "abated by death". Baltimore police investigators are still trying to solve the crime.

Death result of man's sins says minister at Scott funeral

By Lillian Wiggins

A dignified funeral for a well liked person was all that anyone could say of service for James "Turk" Scott, delegate to the Maryland Assembly who was slain in the garage of his apartment building in Baltimore last week.

Father James Joy, of Sacred Heart Church, scene of the early morning service Wednesday in Washington, said, "The life and death of each of us, has its influence on the other."

Reading from the Scripture he said, "It is before God that each of us will have to give an account of himself."

As the flag-draped bronze coffin of Mr. Scott sat in the center of the church before an altar draped with white cloth with red stripes, Father Joy said, "Each of us know we must die. It's the end of mankind. It's a natural thing to expect . . . death."

Father Joy, quoting from the Bible, said death comes about because of mankind's failure. Man's failure to love God resulted in death. "Death, he said," is a result of man's sin . . . and we see it so clearly when death is caused by another man."

Sitting in the front pew, her father in the coffin to the left and Father Joy speaking from the right was Miss Evelyn Ann Scott, daughter of Mr. Scott.

Wearing a two-piece black suit with a black flower, gold earrings and a wide brim black straw hat streaked with white in the weave, Miss Scott sat through the service calmly, clutching a white handkerchief in the right palm.

The tall stately attractive young lady who held the Bible at her father's swearing-in ceremony in Baltimore was paying her last respects to a person whom she has always loved and admired.

* * *

An honor student at Pratt Institute in New York, Miss Scott was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Cecelia Penny Scott, former wife of the late assemblyman. She was wearing a two-piece black and white suit with a black and white fitted hat. Occasionally she would glance to the left at the casket with the flag draped body of her former husband.

Noticeable at the front, to the left of the family, were members of the Maryland Assembly and members of the Characters Club of which Mr. Scott was affiliated many years ago.

Delegates present included State Senators Clarence Mitchell and Robert Dalton and Kenneth Webster, Calvin Douglas, R. Howell, Lloyal Randolph, John Douglas, Isaiah Dixon, Frank Conaway and City Council members Robert Douglas and Clarence Burns.

At the conclusion of his message, Father Joy explained that those attending the mass had assembled to pray for "our departed brother," "ourselves and for the rest of the world." He stressed that all must pray for "those persons in the world who are evil."

Mr. Scott's daughter, Evelyn, is a member of Sacred Parish. She is a graduate of Sacred Heart Academy.

The large church at the corner of 16th and Park Road, NW Washington, was partially crowded. It was noticeable that those attending carried heavy hearts.

This could probably be explained by saying that the mixture of those attending was a cross-section of people who knew Mr. Scott for many years. Some of the personalities went as far back as the "Old Stage Door Days."

This was a popular meeting place for folks uptown which was eventually purchased by Mr. Scott's former wife Cecelia and renamed Cecelia's Cocktail Lounge. It closed several years ago.

At the viewing of the body Tuesday night at Jarvis Funeral Home just below 15th St., on You St., the sidewalk was overflowing with friends and acquaintances of the family.

Inside the funeral home one could witness the numerous floral tributes. There was a huge one, with purple flowers which covered the entire organ which said "from the gang at City."

* * *

Then there was a 36-pound circular wreath from the Characters which read, "Those were the days." He was also remembered by the Black Congressional Caucus who sent a floral arrangement of pink flowers with a black ribbon with the gold inscription "Black Caucus."

It was a warm night but no one seemed to be thinking of weather. All conversations ended up with questions marks at the end of the sentences. The family chose a brown plaid suit with matching tie from Mr. Scott's collection of suits.

Miss Scott, with the help of her mother and aunt, Miss Evelyn Penny, made all of the arrangements.

* * *

Following service Wednesday morning, the procesion of approximately 50 cars moved south on 16th St., then left on Florida Ave., across 14th and on out to Lincoln Cemetery for the interment.

The brown and white hearse with the body of Mr. Scott made the final ride with many spectators watching from the corners.

Delegate James Aubrey Scott Jr., from the Second District of Baltimore is survived by Miss Evelyn Ann Scott, daughter; Mrs. Isabel Jackson, sister and John Moore, brother who is principal at Kimbell Elementary School in Washington, D.C.

Among the honorary pallbearers attending the service were Bernard Byrd, Dr. Bill Tompkin, active pallbearer; Louis P Keyser, Dr. Robert Booker, George Givens, Theodore Carver, Monk Miller;

Slim Gray, L. B. Manning, Excell Grier, Reds Clark, Willie Martin, Dr. Charlie Cabiness, Robert Keys, Chuck Thomas, Tom Collier, David Johnson and Teddy Walker.

