AFRO readers rally encourage Tommy

The staff of the Johns Hopkins Child Growth and Development Study group was so pleased to hear of Tommy Jefferies' success that it raised $37 to help him fulfill his dream of attending McDonogh.

Staff members J.C. Burbridge, Mrs. Doris W. Welcher, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hardy and Mrs. Cassandra Young tell Tommy, "it is difficult to put your best foot forward when you see and read about so many adversities in the common man's life as well as in the lives and work of our political leaders.

'However, you are demonstrating that you have faith in yourself and in your world. It is so important for young people like yourself to maintain this kind of fortitude for you will be our future leaders."

Tommy can be a leader, and fulfill his goal of "working in the field of computer programming," if enough of his fellow Baltimoreans care.

The talented 7th grader needs $3450 to cover his tuition and board for his first year at McDonogh, a private boy's school in Baltimore County, near Pikesville.

McDonogh officials say that if Tommy does well in the coming year, future financial aid should not be a problem.

AFRO readers have so far contributed $490 toward Tommy's tuition.

Tommy is working this summer with his school social worker and number one supporter, Miss Barbara Gaver, doing odd jobs around her home. He said, "I'm really proud of the $200 I've earned. At first I didn't think anyone would be interested in me. Now that I know I have so many friends, I'm sure I can make it."

If you want to help fulfill Tommy's dream make checks or money orders payable to the Tommy Jefferies Scholarship Fund, care of the AFRO-AMERICAN, P.O. Box 1837, Baltimore Md. 21203.
