Hospital Patient Gets Outside Death Threats

Mrs. Butler told police a kinsman of a man who shot her at the Fulton Bar, came to the hospital, stood over her bed, "too close for comfort." Hospital security alerted because of death threats coming over the phone.

MRS. ESSIE MAE BUTLER not related to man charged with assault

Provident Hospital authorities report as of Thursday night that Mrs. Essie Mae Butler, 35, 3600 block Belvedere Ave., shot in the Fulton Bar, 1601 Fulton Ave., Nov. 19, is improving.

Miss Patricia Powell, evening supervisor, told the AFRO Mrs. Butler is expected to recover from abdomen bullet wounds.

Police have arrested and charged a suspect of the Fulton Bar incident, Edward (Butch) Butler, 34, 3500 block Elba Dr., of assault by shooting Mrs. Butler (no relation).

Butler turned himself in at Central District Nov. 20.

However, Mrs. Butler told hospital authorities and the police her life has been threatened.

Police reports quote her as saying a relative of the accused man was on two occasions in her room when she awakened.

They quote her as saying at one time she awakened to fine a man sitting in a chair. At another time he was standing over her bed, "too close for comfort," she said.

Miss Powell, the evening supervisor, also told the AFRO due to the wounded woman's reports to her, hospital security has been alerted and all the staff made aware that there may be some danger.

She said Mrs. Butler had only told them of threatening phone calls.

Miss Powell said she had offered the protection of having visitors limited and the phone taken out, but Mrs. Butler refused such restrictions.

Miss Powell told the AFRO, "We are aware of her problem. We offered her everything in the line of safety but she refused."

Mrs. Butler told an AFRO reporter last Sunday that a man had phoned to say, "Oh, you're still alive. Well it won't be long."

* * *

Mrs. Butler was taken to Provident Hospital by Charlies Babbs after the shooting. He told police he was a bar tender at the Fulton Bar.

Police were told that before the shooting Mrs. Butler and a man were at the bar on the second floor when the man said, "Next time I see you, you better have my money."

Police quote Mrs. Butler as saying she owed the man nothing and the man went away.

They state that she told them that he returned swinging an iron pipe. A witness said Mrs. Butler was shot at several times. After she was felled by a bullet, police state that the man then fled in his 1973 Fleetwood Cadillac.

Sarril Road fire renders 28 homeless

About 28 persons were rendered homeless when 16 apartments of the East Ridge Apartments, 5500 Sarril Rd., were completely destroyed in a fire at 10:33 p.m. Wednesday.

It took over 28 firefighters one hour to put out the fire which, police said, was caused by faulty gas furnace on the second floor of the two-story row building.

* * *

No one was seriously hurt in the blaze, but Capt. Barydean O'Marely of the Fire Department, described damage to property as "very considerable."

An official of the East Ridge Apartment told the AFRO, most of the victims are housed in a motel at the expense of the management but others are staying with friends and relatives.

She could not say when it would be completed but work on the destroyed building is due to start soon.

So far none of the victims has approached the International Red Cross Organization for help, but Mr. Mac Barrett, public relations director for the relief organization told he AFRO:

"Even though they have not as yet come to us we're standing by to give them any assistance they may need. That's why we're here." He said any fire victim may call them anytime on 467-9995 for help.

32 graduate today from police school

Police Commissioner Donald D. Pomerleau today announced some 32 probationary Police Officers nated today, Friday, from the Department's Education and Training Division, along with three members of the Annapolis Police Department.

The 9:30 a.m. ceremony was in the auditorium at Headquarters.

AFRO Honor Roll ceremony Dec. 7

The AFRO Honor Roll ceremony is set for 3 p.m., Friday, Dec. 7, in AFRO office at 628 N. Eutaw St. in downtown Baltimore.

At that time handsome engraved plaques will be presented persons who won places on the 1972 AFRO Honor Roll for superior public service without thought of personal gain during the year 1972.

Mrs. Frances Murphy, chairman of the AFRO board of directors, will preside at the presentation ceremony. Winners have been invited to attend and to bring two guests.

