Gay Street Renewal Project Covers 75 Acres

By Charles E. Roberts Jr.

A substantial area of East Baltimore, 75 gross acres, is being developed under the auspices of the Baltimore City Department of Housing and Community Development.

Richard Davis, director of Information services for the Urban Renewal Project.

The project includes 60 units of town houses and public housing structures.

Before renewal the area consisted of 1,538 dwelling units; after the project is completed there will be a total of 762 completely new units constructed, Davis says.

* * *

The Gay Street I - Lot four buildings will be rented to low-income families, and are located between Monument and Madison Streets and Eager and Caroline Streets.

The Gay Street I - Lot three structures, to be called the Lester Morton Courts, will be located between Caroline and Bond Streets and Monument and Madison Streets. These buildings are being financed through FHA funds and will be rented to moderate-income families.

The Gay Street I - Lot nine homes will consist of 40 town houses in the area of Madison and Ashland Streets, bounded by Bond Street on the north. These properties will be owned by the Bond Street Housing Corporation and will be offered by them for sale to moderate-income families.

The entire project is being built by Walker and Dunlop, Inc., a Washington real estate firm, and is bounded by E. Biddle St. on the north, Monument Street on the south, Eager Street on the west and the east side of Broadway on the east.

Davis said that the Citizens for Fair Housing were concerned that housing for the low-income families would take on a drab brick and mortar appearance.

He said the organization was instrumental in the planning to insure that families who reside in these homes will live in buildings that are pleasing to the eye on both the exterior and interior.

HCD said that a neighborhood organization, the Citizens for Fair Housing, played a major role in planning the Gay Street I

Renewal area residents relocated

Where do the residents of a particular area go when their neighborhood is earmarked as the site of a major urban renewal project

At one time people were uprooted and relocated with little or no attempt made by city officials to help them with problems they faced as a result of forced relocation.

That appears to have changed somewhat with the establishment of The city's Office of Relocation, operating within the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Warren W. Weaver, director discussed the relocation situation with the AFRO, using the Gay Street I Urban Renewal Project as a case in point.

* * *

Weaver explained that when the residents of that particular East Baltimore neighborhood were displaced as a result of renewal plans, they were given assistance in finding suitable housing in other areas.

In addition, he said that all the former occupants of the area are registered with his office and will be given first and highest consideration for the renewal project's new homes when construction is completed.

Weaver said that these displaced individuals were issued certificates of priority which will give them "first crack at moving back in the area," when the new structures are ready to be occupied.

He said a substantial number of residents, more than he had expected, were able to purchase homes in the area of the Alameda.

Weaver said he was very pleased that they had been able to buy the homes that they wanted there.

Those that were renting properties in the urban renewal area have been widely scattered all over the city.

Calvert Hall, Poly take holiday games

More than 5,000 fans in Memorial Stadium Thursday Calvert Hall squeezed saw by Loyola 14-6 and Poly demolishe City 29-0.

Despite the two sets of scores, Calvert Hall's decision wasn't as close as the score would indicate, and Poly's victory wasn't as lopsided as one might be inclined to believe.

Calvert Hall overcame a mistake plagued fist half to hang on to what easily could have been a lopsided victory.

After taking the opening kick-off on its own 29-yard line, the Cardinals took only seven plays to move the ball within 20 yards of the Loyola goal line.

A couple of successive penalties killed the drive, however, and the Cardinals attempted a 39 yd. field goal and failed.

Loyola's brilliant signal caller Tom Bender and super sophomore running back Pete Legler posed the

Kennedy death 10th anniversary recalls likeness to Abe Lincoln

CLIP AND SAVE

The 10th anniversary of the assassination of U.S. President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1973, recalls something unusual to every person.

Since the tragedy, many AFRO readers have asked for the following collection of facts by Mort Reed.

Both Presidents Lincoln and Kennedy were concerned with the issue of civil rights.

Lincoln was elected in 1860, Kennedy in 1960.

Both were assassinated on a Friday and both in the presence of their wives.

Both presidents were shot from behind and in the head.

Their successors, both named Johnson, were in the Senate and both were southern Democrats.

