PSTA returned by board vote

By a 5-to-1 vote, the state Board of Education Wednesday returned collective bargaining rights for city teachers to the Public School Teachers Association (PSTA) and ordered local school boards to "prevent the recurrence" of similar situations.

The decision validated an overwhelming June 8 association victory over the Baltimore Teacher's Union (BTU) while at the same time overturning a June verdict by state appointed election judge Leon Sachs.

Acting on a BTU appeal, Judge Sachs had thrown out the results of the election on grounds of election irregularities and ordered a new election this fall.

Judge Sachs had ruled that the use of school principals as elections clerks was in violation of state law. The state Board of Education, however, disagreed that their use had jeopardized the fairness of the election, though it questioned the "inadequacy of planning for and the execution of the election."

Union leaders said they would meet shortly to decide whether to further contest their appeal in lengthy court proceedings.

MONDAY 7 P.M. — This was scene at Bentalou and Baker Sts. in northwest Baltimore when AFRO photographer Benjamin Murphy Phillips IV arrived on scene. Diamond taxi, license 1766B, right, and a Chrysler met at the intersection. Ambulance attendants help one of injured to ambulance. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

Hospital workers plan Aug. 1 strike

Fred Punch, president of local 1199E, the National Union of Hospital and Nursing Home Employees, announced Tuesday that are forred to pinch pentiate a wage and benefit settlement with his union in the next week, the employees will strike, starting August 1.

The 1500 union members authorized Mr. Punch to act as spokesman and approved the proposed strike action.

According to Mr. Punch, negotiations have been going on for the last 30 days, and had recently been placed under federal arbitration. The union thinks that wages and benefits are inadequate.

Mr. Punch said, "I lay the responsibility in the laps of Governor Marvin Mandel, the members of the state legislature, and the industry itself."

He feels that the lack of funds is not entirely the homes' fault.

He said, "Most of the patients are state patients, but the payments from the state are not adequate."

He also blamed the state for the poor care given in some nursing homes. "They are forred to pinch pennies," he remarked.

Mr. Punch added, "The blood of what happens starting August 1 will be on the governor's hands." The move would affect some 3,000 patients.

Mr. Punch added, "The negotiate with each nursing home." About 18 institutions are involved.

1731 E. Chase Street also faces legal action that grew out of a street shooting of a roofer in February this year.

Police state the youth was first charged as an adult and later those charges were dropped and was instead charged as a juvenile with an attempt to murder and possession of firearms.

Miss Pauline Sanders, 45, Earl Johnson's mother, told the AFRO, "I don't know how I'm going to live through all that." She stated her son were coming from a playing field. She said she did not believe they started the fight.

Young Johnson was a 11th grade printing student at the Mergenthaler High School. He was to be in his last grade next year.

In addition to his mother and two brothers, Johnson is also survived by his father, Percy Johnson; two sisters, Misses Jane and Mamie Johnson and four brothers, David, Evra Johnson and Theodore and Anthony Sanders.

REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

The first six months of the year have resulted in IDEAL crossing the million dollar mark in assets and presenting to the community a continuing source of mortgage funds. In the period just ending your association has increased its assets more than all of last year and was made possible by the addition to savings accounts in the amount of $131,635.13.

This has enabled your association to make mortgage loans to an additional number of home buyers who are no longer renters.

Your association has just distributed the sum of $17,357.06 in the form of dividends to its share holders which is another high mark in funds returned to the community, and is another example of what the pooling of financial resources can do under competent management.

Additional deposits to your savings accounts will result in even further gains for the remaining half of the year. Take the time to visit the association and learn just how we can be of help to you in your financial needs.

Now is the time to become a member of Baltimore's newest million dollar business.

Dr. Alexander sues Mr. Russell for $250,000 damages

Dr. C. Alex Alexander has filed a $250,000 suit against George L. Russell Jr. President Hospital's receiver and Henry J. Whyte, the hospital's administrator.

The suit was filed July 21 in Baltimore City Court by Harold Buchman and Kenneth L. Johnson attorneys for Dr. Alexander.

In the suit, Dr. Alexander charges Mr. Russell with interfering in the daily affairs of the hospital in a manner totally unrelated to his duties as chairman of the Board of Trustees.

The suit states when Dr. Alexander tried to secure the removal of an unlicensed physician in the emergency room, he was immediately met by the resentment of Mr. Russell and Mr. Whyte.

According to the court record, there was a long delay before the change was finally made, even though the continued stay of the unlicensed doctor was obviously not in accord with medical practices.

According to the suit filed, Dr. Alexander was responsible for many improvements at President after joining the staff in October, 1971 at a salary of $35,000 a year.

The suit states that Dr. Alexander expressed to the Board of Trustees, Mr Russell and Mr. Whyte, his extreme concern about the muddled way in which the finances of the hospital were being handled, the lack of a clear budget and the absence of a well developed financial perspective which could lead to disaster.

The records state the reaction of Mr. Russell to Dr. Alexander was an expression of great personal malice towards Dr. Alexander in private conversations.

Court records state Dr. Alexander came to President Hospital from Johns Hopkins Hospital where he was a professor of Public Health Administration and coordinator of the residency training program in general preventive medicine.

