Reading scores show lag in city students

According to a deputy school superintendent, most of the 67,000 Baltimore public school pupils who scored below national norms on reading tests last spring could not have been expected to better those norms.

Dr. John L. Crew, director of the Center for Planning, Research and Evaluation revealed that by definition one-half of the student scores must fall below the median score.

In Baltimore, 82 percent of about 82,000 children taking the test fell below the norm of the nationwide sample.

Dr. Crew maintains that this means 82 percent, rather than 50 percent, failed to reach the national norm or about 32 percent more than could be expected.

He added, however, that he found encouraging the five-year trend in Baltimore Children's scores on the reading test portion of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills.

Dr. Crew said he believes the city's showing will be stronger next year when the system changes next spring to the 1971 edition of ITBS. In April, the 1964 edition was administered last April to children in the third through the ninth grades.

The updated, 1971 edition of the test is to be given next spring as part of compliance with the state's accountability - in - education - law.

The results of testing in the third, fifth, seventh and ninth grades will be submitted to the 1975 General Assembly.

Provident graduation Jan. 15

Commencement exercises for the School of Radiologic Technology of Provident Hospital will be held at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 15, 1974 in the Emmanual Chambers Auditorium of the hospital. Principal speaker will be Dennis A. Gowie, executive director of Provident.

Open to all high school graduates, the Radiology School is under the direction of James Bell, M.D., chief of the Department of Radiology at Provident and Miss Karen Taylor.

Provident's course prepares the student to become a registered radiological technologist. (X-Ray technologist) As such, the student becomes the radiologist "right arm," performing the functions necessary in rendering the best possible diagnostic interpretation.

These graduates are prepared to perform the duties of a radiologic technologist or to use their education and training as a stepping stone to other career advancements.

Emancipation anniversary observed Sunday

Members of the Prince Hall Grand Lodge observed the 111th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation at a two-and-one-half solemn ceremony at the Masonic Temple, 1307 Eutaw Pl. Sunday.

Walter S. Orlinsky, president of the Baltimore City Council, was the guest speaker at the affair presided over by James T. Dorsey, deputy grand master. The Emancipation Proclamation was read by Jerry Williams of the order.

Also attending were Mrs. Margaret Dyer of the Myra Grand Chapter; the Rev. Marion Bascom who gave the innovation; Samuel T. Daniels, grandmaster; Benjamin F. Waters, grand senior warden; Frederick Hicks, grand secretary; Marion Barkley, grand junior warden and Ronald Scott, grand treasurer.

In his inspiring speech, Mr. Orlinsky recalled the hard experiences of black citizens since the Emancipation Proclamation by President Lincoln and urged all Americans not to rest on their oars but go forward to meet the new challenges and pave the way for a greater and more peaceful tomorrow.

1st mid-year Coppin commencement

Coppin State College's Graduate School will hold its first mid-year Commencement Exercises on Thursday, Jan. 10 at 8 p.m. in the new auditorium-classroom building at 8 p.m.

Dr. Calvin W. Burnett, college president, will confer Master of Education degrees on 41 candidates.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Samuel DeWitt Proctor, professor of education at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J.