Andrew Johnson was born in 1808, L.B.J. in 1908.

U.S. PRESIDENT JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY slain Nov. 22, 1963.

John Wilkes Booth and Lee Harvey Oswald were southerners favoring unpopular ideas and both were killed before being brought to trial.

Both president's wives lost children foreugh death while living in the White House.

Lincoln's secretary, whose name was Kennedy advised him not to attend the theatre. Kennedy's secretary by the name of Lincoln warned against the trip to Dallas.

Booth shot Lincoln in the theatre and hid in a warehouse. Oswald shot Kennedy from a warehouse and hid in a theatre.

The last names of both presidents, Lincoln and Kennedy, contain seven letters.

The names of Andrew Johnson and Lyndon Johnson each contain thirteen letters.

The names of John Wilkes Booth and Lee Harvey Oswald each contain fifteen letters.

Milton Allen salute sees 2,000 present

By Charles Roberts

Over 2,000 persons attended a highly successful "Salute to Milton B. Allen" dinner Tuesday night at Martin's West.

The affair was sponsored by a distinguished committee which included Congressman Parren J. Mitchell; prominent businessman Henry Parks, Gov. Marvin Mandel, Mayor William Donald Schaefer, Del. Frank M. Conaway, Councilwoman Victorine Q. Adams, former mayor, Thomas J. D'Alesandro III and many other notable figures.

Numerous dignitaries from the legal, political, and social circles turned out to pay tribute to Mr. Allen, who is one of the country's three black elected states attorneys.

All of those in attendance gathered to honor Mr. Allen, who during his past three years as State's Attorney, has strived for and is successfully attaining, his three major goals while in office: the reduction of the backlog of criminal cases, elevation of the prosecutor's office to a position of respect and high professional competence, and the inauguration of new and imaginative programs to bring criminals to fast and effective justice.

The informal buffet-style dinner saw no political speeches or announcements as such, Mr. Allen merely waved his hands and thanked his friends and supporters for appearing.

Political Inquiry

Q. Why has the lottery become lawful in Maryland? Do winners have to pay taxes on their winnings?

* * *

A. The lottery system is lawful in Maryland as a result of its having been introduced as a bill in the Maryland House of Delegates and subsequently presented to the state populace as a referendum question during the 1972 general election.

Marylanders voted heavily in favor of establishing the lottery as a form of legalized gambling and a source of state revenues.

The total Baltimore City precinct count on the lottery question is recorded by the Board of Supervisor of Elections as 125,130 for and 34,030 against.

* * *

Winnings in the lottery are taxable along with regular income, but lottery losses are also deductable, up to the amount of winnings, if you save your losing tickets as proof of purchase, according to tax officials.

This will give you an idea of how the taxes are paid.

If you win $50,000, and this is your only income, a single person pays $20,190; a married person filing separately pays $22,590, and a married couple filing jointly pays about $17,000.

The million dollar winners are paid in $50,000-a-year amounts, so the tax percentage is about the same.

If you win $1,000 and this brings your income to $10,000 or more the following tax schedule rates will probably apply: for a single, $145; for a married separate, $145, and for a married joint, $140.

For incomes under $10,000 the tax may be computed in the tax tables and will probably be less.

The best news of all is that a $1,000 winner pays no tax at all if the $1000 is his or her total income for the year.

New mailing deadlines

Because of the energy crisis, E. T. Klassen, postmaster general urges Americans to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one or two weeks earlier than the Postal Service originally recommended.

The new deadline for posting domestic first-class Christmas mail is Dec. 8 rather than Dec. 15 as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by Dec. 3, instead of Dec. 10.

Garland trial to be moved

Because of widespread publicity, the police-slaying related trail of Michael Sean Garland, 23, is to be moved from the Baltimore area. Chief Supreme Bench Judge Dulany Foster will set the place at a later date.

Judge Charles D. Harris granted transfer at request of the state "because of the tragic issue of the racially charged case."

Garland, severely injured in the incident, is charged with the April 6 slaying of Officer Robert F. Buchman in the Park Heights area. William H. Murphy Jr. his attorney, charges Garland was beaten by police after the shooting.