A majority of the persons to be honored are volunteers and inner city leaders. Two are organizations.

The organizations are the Black Coalition of the University of Md., headed by Howard P. Rawlings; and the WO-BECO Club, a group of women who call themselves Women Behind the Community. The 1972 presidents were Mrs. Carderine Griffin and Mrs. Vera Dorsey.

Individual winners are: Mrs. Jennie M. Jenkins, community volunteer and voter registration leader; Albert Williams, Model Cities Steering Committee chairman; Charles F. Nealy, Harford County educator; Mrs. Valerie Bell, former drug addict turned outstanding drug counselor; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mosley, outstanding parents; Richard O. Motsay, director of Pre-Trial Release Program; Dr. Roland N. Patterson, superintendent of Baltimore city public schools;

Also, Mrs. Pauline Brooks, northwest Baltimore businesswoman; the Rev. Howard L. Cornish, director of Morgan Christian Center; and Mrs. Dolly Walker, East Baltimore community leader.

HANDSOME is the AFRO Honor Roll plaque which winners will receive at Dec. 7 ceremony.

The AFRO Honor Roll was orginated in Nov. 1939 by late AFRO publisher, Dr. Carl Murphy. The handsome Honor Roll plaque, 8½ by 10½ inches, is the AFRO coat of arms.

The top of the banner reads, "For Superior Public Service," and at the bottom, "Without Thought Of Personal Gain."

In the four-sectioned shield, there is a quill pen, the scales indicating justice and equality for which we fight eternally; the pringing press, to symbolize the power of the printed word, the lamp to spread the news and knowledge abroad so that those who see and understand can find the way.

In the center of the seal is the lion rampart indicating that the press is a courageous and fighting institution, and at the top is the ornamental helmet indicating that we are ready for action.

The colors are green, silver, gold and black, making a colorful and handsome plaque.

Social service checks may be cashed today

The Baltimore City Department of Social Services (DSS) mailed December 1973 checks to recipients in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) category on Nov. 29.

While the checks are dated Dec. 1, they may be presented for cashing on Nov. 30.

Judge Murphy ruled that the firms are "enjoined . . . from engaging in real estate transaction," until they show that they are licensed by the real estate board.

The firms were given until Dec. 17 to show why they should not be permanently closed.

Miller says that anyone dealing with firms named may now be eligible to file suit against the firm for return of their money.

Interested parties should contact him at BNI by calling 243-6007.

Eastside's M. L. King Center has impressive rededication

The Martin Luther King Center for Parents and Children, the Eastside institution that's doing so much for citizens, had rededication ceremonies Tuesday at the Church of the Holy Covenant, 560 N. Broadway.

The Community Action Agency and Department of Pediatrics, Johns Hopkins Hospital, sponsors, took active part in the impressive program which also saw graduation exercises for over 30 persons.

Mrs. Virginia Smith was mistress of ceremonies.

Guest speaker was Congressman Parren J. Mitchell.

Others on the program were Dr. Robert Heyssel, Hopkins director; Mrs. Margaret Yarborough, Mrs. Lucille Dedmond, president of the Parent Involvement group.

Also, City Council President Walter Orlinsky, CAA Executive Director Linwood Ivey, Mrs. Marion Persons, chief, Division of Child Day Care; Mrs. Alice Kjer, assistant director of Early Childhood Education; Mesdames Hattie Wade and Rosa Porter, training coordinators; Mrs. Mary E. Robinson, executive director and the Rev. Vernon Dobson.

'Whites only' rule dropped by yacht club

A "whites only" rule of the 80-year-old Annapolis Yacht Club has been dropped following a vote by some 200 of the club's 1,200 members.

However, Allan C. Westcott, chairman of the club's bylaws committee, made it clear that "anybody's going to be screened" before admission, just as before.

The criteria for membership is left up to the membership committee, of which he is a former member, Westcott says.

Charles R. Smith Jr., commodore of the club, says that he cannot remember any black applicants.

