Man shot by police after traffic violation still in hospital

A 27-year-old city man was shot by Central District Police Officer Thomas Cave last Sunday night after an auto chase which began, police say, when the subject allegedly committed a traffic violation in the 1700 block of McCulloh St. The injured man, McArthur Williams, remains in Maryland General Hospital in fair condition, with two bullet wounds in his body.

According to police, Mr. Williams, 2600 block of Barclay St., was operating a vehicle accompanied by a woman passenger. Miss Nancy Lynch, 42, 3900 block of Laclede Rd., Baltimore County.

Police reports say that Williams had failed to pull to the side upon the approach of an on-coming emergency vehicle, emergency vehicle.

Officers who observed the alleged violation attempted, they claim, unsuccessfully at first, to get Mr. Williams to pull his car over in the 1700 block of McCulloh St.

Police say the white 1974 Plymouth then made a right-hand turn onto North Ave., made another right at John St. and proceeded south with the officers in pursuit.

On John St. the vehicle went out of control, veering to the right when jumped the curve, struck an auto and continued across an empty parking lot to McMechen St.; it proceeded east, police stated, to Mt. Royal Ave. where it stopped after sliding approximately 50 feet.

The officers say they pulled their patrol car up next to the left side of the subject's vehicle and observed Mr. Williams allegedly assaultive his female passenger; saying that he grabbed her about the neck with his left arm and placed his right hand under her chin.

According to the police report, Officer Cave shot Mr. Williams twice after the subject allegedly refused to release the woman.

The policeman, as his version of the incident goes, said in his report that he was under impression that the woman's life was in danger, which was his excuse for shooting Mr. Williams.

An ambulance responded to the scene and transported Williams to Maryland General Hospital for treatment of two gunshot wounds of his upper torso.

Mr. Williams is still under police guard at the hospital.

Police say that he has been charged with seven traffic violations some of them being: driving on the sidewalk, driving without a license, operating a vehicle on approach of an emergency vehicle, wreckless driving, fleeing and attempting to elude a police officer and two other charges.

An assault charge is pending Mr. Williams' release from the hospital.

When reached at his office for comment Dennis Smith, the public information officer for the Police Department, was asked by the AFRO why the officers did not try to adversely remove Mr. Williams, an unarmed man, from the vehicle instead of shooting him.

He replied that he had heard from a source close to the investigation of this incident that the policeman who fired the shots thought he saw an object in the guy's hand."
