He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Jackson; Three daughters, Mrs. Ernestine Smith, Mrs. Lucretia Brown and Mrs. Henrietta Wilmore two sisters, Mrs. Etta Veney and Mrs. Laura Herbert; three brothers, Robert, Edward and John Jackson.

Howard, Gibson, Burns cited at Eastside health parley

Health care formed the theme of a recent day-long series of events marking the sixth annual conference of the Community Action Agency's East Baltimore Advisory Council.

East Baltimore CAA neighborhood centers and Model Cities councils joined the East Baltimore Medical Plan and other community medical care delivery agencies in a pin-pointing health needs and services available in the area.

Dr. Oakley H. Saunders was guest speaker at the evening program, followed by presentation of awards by Judge Joseph Howard, Attorney Larry Gibson and City Councilman Clarence Burns.

The conference, held at the Jackie Robinson CAA Center at 1131 Harford Avenue, was devoted to the theme. "Caring is part of the cure" and featured informatic al displays on the East Baltimore Medical Plan, sickle cell anemia, physical fitness, lead paint poisoning, alcoholism and the O'Donnell Heights Medical Center.

Area residents and others who attended the morning session were welcomed by Lenwood M. Ivey, CAA/Model Cities executive director and Mrs. Josephine Smith Tunstall, East Baltimore Advisory Council chairman.

A proclamation designating "East Baltimore Advisory Council Day" was read by Mrs. Elva Edwards, CAA/Model Cities associate director, on behalf of Mayor Schaefer, who was unable to attend because of a prior engagement.

City Councilman Robert Douglass told the audience how plans for the East Baltimore Medical Plan had originated during discussions of residents of the Dunbar High School Charette.

City Councilman Clarence "Du" Burns, chairman of the East Baltimore Medical Plan, gave a brief discussion of its objectives, operation and staffing.

A tour of the plan's facilities was followed by luncheon at the CAA center, during which entertainment was supplied by the Model Cities Councils A and B and the Martin Luther King Jr. Parent-Child Center Advocacy Component.

Capt. Mello named in second indictment

Former Capt. Dennis P. Mello, 61, who headed the Western district police station until he retired last August, was indicted again Monday by a special federal grand jury.

Mello was first indicted in December along with other policemen. He was charged with bribery and gambling in the Harrington-Dobbins gambling operation.

Also charged in this indictment was suspended Officer Joseph E. Mitchell and Jerome Chernock, owner of auto parts yard.

The indictment states Capt. Mello received $250 of which at least $50 was a pay-off in December, 1971. The charges against Mello, Mitchell and Chernock arose from testimony in an earlier trial involving police and gamblers.

Others reindicted were Lt. William A. Jackson, Lt. Timothy O. Watts, Sgt. Joseph E. DePaola, Sgt. Harry Gonzales, Sgt. Joseph A. Placek and former detective Francis M. Wright.

Delay execution in Raleigh

Raleigh — District man Jessee Lee Walston, 23, who was scheduled to be put to death yesterday in the gas chamber for allegedly raping a white woman, has appealed the sentence.

"The execution will not take place for Jessee Walston, Vernon Brown and Bobby Hines," Mrs. Pearce, the Warden's secretary said in a telephone call to the AFRO Thursday from the Raleigh, N.C. prison.

Warden Sam Garrison of the North Carolina Central Prison said, "We have received word from the Attorney General's office telling us to take no action at the present time."

The official communique read, "The inmates who were scheduled to die on Jan. 10 have been appealed to the Supreme Court of North Carolina."

The Warden's office explained that the three men, including Walston, whose wife and child and relatives also live here in D.C., are thus given an extended 60 days from the date of the appeal before the death sentence can be executed.

An additional 20 days must also be extended for the state to prepare a counter-case.

However, since the appeal was made Dec. 9, less than 60 days now remain for the processes of appeal at the state level to be completed.

Attorneys Morris Dees and Charles S. Abernathy of Montgomery, Ala. are handling the case.

But the men remain on death row, said Garrison.

Walston and two friends have been sentenced to die for raping a white woman in the town of Tarboro, N.C. — also the hometown of Walston before moving to the District several years ago.

But Jessee's brother, Leroy Walston, says "As far as I'm concerned, they were not convicted on evidence. They were punished for being with a white woman."

The woman accepted an offer to ride in the car with the three men, but she said she didn't realize the men were black.

Witnesses reported the woman was intoxicated the night of the incident, and there were no signs of bruises or struggling on her.

* * * Jessee Walston, an employee of the Hecht Company here, turned himself in to authorities in North Carolina recently after he discovered that a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

At the time he turned himself in, he was positive that he would be found innocent.

"I'm sure that if he really had raped her, he would have come to me and said he raped a white girl, and would have asked me for money to get away," said Walston's brother.