Suspect in molotov arson wanted

Police are looking for suspects in an attempted arson in the 2800 block Auchentoroly Terrace where two molotov cocktails were thrown into the home of a 90-year-old woman Monday evening.

No damage was done to the home of Mrs. Colletee Ruth Thomas who told police she averted a very "dangerous situation" by throwing the incindiary device contained in a bottle away upon discovering it near her window.

Witnesses state they heard the crash of the bottle but did not see any suspects.

The molotov cocktails were contained in two different 16-oz. disposable Coca-Cola bottles. Stuffed in the neck of the bottle was a wad of flaming cloth.

Mrs. Genevieve Thomas, 52, same address, daughter of Mrs. Thomas, told police she stamped the burning wick, opened the window and tossed the unbroken bottle out through the window shattering it in the street below.

Mother and daghter told police the second molotov cocktail was found on the first floor rear of the kitchen but not set on fire.

Homefinders shut by court order

Homefinders (Rentex), 2116 N. Charles St., home finding firms, have been ordered to close shop by Circuit Court Judge James W. Murphy, following a suit filed by the Maryland Real Estate Commission on the urgings of Don Miller of Baltimore Neighborhoods, Inc.

Earlier this year U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen ruled that the groups were acting illegally unless they obtained Maryland licenses as real estate brokers.

Mr. Beckett, Eastside florist

Stanley Anthony Beckett, 59, owner of St. Francis Flower Shop, and one of East Baltimore's most well known citizens, died in his sleep, Nov. 26, at his residence at 1500 Caroline St.

He is survived by his two cousins, Mrs. Hilda Mussenden, Mrs. Buelah Boyce, an adopted daughter, Miss Mary Grooms, and Mrs. Francis Wallace, a very near friend of the florist who had his shop at his residence.

The wake will be held at March Funeral Home, 800 North Ave., Friday evening at 7. The funeral will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, Caroline and Oliver Sts.

Rap Brown back in jail from hospital

H. Rap Brown, recently reed of charges by Maryland courts, has been returned to Attica prison in New York, following hospital treatment for pneumonia and a minor operation.

A spokesman says Brown was operated on for a back abscess at Meyer Memorial Hospital in Buffalo.

Brown was wounded by police in New York City, Oct. 16, 1971, following a holdup, and was captured and subsequently convicted.

71 on million $ lottery list

Maryland's third "millionaire's party" will be held by the State Lottery Agency Dec. 18, at 8:30 p.m. in Steelworkers Hall, 540 Dundalk Ave. in Dundalk, Baltimore County.

Seventy-one persons have qualified to date to participate in the drawing.

Among Baltimore residents who have filed as participants are:

Also Mrs. Christine Lewis, 1600 block Gorsuch Ave.; Thomas F. Miller, 1900 Wilson Point Road, Clarence Smith, 1300 block Bayard St.; Mrs. Dorothy Steedman, 3000 block Glenmore Ave., and Mrs. Alice Williams, 1600 block Homestead St.

To qualify for the millionaire's party, each matched the three digit preliminary number drawn Nov. 15, 855.

The match was atainst the last three digits of the serial number on a ticket that had the last two digits of a weekly winning lottery number in correct order.

Twelve of the 71 qualified for the second millionaire's party but did not register their tickets in time to participate. The preliminary number match was 890.

Dec. 3 is the deadline for registrations for the third $ million drawing.

'A Thing Of Beauty Is A Joy Forever'

By Marie Murphy Phillips Cooke
AFRO Women's Editor

"Honour Thy Father and Thy Mother; That Thy days may be long upon the land which Thy God Giveth Thee."
Exodus 20:12

Nothing like this town has ever seen before occurred on Sunday evening. It was the type of affair that townsfolk will be talking about for years to come. Unborn generations will know of the event from stories passed down from their forefathers. By no means will it ever be forgotten.

An appreciation salute it was called and an appreciation salute it was — but what a salute.

The honorees were Mr. and Mrs. Roland B. Williams (Anebia), their son, Dr. Roland Barksdale Williams, and his charming wife, June, were the hosts.

