Pitch 'em out of ring mat feature at Civic

A 20-man wrestling royal staged on a winner-take-all, hoholds-barred basis, headlines the return of professional wrestling to the Baltimore Civic Center following a two-month lapse next Wednesday night.

This no-holds-barred free-for-all requires that a contestant must be eliminated via a toss over the ring ropes.

Each of the 20 matmen must post a $250 entry fee and promoter Phil Zacko the remaining $5,000 toward the $10,000 purse that will be awarded the last wrestler remaining in the ring after the 19 others are pitched outside.

The winner also wil receive a title chance against World Wide Wrestling Federation heavyweight champion Pedro Morales on the same card while the 10 supporting matches will be announced when the parings are made following the wrestling royal.

Injury shelves Redskins' Willis

The Washington Redskins have announced that rookie cornerback Larry Willis has been placed on the injured reserve list as a result of a serious concussion suffered last Sunday in the game with the Baltimore Colts.

Willis will be replaced on the Redskin roster by free agent Ken Stone.

Willis who had just been activated by the Skins, was injured attempting to block a punt in the game with the Colts.

Banks' successor, Nat Taylor, vows tougher days for Bears

By Sam Lacy

Earl Banks
he plays it cool

There are those who will wonder how it is possible, but beginning next fall football at Morgan State College is going to be a lot tougher to stomach.

A new hand will be wielding the whip and it promises to "make some changes" and rid the squad of a few pockets of indifference which have reportedly plagued Bears elevens in recent years.

That is the expectancy of Nathaniel "Nat" Taylor, who has been tapped to succeed Earl "Papa Bear" Banks, who retired from the sidelines to take over full time as athletic director at Morgan.

Taylor made known his plans — and hopes — just prior to last Saturday's 39-6 Morgan victory over Virginia State at Hughes Stadium, which was Banks' final game as head coach.

He talked at some length of his great respect for Banks, and of the satisfaction he derived in working with, and under, Earl. Then, in answer to a question, Nat outlined his views.

"There are a lot of little things I intend to change" he said. "Little things that have been tolerated by all of us which, eliminated, could bring better all-round results.

Nat Taylor
steams up quickly

"That isn't to imply that Coach Banks is soft, or that he put up with behavior that hurt the team. He is not now, nor has he ever been guilty of taking the easy way in handling a situation.

"The fact is that we both have the same objectives and philosophies. Otherwise I doubt that he would have recommended me for the job.

"It is simply that I have a lower tolerance point. I get steamed up quickly; Earl doesn't. And I react right away whereas Coach Banks adopts a cooler stance, then acts in his own positive way.

"Whether the results will be the same, better, or worse, remains to be seen." Taylor continued, "but I expect to be accused of the old 'new broom' behavior.

"Never mind that, things are going to be different. Earl has indicated that it is alright with him, and that is all I need."

Black QB's feature Saturday battle for national title

From all indications, the winner of tomorrow's (Saturday) game between Ohio State and Michigan will claim the national collegiate football championship.

The Buckeyes are currently rated No. 1 and the Wolverines No. 4 in the nation. And through an unusual circumstance, both teams are guided by black quarterbacks.

Ohio State plays will be called by Cornelius Greene, and Michigan's by Dennis Franklin.

A nationwide television audience expects to witness an outstanding battle, such as the Buckeyes and Wolverines always stage.

In addition to Greene, a freshman from Washington (D.C.), Ohio State has an added dimension in tailback Archie Griffin, one of the most explosive runners in major college football.

Griffin, having a sparing Saturday against Iowa, kling game in his latest outrun his season's total to 1,265 yards. And Greene, though a QB, has rolled off 643 yards on his own.

Franklin, shocking the country the last two years with his cool, workmanlike job for coach Bo Schembechler, has been at the Wolverine helm through two unbeaten seasons, including this one which goes into its finale with a 10-0 record.