Among the many attending the funeral were the Sisters of Mercy of Sacred Heart; Miss Evelyn Penny, Mrs. Gloria Cunningham and daughter, Pennie; Mrs. Barbara Hurd and daughter, Bobby Jo; Jacques Wilson, Mrs. James Leak and family and Mrs. Nadine Winters of Hospitality House in Northeast Washington.

Enrollment up

Enrollment figures at Coppin State College for the summer session show 786 students registered in the undergraduate college and 732 students enrolled in the graduate school, according to statistics released by the college's registrar.

Increases in registration over last summer in both schools have been attributed to additional course offerings in criminal justice, management science and early childhood education.

Bible school drew students of all ages

The Vacation Bible School of Fountain Baptist Church, Monument and Gay Sts., recently concluded a successful and unique two-week session.

More than half of the classes were taught by volunteer teachers from the Baltimore City Public School System. This was a first for the bible school. Also contributing to this year's program were special resource teachers from Leadenhall, St. Paul and Concord Baptist Churches.

The school ran from June 25-July 6. Over 125 students, ranging in age from 2 through the senior citizen group, enjoyed daily devotional services, biblical instruction, music, arts and crafts and refreshments.

Thirty-four adult volunteers from Fountain and other churches were involved.

A highlight of the vacation school was a Fun Day at Druid Hill Park. Student and adult participants concluded that day's activities with a "mini-camp meeting on the green," singing and giving praise to God."

This year's theme, "We Look To Jesus," was amply depicted on the evening of July 6, when the group presented its closing program for parents, friends and interested citizens.

During the two week session and at the final program mission offerings were collected. Everything received will be presented to the Baptist Home for the Aged.

Mrs. Daisy Franklin directed the Vacation Bible School. Mrs. Lillian Gundy acted as secretary. The Rev. Charles M. Franklin is the pastor of Fountain Baptist.

PROUD FAMILY—At reception honoring Lowell Case as he enters the priesthood are (L-R) his twin brothers, Nathanial and Denis Case; his sisters, Misses Rosemary and Veronica Case; his niece, 18-month-old Maisha Reid: his sister, Miss Alice Case; his mother, Mrs. Geraldine Case; the honoree; his sisters, Mrs. Joanne Reid and Miss Jean Case; his brother, Raymond Case; his sister, Miss Catherine Case and his brother-in-law, Phillip Reid.

Lowell Case honored at St. Pius

By Mary Curtis

Some 200 friends of Lowell Case gathered last Sunday at his parish, St. Pius V Roman Catholic Church, to wish him well as he prepares to enter the Josephite Order of priests.

The order, based in Baltimore, is devoted to helping the blacks and poor. It was founded in the 1880's.

Mr. Case, 31, is presently a personnel management specialist with the U.S. Civil Service Commission. In August he plans to enter Xavier, the Josephite college in New Orleans, La.

Seated at the head table with the honoree were his mother, Mrs. Geraldine Case, members of his family, his close friend, newly-ordained black Josephite Fr. Carl Fisher and his mother Mrs. Evelyn Fisher.

The program for Mr. Case included the selection "Lift Every Voice and Sing" by the church choir and the presentation of an autographed baseball by the St. Pius V Team.

Speakers were Troy Bartlett, church organist, Mrs. John Fillipelli, pastoral aid Fr. Joseph Delvecchio, assistant pastor Mrs. Evelyn Curtis, an active church worker, acted as mistress of ceremonies.

* * *

They congratulated the honoree and spoke glowingly of his accomplishments.

Mr. Case, in his remarks, said, "I will really miss St. Pius, and I hope to return."

Mr. Case taught for three years at the Fannie Barbour Elementary School before joining with the Civil Service Commission. He has been a member of the Urban Commission, chairman of the Northwest Area Council, vice-president of the Baltimore City Catholic School Board of Education, and a member of the planning Committee for Total Christian Education.

At St. Pius V, he has been president of the Advisory Council and P.T.A. and a member of the Social Group.

Mrs. Lillie Mae Thompson and Mrs. Catherine Johnson acted as co-chairwomen of the affair.

Morgan Psych major studying at Harvard

Franklin Jones, a Freshman pre-medical student majoring in Psychology at Morgan State College has been accepted at Harvard University in Cambridge Massachusetts for the Health Careers Summer Program.

Jones has received a full scholarship for the entire summer session which runs from July 1 to August 24.

The Harvard Health Career Summer Program has been in existence since 1969 with the primary objective of increasing the pool of minority applicants to medical and dental schools.

Harvard offers a unique type of pre-medical or predental education for college-level students. Academic offerings are combined with a variety of experience in hospitals, clinics, and laboratories at Harvard and in the metropolitan Boston area.

Arrangements will be made for Jones to observe and participate in a number of activities at the hospitals and clinics affiliated with the Harvard Medical and Dental schools and the School of Public Health.

Dr. Delano Meriwether, a former national track star and Hematologist at Johns Hopkins Hospital is the Coordinator of the Summer Program. Dr. Meriwether says more than 1,500 students from across the nation applied for the 150 available positions.

