Woodlawn HIGHlights

MRS. GREEN

By Marjorie R. Green

Editor's Note: Vacationing recently was our friend Mrs. Majorie R. Green. She sends us these notes from her vacation in Acapulco, Mexico.

A group of us just arrived back in Baltimore after enjoying a fantastic vacation in Acapulco, Mexico. The trip that began and ended at Byrd Airport in Richmond, Va. was sponsored by the fabulous Richmond Chapter of the National EPICUREANS, INC. I just can't begin to say enough nice things about the EPPIES whose first concern during the entire trip was to see that each one of their guests enjoyed their visit to the swank ACAPULCO PRINCESS HOTEL.

The Princess has been called the most beautiful hotel in the world. It is a private and complete resort complex situated on 200 landscape acres and a magnificent sweep of Pacific Beach.

From the balcony of my pent-house room on the twentieth floor, I could view the arrival of guests as they drove up the long winding driveway. It was from this vantage point last Wednesday that I witnessed the arrival of Mayor Walter E. Washington, who according to a Washington member of our party was in Acapulco as the guest of the Mexican President.

Since summer never leaves Acapulco the men were always completely relaxed in casual attire. White pants, white shoes and shorts were a must. Strictly taboo was the tie and jacket. It was the ladies who really stole the show as they donned their long dresses and skirts for dinner that started at 9 o'clock.

Never have I seen a group that could match the flare and elegance of the Richmond Epicureans and their guests. It was a group of people packed with wit, beauty and talent.

Mrs. Carolyn Mosby, Mrs. Iantha C. Courtney, Mrs. Muriel Burrell, Mrs. Marie Hunter, Miss Renee Hale, Miss Cheryl Howell, Miss Yolanda Burrell, Mr. Ira A. Kyles, Mr. Joseph Battle.

Others in the party from Ettrick, Va., Columbia, S.C., Elizabeth City, N.C., Colonial Heights, Va., Ann Arbor, Michigan, Savannah, Ga., Chicago, Illinois, Worthington, Ohio, New York included: Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Dunn (Myrtle), Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Bridges Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Bridges Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Caldwell (Helen), Mr. and Mrs. Herb Ellis (Virginia), Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Mitter (Ann), Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Hill, Mrs. William Bennett, Mrs. Lillian W. Lovett, Mrs. Bernice Winston, Mrs. Roberta Simms, Mrs. Alice Bond, Mrs. Irman Thomas, and Miss Mary M. Riley.

Coast Guard wives installed at luncheon

Curtis, Bay, Baltimore, Md. — The Alumnae House at the Naval Academy in Annapolis was the scene of a luncheon attended by the Coast Guard Officers' Wives Club of Baltimore upon installation of new officers. Mrs. R. W. Goode, honorary president, installed the following new officers: Mrs. Patrick M. Jacobsen, of Grosvenor Lane, Severna Park, Md., president: Mrs. John Buzga, of Pleasantville Drive, Baltimore, vice president; Mrs. Harry Kosky, of Emerson Rd., Severna Park, recording secretary; Mrs. George E. Beal, of Old Mill Rd., Pasadena, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. John R. Arnold, of Charles Rd., Linthicum, Md., treasurer.

Mrs. Charles F. Coolidge, of Idlewood St., Glen Burnie, Md., outgoing president, was presented with a token gift.

Honored guests in attendance were Mrs. Thomas R. Sargent, Mrs. Helmer S. Pearson, Mrs. Ellis L. Perry, and Mrs. James W. Moreau, of Washington, D.C.

The opening event for the 1973-74 season of the Club will be the "welcome aboard" coffee to be held at the quarters of Captain and Mrs. R. W. Goode, at the Coast Guard Yard, in September.

'Education crisis is survival,' Georgia legislator tells AFT

By Nerissa M. English

Congressman Andrew Young of Georgia told delegates at the American Federation of Teachers Civil Rights luncheon Tuesday that the "success or failure of the civil rights and civil liberties in this country depend in good measure on what happens in each and every classroom from coast to coast."

In further relating the educational role of society with the civil rights movement, Young told the more than 2,000 delegates that the "civil rights struggle of today is very much intertwined with the struggle for the survival of public education."

Young said that the problems which face society are a part of the civil rights movement, the education movement and the labor movement and that all find themselves pretty much facing the same questions.

"In facing that question," continued Young, "we find that right now together we are in the midst of the battleground for civil rights in our day."

Acknowledging to that Americans hear most about the busing problem, the young Southern Congressman said that "more challenging than busing is the task of really integrating American life."

Young said that new forms of segregation are emerging within the educational system, the public schools for the poor, the parochial schools for the middle class and the private schools for others, "separating one segment of our society from the rest."