Besides," he added, "no black man in his right mind would have gone back to that area if he had raped a white girl."

A jury of 12 whites and one black man sat on the trial.

Northwestern wants volunteers

The Northwestern High School P.T.O. requests the general public to volunteer their time and services to assist in the education of students and for the betterment of relations in the whole community.

They want resource persons like doctors, dentists, meteorologists, technicians, bankers, businessmen and women, who will give freely of their time, an hour or two, to relate to the students their experiences in terms of occupation or hobby.

Interested persons must please write hot call to Larry E. Shugarman, president of P.T.O., 6900 block Park Heights Ave, Baltimore, Md. 21215, stating their names, address, telephone number and subject matter.

Keep Md. beautiful contest

Everyone is invited to enter the Keep Baltimore or Maryland Beautiful Contest. There are two categories; one for the idea expressed and another category for posters displaying good art work. Since there is no limit to the type of media, many people will be able to enter.

This contest is planned to help to beautify Baltimore and Maryland. The contest announced today by the City Bureau of Recreation is co-sponsored with the Bureau by the Continental Can Company, Mrs. Gideon N. Stiefl Sr. and the Keep Maryland Beautiful Committee of the Maryland Environmental Trust.

For rules of the poster contest call Miss Elizabeth Clarke, Supervisor of Gardens and Nature Activities, Bureau of Recreation, 1129 N. Calvert St., phone 396-5642.

MRS. ESTHER MELCHER, a mother of four and an employee of the Wilkes Detective Agency, is a well-known voluntary worker and preacher. The 700 block Lexington St. resident salutes the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King. She was a winner of 1969 AFRO essay contest, "Martin Luther King."

Bd. of Estimates approves $240,000 for mobile classes

The Falstaff Middle School came one step closer to its goal of having 8 transportable units constructed when the Board of Estimates approved Wed. a Department of Education request for $240,000 from the state.

The units will be used to house some 223 additional students slated to attend the experimental school next fall.

During a School Board meeting last week, concerned parents and teachers requested that 12 transportable units be built but after negotiations had concluded, the state ruled that it could award 8 unit (or classroom) for every 25 students.

The additional students, all of whom will be sixth graders, will come from school No. 247 and the Mt. Washington Elementary School.

According to William Murray, region 5 superintendent, the portable classrooms will be used until renovation under the Capital Improvement Plan is completed.

At that time the renovated building should have a student capacity of 700 students and the transportable units will be returned to the state.

The Board of Education must now submit a letter of educational justification and a letter of approval from the estimates to the state for final approval.

In unrelated action, the Board of Estimates voted to submit a bill calling for a $6,000 minimum pension to be paid retired city employees with 30 or more years of service.

That figure includes $4,000 per year for principals and $2,000 per year in the case of beneficiaries.

The bill also makes allowances up to $1,000 for those principals and/or beneficiaries gainfully employed and/or entitled to Social Security, (41,000 or the combined amount received from Social Security and/or employment, if such were less than $1,000.

If approved by the City Council, the legally prescribed minimum Police Widows benefit will be raised to $2,000 annually, a $200 increase over current payments.

Also increased to $2,000 would be the legally prescribed Fire Widows benefit for 30 years of service. For less than 30 years of service, the $2,000 benefit will be proportionately reduced, but no one will receive less than $200 increase.

The bill dissolves any reduction in benefits and grants at least a 5 per cent increase to all eligible retirees.

The proposed bill is not applicable to city employees who will retire in the future, although the mayor's Pension Study Committee is studying plan improvements for those who will fall into that category.

Sen. Welcome's father dies quietly, age 93

John Nuborn Freeman, father of Sen. Verda Welcome, died quietly Saturday Jan. 12, in a Lakelure, N.C. hospital, at the age of 93.

Sen. Welcome, one of 17 surviving children, said, "We knew him as a young man right up to the time he passed away."

"I believe that he was beginning to see that he was the last of his generation, and was lonely," the senator said.

Funeral services will be held in Lakelure this Saturday, Jan. 19, with many of the surviving children and grandchildren attending, she said.

The senator says her father has 14 living children by her mother, Mrs. Ella Docia Freeman, and three by his present wife.

Her sisters and brothers are Miss Docia Freeman, Mesdames Margaret Turner and Lovie Proctor, and Dr. David Freeman and Booker T. Freeman, all of Detroit.

Also Price, Vincent and John M. Freeman of Philadelphia; Mesdames Emma Oliver, Evelyn Logan, Percnetta Campbell, and John Nuborn Freeman Jr., all of North Carolina.

Also Mesdames Janice Freeman, Willet Davidson and Thelma Flood, all of New York, and Dr. Steven Freeman of New Jersey.

The senator's daughter from Atlanta, Mrs. Mary Sue Mercer, will also attend the services.