Guests began to enter the lobby of Martin's West around 7 p.m. that evening where they were met by one of several hostesses. Ladies were pinned with freshly-cut Vander orchids which had been flown in from Kauai, Hawaii only hours before the affair. They were then directed into the ballroom where cocktails were being served. It wasn't long before most of the 250 invited guests had arrived and the activities began.

Dr. Williams' gentle but firm voice echoed through the room. He asked his guests to return to the lobby to meet the honorees and other distinguished guests.

Mrs. Ivan Bradshaw Higgins welcomed each person at the beginning of the line with her usual friendly "hello", a warm handshake and a kiss.

In addition to Mrs. Higgins, the honorees and the hosts, the Right Rev. and Mr. Harry Lee Doll, the Rev. and Mrs. Donald O. Wilson, Mrs. Elaine Howard, Mrs Mary E. Clayburn, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Barksdale (Mrs. Williams' parents); Mrs. Anne Larkins, Miss Betty Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Guillory and Mrs. John D. Peters were also in the receiving line.

Guests felt honored, too, especially when they re-entered the ballroom and their names were called out over the microphone. It was at that time when this writer had a chance to see some of the high-fashioned gowns the women were sporting.

Like Mrs. Philathia Hall in midnight black velvet with a scoop neckline. Her shoulder-length silver and brown-black hair hung softly in place. And

Have a nice day!

Mrs. Marion Banfield in a sunshine print full-length skirt topped with black jersey knit. Three strings of pearls complemented her outfit.

Who would have ever known that Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell had been under the weather. There she was, as stunning as ever, in a two-piece cocktail-length ensemble with deep orchid flowers on a cream background. Mrs. Mary (Charles) Thompson reminded one of springtime in her soft pastel pink shirt waist-gown with delicate jewel buttons as did Mrs. Myers in a red, white and blue creation.

Everyone knew the program was about to begin when the Jimmy Smith band moved from the lobby into the ballroom. Dr. Williams then asked everyone to be seated at the table of their choice. He stood behind the podium, handsome in his velvet formal wear, and introduced, again, each of the receiving line members, but this time he said a little about each, like where they were employed and their activities. Dr. Williams even flattered the women with niceties like, "How stunning you look tonight" or "my, how beautiful you are this evening." Each of the dias guests promenaded from the rear of the room and took his seat at the head table.

The first was his wife, Mrs. Williams, who looked like she had just walked off 5th Avenue in a bronze and black sequined-studded gown, long sleeves and scoop neckline. A matching head scarf tied her long black hair in place. Gold slippers added more sparkle to her outfit.

When she arrived to the front of the room, her husband handed her the microphone and she personally greeted everyone. They explained what the appreciation salute was all about . . . a time of Thanksgiving. It was his way of openly thanking his parents for the unselfish sacrifices they had made for him throughout the years.

All rose to their feet when Dr. Williams' grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Barksdale, entered. There they were, side by side, Dr. Barksdale in his tuxedo and Mrs. Barksdale in gold satin. She sat proud in her wheelchair as

Diana Kane fashion show Sunday

"A Festive Mood" will be the theme this Sunday, Dec. 2 at a benefit fashion show featuring the Diana Kane models.

The cabaret-style setting will take place in the Turner Auditorium concourse beginning at 4:30 p.m. The affair will be co-hosted by Diana Kane and Harry S. Davis, Community Relations Advisor at Johns Hopkins Medical Institution.

Guests will enjoy a delectable buffet dinner while listening to music rendered by Miss Pat Love, Miss Black Maryland. There will also be entertainment by the Phi Stancil Quartet.

Fashions from black-owned shops such as Michele's, Pittman's Boutique and Lawrence Parker Ltd. will be modeled.

* * *

Models will include Mesdames and Misses Nanette "Twiggy" Cooper, Michele Pinkney, Velma Martin, Carlotta Moore, Audrey Sheppard, Diane McCoy, Carol Harris, Cheryl Wainwright, Walter Pearl and special guests Loretta Wiggins and Joe Coleman.

Proceeds will be presented to the AFRO's Mrs. Santa and other Christmas funds.