Michigan lost in Columbus, Ohio, 14-11, last season so they went home as co-champions while the Buckeyes went to Pasadena, Calif., for the Rose Bowl. Schembechler took a lot of flak from the game because he obstensibly declined to go for safe field goals several times on fourth down inside the Ohio state 10-yard line.

Michigan dominated that game statistically, but Ohio State dominated the scoreboard.

"We made a vow — not a goal, a vow — that no one would stop us (this year) inside the 10," Schembechler says. "So far, no one has — and they won't either."

The intense Michigan coach, whose team is in its sixth straight battle with Ohio State in which either the Rose Bowl or Big Ten title or both was at stake, refuted the allegation his teams can't win the "BIG ONE."

"What is a big game?" he asked. "I've had six big games since I've been here — and I've lost all six of them." He was referring to the fact he's only had six games since taking over at Michigan five seasons ago.

"You have to remember games," he said. "I'm not this is just a football game. I'm going to kill myself if we lose."

Then he laughed as he added a zinger: "I might kill somebody else, though."

DIAL DOWN TO NO MORE THAN 68° DURING THE DAY.

IF WE ALL SET OUR THERMOSTATS A LITTLE LOWER, WE CAN EASE THE HEATING FUEL SHORTAGE.

Our country is going to be short of heating fuel this winter. All kinds of heating fuels—oil, gas, electric. It's part of the national energy crisis the President talked about on TV.

How bad the shortage will be depends on two things: the severity of the weather, and what we all do to conserve the fuel supply.

We can't do anything about the weather, but there's a lot we can do to conserve. The easiest thing is to dial down the thermostat so the heating system doesn't use as much fuel.

Keep the thermostat set at no more than 68° during the day, and lower it even more overnight when the family is snug in bed.

Just doing this will save important amounts of fuel, no matter what kind of fuel you burn. If we all do it, enough fuel will be saved to ease the shortage.

Some people may find 68° a bit chilly. But slipping on a light sweater is a better answer than turning up the heat.

WHAT HAPPENS IF WE DON'T CONSERVE?

If we don't conserve, the shortage will begin to affect all of us personally and importantly. As the fuel supply gets short, schools will have to close. Businesses will close, too.

Electric utilities that use heating oil to generate electric power will be forced into brownouts. In short, our entire economy could be affected.

Conversely, if we all conserve a little, there won't be as much of a shortage, and we won't feel it as badly.

THE GASOLINE YOU DIDN'T USE LAST SUMMER BEAT THAT SHORTAGE

Last summer, the country was headed for a gasoline shortage. And people conserved gasoline to help ease it. For example, in the month of July, official records show that automobile traffic on interstate highways and attendance at national parks was down substantially over the same month the preceding year.

The result was that very few communities suffered severe run-outs. In fact, most people felt nothing more than a minor inconvenience.

WHAT AMOCO IS DOING TO EASE THE SHORTAGE

This ad is part of a total communications program on our part to help conserve heating fuel. We're telling all Amoco employees to dial down, both at work and at home. We're urging other businesses to dial down, too. And we're asking you to do the same. It's a job for all of us because it's important to all of us.

We are trying to make enough heating oil to supply our customers' needs this winter. But we can only get so much crude oil, and it may not be enough to keep our refineries going at top production.

We are spending 88 million dollars so our Texas City refinery can handle high sulfur foreign crude oil.

We have allocated our inventories of heating oil as fairly as we know how, and we are participating in the government's allocation program.

Further, we stand ready to implement special emergency plans in areas where the heating fuel shortage hits the hardest.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START CONSERVING

The heating fuel you conserve in the early part of the year will make that much more available when the really cold weather hits.

So dial down today. And tonight. And check your home for other ways to conserve. For a free booklet on what to do, contact your Amoco heating fuel man, or write: Heating Fuel Conservation, Amoco Oil Company, MC 1506, P.O. Box 6110A, Chicago, Illinois 60680.