In the suit, Dr. Alexander states he called for changes that involved employees in the personnel department, the switchboard department, admissions office, housekeeping and maintenance, all administrative services in the hospital, and particularly in the area of persons with whom Mr. Russell and Mr. Whyte had developed friendships with at the hospital.

In the suit, Dr. Alexander contends that Mr. Russell did not give him a required 120 day notice prior to his dismissal. Dr. Alexander claims he has suffered great pain and mental anguish, humiliation and embarrassment, all to his great damage.

Store barred from accepting food stamps

The Friendly Food Store, located at 921 W. Fayette St. has had its authorization to accept food stamps withdrawn for 30 days by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

According to John F. Conaboy, the Food Stamp Program Director in the USDA's Northeast Regional Food and Nutrition Service office here, the store's owner was charged with illegally accepting food stamps as payment for ineligible items, including paper products, soaps, floor wax, disinfectant and window cleaner.

"Food coupons, by law, can only be used to buy food, excluding imported foods that compete with domestically produced items," Conaboy explained.

"Store authorized to accept food stamps agree in advance to abide by the laws and regulations," he said. "Any store that violates them, or anyone who pressures a store to do so, defeats the program's purpose of combatting hunger and malnutrition."

The store may reapply to the USDA for reinstatement in the program to take effect at the end of the suspension period.

In both deaths, an invisible organization purported to be composed of black Vietnam veterans and goes by the name, Black October, claims credit.

The organization which vows elimination of cone and dope peddlers from the black community charged the two executed men with selling dope.

Del. Scott, at the time of his death, had been charged with conspiracy to transfer over $10 million narcotics from New York to Baltimore. He was due to stand trial on the federal charges five weeks before the murder.

Near his body as well as that of Evans, who was slain in front of his home, were leaflets left by the Black October. Some of the slogans read: "Off the pusher." "There is no hope in dope." "Dope pushing is treason."

However, Black October is said to report Dobson is not a member of the organization and is not responsible for the slaughter of the two men.

Police have further said that fingerprints on Black October leaflets found in his home match those found on literature near the body of the state legislator.

Mr. Hill refused to comment on the fingerprints stating: "The States Attorney has instructed us not to give any information about that."

Young Dobson is being held without bond and is due to appear for preliminary hearing Aug. 2.

The seven-count indictments against him include kidnapping a Royal Cab stolen and destroyed July 12 and armed robbery of Meridith, the cab-driver.

He is also charged with larceny of a Maryland license tag and armed robbery of William R. Davis June 15 in which a .38 caliber revolver recovered later from the suspect was taken. He is also charged with obliterating the serial number of that same weapon.

Man found guilty of murder and robbery

Donald J. Brown, 20, was convicted on Tuesday by a Criminal Court jury of armed robbery and murder of William E. Parker, 77, 4309 block Norfolk Ave., last February.

The defendant faces a possible life sentence plus 20 years. Judge Charles D. Harris presided at the trial. Sentence has not been imposed pending the results of a probation report.

According to court records, Brown was one of three men who robbed Mr. Parker's grocery store in the 300 block Gilmore St. Court records state the victim was shot in his store.

Records placed before the court claim that Brown said he was under the influence of drugs when the shooting occurred.

Court records show Brown was one of the three men charged with the Jan. 31, stabbing of George Trivan, 62, owner of a grocery store in the 330 block Schroeder St.

Larry Owens, 20, 500 block Otterbein St. received life plus 20 years earlier this year for the February 1972 holdup and slaying of Allan Keane, 23, 2500 block W. Franklin St. Mr. Keane operated a cleaners in the 1400 block Franklin St.

According to Miss Barbara Daly, the prosecutor, the third suspect is still awaiting trial.

INSIDE LOOKING OUT

Open letter to Mr. Russell

Dear George: — Provident Hospital has a large, almost empty, parking lot which many visitors to the hospital could use, but don't.

The sign at the entrance to this lot says that you must have 75 cents in exact change in order to use it. As I look from my window, there are 16 cars parked there.

Why not reduce the rate to 25 cents in exact change? In that way it is possible that 48 people would use the lot, the hospital will collect the same amount of money would be able to park nearer the hospital.

It is a frightening thing at night to watch many people walk past this empty lot to cars parked on the street two or three blocks away. How about it George? — Mrs. Frances L. Murphy.

Pen inmates file $ million damage suit

A million dollar suit against two high ranking officials and seven prison guards at the Maryland State Penitentiary was filed in Federal Court Thursday by five inmates of that institution.

The suit claims that five inmates, Marshall Conway, Robert Foulkes, Thomas Kalther, Clifton Wiggins and Robert Austin were individually removed from their cells and systematically "beaten with clubs and fists, kicked, punched and assaulted with other objects" by officers Donald Green, Gary Rhodes (first name unknown) Smith, Dale McCullough, Alexander Williams and several other unidentified guards.

The suit further alleges that the beatings were the result of preconcerted plans by the warden and his assistant who, "supervised, directed and witnessed the attacks by the other named defendants on plaintiffs."

