The annual Christmas Variety and Fashion Show held in the East Building at the Social Security complex last Friday by the Claims Operations Branch was similar to the professional variety shows presented for servicemen in Vietnam.

There were skits, monologues and songs presented by the employees. LOWEL "Limpy" YANCEY who was recently promoted in BDP was very debonaire in his 1920 style pinstroped suit.

"Mr. Huge's Christmas," a skit written, produced and directed by El Williams was a hilarious show stopper.

Thomas Richardson's portrayal of Reverend Leroy and "The church of What's Happening Now" kept the audience laughing long after the show had ended.

Choir members lifting their voices in song were Mesdames Modie Stewart, Lenora Collins, Miss Linda Bess, Ronald Clark, Don Harting Ted Glenn, Al Rice, Floyd McDaniels, Vince Moore, Leonard Davis and Ms Cee Ross, directress.

The fashion show that featured both old and new styles was coordinated by Mrs. Hilda Bouldin. SSA models doing their own thing with their personal wardrobes were: Mesdames Corrine Whittington who was breathtaking in a full length Emba mink coat with matching hat; Pat Wilson featuring a rust colored suede jacket and pants set.

Others looking very professional and stylish were Lorna Evans, Rosalie Keyser,