The Georgia representative said that Americans can no longer afford this "polarization" and that unless Americans work together "none of us is going to survive unless we solve some of those problems."

Young said that in viewing many of the policies of leading political candidates, he found that they were advocating ideas which he felt were "detrimental to public education and reflecting a kind of rule of despair over the system of public education in this country that seems to be dangerous not only for teachers and school administrators but dangerous for the very fabric of the American way of life."

Noting that the most significant challenge is one to protect the public schools, Young told the delegates that each much face the fact that racism is a part of every life.

"It seems to me that there is almost no way that you could have been born in this country in the last 50 years, no matter what color you are, and have escaped some aspect of the disease racism," stated the young Congressional representative.

Citing incidents in the educational system which are blamed on the racial issue, Young said, "Lots of the problems we are dealing with in our schools which seem to be part of a racial crisis or which seem to be part of a demoralizing of public education have very little to do with race in the classroom or the fact that schools are integrated in the first place."

Young told the AFT delegates that the people who feel that al is lost in education "haven't been around the public school in a long, long time."

He also told the delegates that if America's youth of the future are going to compete with the rest of the world "there is no such thing as quality education to prepare our children for the future that does not prepare them to deal with 'colored' folk," because the markets in which they will compete, citing Brazil and Africa, would include "colored folk."

Hints For Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

The cottage at the lake has been opened for about two months now, but this past week was the first time I had the chance to enjoy all that fresh air and sunshine. My son Rick, his wife Carolyn and four of their friends, along with my husband Richard and myself spent the week doing nothing but playing.

But then came the day of reckoning... dirty clothes as far as the eye could see... made of every type fabric known to man... requiring almost every water temperature available. I needed HELP!

WISK TO THE RESCUE

Then my eye fell on the new gallon jug of WISK. If ever WISK was to be put to the test, now was the time... ground-in dirt, fish stains and smells, food stains. You name the stain—I had it.

I measured WISK for the entire load, then pretreated by pouring some WISK directly on the heavily soiled places... no pre-soaking, no harmful bleach, no real need to add anything else. WISK is all I need.

I put the clothes in the washer, along with the remaining WISK, closed the lid, and let WISK do its thing.

Knowing that WISK starts to clean before you start to wash, I separated all the rest of that horrible mess known as "lake laundry" and pretreated the soiled areas ahead of time, followed by some gentle rubbing.

Now I have always known that WISK removes "ring around the collar" and cuffs, but it was right next to miraculous the way it handled those soiled "lake" clothes.

Every stain was gone, each article of clothing looked as good as the day we got to the lake. Even the men took time out to admire the great job WISK had done. Needless to say, I'll never dread "lake laundry" again.

LIFEBUOY TO START THE DAY

With all the togetherness we have at the lake, the bathroom and kitchen have an ample supply of LIFEBUOY. It truly is an effective deodorant soap.

We generally start our day with a brisk LIFEBUOY shower, confident in its assurance that "LIFEBUOY's deodorant protection keeps you smelling clean."

At the end of the day, with so many previously unused muscles screaming for help, the greatest answer in the world is a relaxing hot bath with LIFEBUOY!

I think that many of us today tend to forget that LIFEBUOY is America's oldest brand-name toilet soap dating back to 1895—and its excellent deodorant qualities have certainly improved with age.

LIFEBUOY's mild but highly effective formula also aids in your daily complexion care, and its fragrance and choice of three colors are so pleasurable to the senses.

And, on top of all its known qualities, we have found that LIFEBUOY removes the fish smell from our hands with just a simple washing. It really gives you a lift in so many different ways.

CLOSE-UP 'TREATS' YOUR MOUTH

The afternoon we arrived at the lake was rather hectic. Everyone was anxious to get in the water, then to eat, unpack, etc. One of the girls took me aside to tell me of a "dire emergency." It turned out that this newly married lovely had forgotten her toothpaste.

Now, Mother Kaiser was indeed able to come to the rescue with CLOSE-UP toothpaste. We always keep extra personal items for our guests. Someone always forgets something, and the nearest store is a good ten miles away.

Our guest had never tried CLOSE-UP. After using it, she became an immediate convert to this double-treat toothpaste and mouthwash. As she said, CLOSE-UP toothpaste saves all that hassle of not only brushing your teeth, but trying to find the right mouthwash.

During that week we were able to see the results of our help, and her new husband readily testified to CLOSE-UP's fresher breath. And thus another crisis was averted at the Kaiser cottage.

We all love the fresh, clean taste of CLOSE-UP toothpaste. You never know when you're going to be up close, where CLOSE-UP's special whiteners and real mouthwash let you be up close without being up tight.