According to the suit, Warden Gerald McClellan and Assistant Warden Mckinsey Hawkins conspired with the above named guards to "inflict injury and punishment" on the five inmates and to "deny their constitutional rights."

The inmates allege that the two men "sanctioned the beatings of the prisoners and failed to act in their official capacities to prevent the beatings."

The alleged beatings, according to the plaintiffs, came as a result of a July 12 incident involving guards and inmates in the west wing of the penitentiary, which resulted in the stabbing of an officer, J. O. Johnson.

According to reports, five inmates suspected of causing the disruption were rounded up and escorted by correctional officers to an individual cell in the isolated confinement area.

Arts fair to benefit center

The Timbuktu Center will present a cultural arts affair July 28, at 8 p.m. at Walbrook Senior High School auditorium with special attraction, saxophonist Carlos Garnett and the Universal Black Force.

The evening's activities will also include benefit appearances by Julius Brockington, United Chair and Chocolate Rain.

Proceeds from the affair will be used for the development of the Timbuktu Center as an alternative black school.

Md. mental patients can protest committal

Under a new set of rules signed by Neil Solomon, the state health secretary, persons committed against their will to mental institutions in the state will have the right to protest the committal. This will be a first in Maryland.

According to the regulations, which will become effective October 1, a hearing officer must hear the evidence on which the person was committed. This action must occur within five working days of the date of admission.

The patient will be released and his time spent the institution will be erased from legal record if his admittance is ruled unnecessary.

At present, certification by two physicians is all that is needed in Maryland to involuntarily commit a person.

A class action suit filed by a group of interested and involved persons, represented by Legal Aid, in March of 1970 was the initial force behind the regulation change.

Kermit Campbell Last rites

Funeral services were held Thursday for Kermit O. Campbell at Sharon Baptist Church. Mr. Campbell, 69, died Saturday at his home in the 3700 block Columbus Dr.

For 40 years, he was employed as a caterer. Mr. Kermit was a long time active member of Sharon Baptist Church. He was a member of the Gospel Choir, trustee board, a deacon and a member of the Men's choir.

For 35 years, Mr. Kermit was married to Mrs. Elvira Campbell. In addition to his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Winifred Clayton, Mrs. Winifred Charles T. Ashmore. He is buried in Arbutus Cemetery.

Car overturns on Liberty Hgts.

Persons living along the 3600 block of Liberty Heights Ave. called the AFRO last Friday afternoon to report a car flipping over on the street. None could explain how it happened.

"This car just turned one caller said. "I didn't see it hit anything or anyone."

According to police reports, Norah Lawson, 45, was driving west on Liberty Heights when an unidentified bicyclist turned in front of his 1960 Chrysler sedan. Lawson swerved out of the way and his car went out of control.

The auto collided with a light pole at the corner of Copley Rd. and Liberty Heights Ave., careened off and overturned.

Lawson, the lone occupant, was, according to witnesses, trapped inside the car and a bystander pulled him to safety. In addition to police and an ambulance responding to the emergency, a fire truck was called to the scene and wetted down the smoking auto to prevent fire or an explosion.

Lawson was treated at Provident Hospital and released later that day.

City school discrimination suit delayed

Additional time has been granted the city and school board to answer a suit filed on behalf of four black children who claim they are being discriminated against.

Federal Judge Herbert F. Murray extended the time limit beyond the ordinary boundaries at the defendants' lawyers request. The new answering date is Aug. 6.

Named in the suit are Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer, the City Council and the city School Board.

The suit contends the children are not being allowed to attend Falstaff Middle School because of its closed admission policy. Arlington Elementary School, where the children attend, is not included as a feeder school for the new middle school.

Lawyer for the plaintiffs, Leonard A. Briscoe refused Thursday to answer press questions on the extension.

Fire chiefs convention

The International Association of Fire Chiefs will assemble in Baltimore on October 20 to hold their 100th Annual Conference.

Approximately 2,500 fire chiefs, their associates and 1500 ladies will conduct the business of an Annual Convention.

A parade, memorial service, business session, fire equipment demonstrations and exhibitions, bus and harbor tours, Ladies' Luncheon and show, Baltimore Night at the Armory and a banquet at the Civic Center are planned.

Woman, 27, charged in youth's death

A 27-year-old West Baltimore woman was arrested Wednesday afternoon and charged with the stabbing death of Arnold Diggs, 10, during an argument in the 2700 block N. Eutaw Pl.

Records show Miss Pearl Dilworth, 2300 block Eutaw Pl., is being held without bond in the City Jail pending grand jury action today (Friday.)

Diggs, stabbed twice, once in the stomach and in the chest, was pronounced dead at 12:50 a.m. at the Provident Hospital.

Western District Patrolman L. Fowlkes reports he found the victim lying on his back and a woman holding a piece of cloth over his chest wounds.

Later identified as Thelma Diggs, 15, 900 block Argyle Ave., the woman told police another woman stabbed her son. The suspect was arrested only a door away after witnesses told police she had been in a fight with the victim just before he was found bleeding from the chest.

The body remains at the City Morgue Thursday at AFRO presstime.