Lawyer sues D.C. taxi for passing her by

By Clarissa Chapman
AFRO Staff Writer

Washington—"As a black woman I have become accustomed through the years to being kicked in the face. But when a cab passes me and picks up a white man or woman, then that really makes me mad."

So prominent Washington Attorney Mabel Haden has filed a $150,000 discrimination suit against a local taxicab company.

She charges she was discriminated against by a black cab driver when he passed her up on a street to pick up a white man further down the block.

According to her suit, filed in the Superior Court of D.C. recently, the incident occurred on Dec. 11 when she stood in front of Massey's Shoe Store on 13th and G St., NW holding a shopping bag, waving down a cab.

The driver, Franklin Penn, slowed to a stop, opened the door in front of Ms. Haden, then, according to the suit, "looked up a few paces away toward the center of the block where a caucasian male lifted his hand."

She charges Penn then immediately slammed the door shut as she prepared to enter and drove to the middle of the block to let in the white man.

Though the driver was black, Ms. Haden charges that he "unjustly and unlawfully" discriminated against her on the basis of her skin color. She adds that being a woman, it was a double injustice.

"I've talked with a lot of blacks who say this kind of thing is prevalent," she asth e, as says. "These cab drivers think that because we are black we are going to Southeast Washington. I cannot see why they think we are all going to Southeast because blacks are scattered all over this town."

She was going to her office at 506 8th St. NW.

Ms. Haden further questions whether cab drivers think white passengers tip better than blacks. But she says that in her travels she's noticed that whites "don't tip any better than blacks."

Possibly the answer to the problem is inherent within the individual himself, she stated.

"It's really an example of the uncle Tom mentality. When a white man is seen distressed in the streets, they run to help."

According to an official of the Public Vehicles Division capricious judgement by cab drivers in selecting passengers is illegal.

Cab drivers are required by law (Title 14 of the Public Service Commission), to pick up a prospective passenger who hails him, unless he has a sign prominently displayed stating he is off duty or on call.

The only other exception is that he can refuse a person he determines may possibly be disorderly, such as someone intoxicated. But in her suit Attorney Haden affirms she was in a fit and proper state to be carried as a passenger."

"Policemen can make arrests for that offense. Usually, where there is no policeman in sight, the person involved can write a statement of the incident to our division and we will forward it to the Hacker's License Appeal Board for further action."

Ms. Haden says attorneys for the cab company have not filed answers to the complaint yet. But she has been approached by their insurance company to settle out of court.

"It is not my aim to have the driver fired from his job, and I am not suing just to get money," she says. "I want these drivers to realize that things are not going to get any better until blacks get out here and see how they treat each other."

The manager of Autorama Cab Company was not available for comment.

1975 BUDGET

Those On Social Service Rolls Seen Getting More, But Not Much

"There will be no increase in sales or income taxes during the coming fiscal year," said Gov. Mandel in announcing "one of the tightest and most carefully prepared budgets presented in recent years to the General Assembly.

Under the $2.7 billion budget, persons receiving social services aid, are due for monthly increases, although they will not be a great deal.

The budget calls for only a 1.8 per cent in general funds for the Department of Employment and Social Services, but most being aided by this department will be receiving increased benefits.

The primary reason for this the governor says, "is the declining caseloads in Public Assistance and Social Services Administration."

The federal government has taken over payments to an estimated 9,772 persons receiving old age assistance in 1974; estimated 416 receiving aid to the blind, and an estimated 19,000 receiving aid to the disabled during that year.

The budget figures show that an estimated 4,000 have been purged from the 1974 general public assistance lists for the coming fiscal year.

So the estimates 15,000 to receive funds in 1975 will be getting monthly checks of about $101 instead of last year's $33.39.

Some 6,000 have been dropped from the lists of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Which means that these recipients will be getting $39.20 in '75 as compared with $44.81 per month in 1974.

Some 300 were cleared from rolls of Emergency Assistance to Families With Children, who will see a $5 dollar increase in their $164 monthly 1974 grants.

The largest monthly increase is seen in the area of monthly grants for the care of boarded-out children.

The average monthly grant for these children will go from $103 in 1974 to $115 in 1975, an increase of $12.

Total expenditures for fiscal, 75 are expected to be $168,691,740, down from 1974's $170,945,715.

The state general fund appropriation will pay $32,796,420, $957,720 will come from special fund appropriations with $74,907,600 being paid by the federal government.

The governor says he has requested $11.4 million to increase public assistance payments by 13 per cent in two steps over the current calendar year."

The funds, he says, are available because of this administration's intensive program to purge ineligibles from the welfare rolls.

"Because of our efforts, projected caseloads have shown a marked decline of 16,000 and a proportionate savings of $12.8 million," he said.

The eye of a fish is movable, has a lens, cornea and retina similar to those of other animals but has no lid.