FRANKLIN JONES ... studying at Harvard

Jones is a graduate of Catonsville High School. He is also a full time employee and Union Representative with the American Can Company. Mr. Jones and his family have been residing in Joppatowne since 1969.

Kaufman files for Governor

Robert Kaufman, of the National Caucus of Labor Committees, kicked off his campaign for Governor of Maryland by disclosing AFL-CIO cooperation with U.S. Dept. of Labor programs designed to force welfare recipients to take jobs in factories.

Kaufman said that labor leaders, Woodcock of U.A.W. and Abel of U.S.W.A., have not opposed workfare, and in fact are now opening up their unions to labor policies that will recycle workers, welfare and unemployed "like tin cans."

Government programs like W.I.N. and Emergency Employment Act have the appearance of helping the poor but will actually set one group of workers against another allowing intensified speed-up and turnover. Kaufman said that AFL-CIO is now assisting in the implementation of WIN in 8 plants in Baltimore.

POLICE MAJOR SPEAKS TO THE PEOPLE

Police-Community relations program started July 1966

The Police - Community Relations program has been in existence since July 1966.

Its inception was due to the success of District Councils in Eastern and Western Police Districts. As with any large metropolis, as Baltimore City grew so did its needs. The need for expansion of the services of this program lead to the designation of the Community Relations as a section of Community Services in July of 1971.

The upswing in the incidence of crime in this country has caused the federal government to establish grants under the provision of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration High Impact Program (LEAAHIP).

The Governor's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice approved Baltimore City's request for financial assistance in October, 1972.

This project proposal is entitled "Civilian Community Relations Specialists." The Commission will provide a Federal grant of $26,928 and Baltimore City will provide the remainder of the project cost.

As of this June, Clarice LaV. Brooks and Thomas H. Seabron have been employed as Civilian Community Relations Specialists with the Baltimore City Police Department under the direction of Major James H. Watkins, Community Relations Section.

The creation of these two new positions in no way deletes the positions of existing Community Relations personnel, instead it enhances and strengthens their image in the community.

The Community Relations Specialists will attempt to coordinate existing efforts of the nine District Councils, the citizens and the department. They will also devise means of contact and rapport with those citizens not readily attached to any particular group.

The needs of all persons must be met and it is the job of the Specialists to exhaust all efforts to create that kind of atmosphere. In establishing that kind of relationship It is hoped that it will bring about the kind of awareness beween people, as well as the people and the department, that community relations is the elating to, as well as, comunicating with people.

The Civilian Community Relations Specialists will solicit the aid of related agencies in the execution of their duties. Attempts will be made to resolve problems arising between the community and the department; they will assist sworn personnel on duty, upon request, without interfering in any police officers' performance of his duties.

They will strive for increased community involvement, utilizing as many preventive measures as possible. In this area the citizen is of utmost importance. Attendance at community functions and organizational meetings to act as advisor and speaker on subjects of interest to the group. These talks may be supplemented by talks, slides and films.

Areas where there is a high incidence in crime will be studied very closely, while watching for changes in population in other areas. If the program is to be a success, the advance planning that the Community Relations Specialists will do is very pertinent. All areas of the city will be given the same amount of attention.

The Civilian Community Relations Specialist' knowledge of federal state and municipal laws, knowledge of available community resources, ability to gain the cooperation of the community and the police, understanding various religions, customs and beliefs of different races and classes of people.

The Community Relations Department welcomes the continued support of the public. We welcome your suggestions. The Civilian Community Relations Specialists (CCRS) can be contacted by calling 396-2406. They are available for meetings and public functions.

Goodwill nears goal in drive

Baltimore Goodwill's 1973 membership drive has reached 83 per cent of its goal, according to H. Lee Boatwright III, president.

Boatwright said that 1,659 members have contributed to Goodwill during the current campaign. The goal is 2,000.

Funds from the campaign are already being put to use. Boatwright said, to install air cooling systems at the Goodwill headquarters facility on Southwestern Boulevard.

"The majority of Goodwill's handicapped workers are employed in this building," he said. "We are grateful that response to the campaign was enthusiastic enough to enable us to install air cooling before the really hot days of summer arrived."

Boatwright said campaign funds are also being used for emergency roof repairs to the building on Southwestern Boulevard. This work is already underway, he added.

Finally, the campaign contributions will go toward helping Goodwill retire its mortgage on the Southwestern Boulevard building which the non-profit organization moved into in 1969.

Memberships in Goodwill are: Patron, $10; Contributing, $25; Participating, $50; Sustaining, $100 and Benefactor, $500.

Contributions should be mailed to membership chairman, Baltimore Goodwill Industries, Inc., 4001 Southwestern Blvd., Baltimore, Maryland 21229.
