Delta Sorority gets $88,253 for special school project

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority's Baltimore Alumnae Chapter has been awarded an $88,253 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a demonstration project as a supportive program for first graders in two of Baltimore city's elementary schools.

This relatively new Emergency School Aid Act (ESSA) under Title VII is given to private non-profit organizations and/or local educational agencies to help improve relationships between races and to reduce minority isolation, while at the same advancing the children's classroom work.

It is hoped that with the involvement of the parents that the children will be free to share many cultural experiences that will result in mutual respect and understanding of racial and ethnic traditions.

This pilot program (Delta's Search For Togetherness), beginning September 1, will involve first graders at School No. 21 (Carlisle Elementary) and No. 219 (Yorkwood Elementary).

The following positions are available: 1 program manager or coordinator, 4 full time and 1 part-time teachers' aides, 1 art resource teacher, 2 school home liaison workers, and 1 part-time secretary.

Applications are now being accepted at Baltimore City School Personnel Division for the art resource position.

Apply for all other positions to Mrs. Chapelle Armstead, 2208 Chelsea Terrace, 21216. (367-1116) or Mrs. Rubye C. Gill, (542-1674).

Applicants for the program manager and the art resource teacher positions should have superior training and experience.

The teachers' aides and school-home liaison workers' positions should be filled by parents or others who live in the vicinity of the two schools.

Man acquitted of assault and robbery

"I am going to find you not guilty. You may be lucky once but you may not be the second time."

Judge Solomon Liss made the above statement in Criminal Court on Wednesday to Ronald Brown, 17, 1900 block Bethel St.

Brown was found not guilty of assault and robbery. According to court records, last December the defendant approached Ronald E. Guilford in the 400 block Washington St.

He demanded Mr. Guilford to give him his money. Brown took $10 from the victim and ran. Court records state Brown was later picked up by the police in the 400 block Washington St.

Judge Liss told the court the defendent was acquitted because the prosecutor did not have enough evidence for the case.

Judge Waddy orders release of Nixon contributors list

District Judge Joseph C. Waddy has ordered the Finance Committee to Reelect the president to release the names of previously anonymous contributors to the Nixon campaign and describe what was done with the $14 million they gave.

The order was at the committee's request, in hopes of settling a suit by Common Cause. It has until Sept. 24 to produce the information.

Common Cause charged that some of these contributions wound up in the hands of the Watergate burglars.

Mitchell Rogovin, a Common Cause lawyer, said, "It's just what we've been asking. The only regret is that it was not made public until after the election.

Just before the Nov. 7 elections, the finance committee disclosed the names of anonymous contributors between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972 whose gifts totaled nearly $5 million.

committee received more than $14 million in donations from March 9 to the April 7 deadline These contributors have never been made public.

A $200,000 donation by financier Robert L. Vesco was not reported under the law after April 7. Campaign committee lawyers said this was legal because even though the actual cash was not delivered until after April 7, Vesco made his pledge before the April 7 deadline.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and campaign finance chairman Maurice H. Stans have been indicted on charges of obstruction of justice and lying to a federal grand jury in New York in connection with a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation against Vesco.

Rogovin said that "If throughout other sources, we determine that they (the Nixon finance committee) have failed to include the names of any contributors or expenditures, we can go back to court and theoretically hold them in contempt of court."

Common Cause already has asked that Stans be held in contempt of court for not complying with an order to submit the finance committee's records to the court for safekeeping.

In offering June 4 to make the disclosures sought by Common Cause, the finance committee asked Waddy's rule that the committee not be penalized under the criminal provisions of the 1925 federal Corrupt Practices Act, a statute Common Cause alleged the committee had violated.

Waddy made no mention of the finance committee's request, but said dismissal of the case would not be decided until after the disclosure report had been filed.

Lynn urges budget control

James Lynn, secretary of HUD, has urged elimination of waste, improved efficiency and cost control to boost the economy of the country.

Speaking at a Greater Baltimore Committee luncheon at the Hilton Hotel Thursday, Mr. Lynn called on the business community to implement steps that may enhance economic growth.

He added: "Everything that the country has been and will be is bound up with the economy of the country."

Over the years, there is spiral growth in national spending causing high social spending and taxes to rise. And one of the main objectives of Nixon's Phase 4 is to arrest inflation, control of national budget and rising cost of food, the secretary said.

On housing, the secretary said, the federal subsidy of housing program has resulted in provision of good housing for the poor but, "the success story has been few."

It is to review the program and put it on a better basis that the program was suspended last January. The program is being studied and recommendations will be submitted to the Capitol by December. He hoped that the new program will ensure a better home for every American family.

Earlier, Mayor Schaefer, told the guests that city housing problems are being solved with state and federal help. However "we are not totally dependent on state and federal help we're trying to solve our problems on our own.

Syphillis test victims seek $1.8 billion through LDF suit

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The NAACP has charged in a $1.8 billion suit that federal and state agencies lured 600 black men into a syphilis experiment with promises of free food, free rides and cheap burials.

The NAACP's Legal Defense Fund said in the federal suit that 399 of the men had syphilis and "were untreated and uninformed of the nature of their illness as part of a government-sponsored experiment. The victims were told they were joining a health program."

Because the 399 syphilitics in the Tuskegee experiment were not treated — even after it was discovered that penicillin was an effective treatment — "dying black numbers" of them developed diseases of the heart and central nervous system, and their death rate was twice as high as that of 201 members of a control group who did not have the disease, the suit said.

"By 1972, there were only 74 known survivors, all of whom had been subject to various disabilities because of untreated syphilis," it said.

Children of the untreated syphilitics sometimes were born with abnormalities, said the suit.

"All the participants, 85 per cent of whom had less than a sixth grade education, were persuaded to join a social club named after the Public Health Service nurse who supervised the study in the field," the suit said.

"Inducements to join were offers of free medicine (except for syphilis), free rides in government limousines with government decals on the doors, cash payments of $35, inexpensive burials and free hot meals on examination day," the NAACP said.

It quoted one unnamed witness as saying, "Free hot meals meant more than $50 worth of free medical examination."

The suit asked for $3 million in damages for each of the 600 men — including the members of the control group — who took part in the experiment, which began in 1932.

It also asked for an injunction against any such experiment in the future "except with the informed consent of the subjects and proper guidelines for human experimentation."

Man, 42, dies from stab wounds

Frederick Fenwick, 42, 1800 block W. Franklin St., died at the University Hospital Tuesday evening from knife wounds he suffered on his neck during a fight Sunday evening.

Charged with homicide is Michael Johnson, 47, 2900 block Ulman Ave.

Johnson, originally charged with assault with intent to murder, was rearrested in his home late Tuesday night and charged, police said.

William Ramsey, a Western District patrolman reports while he was on patrol duties in the 1300 block Stockton St. about 7:35 p.m. Sunday he was flagged down by a group of persons who reported a man had been stabbed.

He found the victim lying on the sidewalk bleeding profusely from knife wounds of the neck.

According to Officer Ramsey he transported the victim to the Maryland General Hospital for treatment. He was later transferred to the University Hospital.

Acting on tips from eyewitnesses, records show, police arrested a man a few blocks away from the scene. A knife was found on him, according to police.

The body of Mr. Fenwick remains at Baltimore City morgue.
