Harlem Park parents, pupils share interest

Enthusiasm, interest and cooperation were recently shown when 70 parents, representing 128 children of Harlem Park Elementary School attended a meeting to learn ways that they can help their children improve communicative skill of listening.

The topic was "How to Get Your Child to Listen to You and How to Listen to Your Child."

The meeting began with a game. Prizes were awarded the winners.

A movie entitled "Listening Skills" was shown. Discussion followed.

The meeting was planned and led by Miss Myra A. Harris, assistant principal.

Sex Over 60

The many myths surrounding the sexual activities of older people will be discussed in a lecture "Sex Over 60" at Thursday morning in Harlem Park, a program designed for senior citizens and interested participants.

Dr. William Hall, well-known gynecologist, will discuss the subject at the Lafayette Square Multi-service Center, Lafayette Ave. and Gilmor St., on February 14. The program begins at 11 a.m. and continues until 12:30 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

It is not limited to older persons, but all who are interested are welcome. Dr. Hall will discuss the physical, emotional and mental problems of senior and other citizens, and will give particular attention to impotency. Dr. Hall believes that the subject of sex is often taboo, but, instead of being hidden, it should be brought out in to the open and discussed candidly.

Parents grateful to teachers

Parents at Henry Highland Garnett School have expressed their gratitude to school authorities and aides for being dedicated and concerned about their children.

In a letter to the school principal, Mrs. Marlene Mohamed, and staff the parents stated: "School No. 103 has always been a forward school for our early education. It has shown us that they cared.

"We earnestly are 100 per cent behind Dr. Roland Patterson and his progress especially the 'Right to Read.' Everybody wants more money, but let's do it the right way. Don't short change our children.

"May God ever bless them to continue to do what they know to be right for our children. Our school was still operating and on the right track to learning skills."

YWCA spring production scheduled

A drama and dance workshop for teens is in progress at the YWCA, 1912 Madison Ave. Held on Tues. and Thurs. from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. the sessions will culminate in a production featuring drama and dance by the group in about three months time. Fee is $15 per month, including supplies (costumes, scenery, props and make up for productions).

Drama is being taught by Thomas Reeder, graduate of Baltimore City College in Speech and Communication Arts, presently a student at Morgan State College, and formerly an actor in New York City. Dance classes are instructed by Miss Pamela Garnett who trained with Wally Saunders School and at the Peabody Conservatory. She also danced in "Save the Children" at the Lyric in Spring, 1973.

Another course sponsored by the Teen Department of the Madison Avenue YWCA is a homemakers workshop designed for young mothers. Subjects taught will be early child care and development, credit buying, budgeting, housekeeping skills, and inexpensive decorating. Only cost is a registration fee Other classes offered include creat- which includes YWCA membership, ive dance for teens, karate (beginning and advanced), modeling, millinery, and basic sewing.

Cost of the courses is low, partly because the YWCA receives support from the United Fund of Central Maryland. Teen YWCA membership, costing $2 per year is required for participation in any class. For information or registration, participants should call Ms. Virginia Sessoms, YWCA, 1912 Madison Ave. at 669-1881.

Rescue Mission accuses city of indecision

The Baltimore Rescue Mission has accused city decision makers of a "hidden intent to stop rescue missions by methodically but slowly grinding away at our very existence."

The voluntary organization charges that the City Council through indecision has failed repeatedly to re-locate them. "For example, they first outwardly recommended that we relocate on Central Ave., now they indicate we might not be allowed there."

Garden classes

The Gardening Workshop sponsored by the City Bureau of Recreation, will be held at the Cylburn Park Mansion, 4915 Greenspring Ave.

Some meetings will feature practical work in the city greenhouse.

The series has one two-hour meeting for eight weeks. and begins March 12, 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Pay fee of $5 in advance at the City Bureau of Recreation, 1129 North Calvert St.

Columbia Capers

By Pinnie L. Ross

"I ran my house, studied ten hours a day for seven weeks. Lots of people thought I would not make it, but I did." These were words spoken by charming Mrs. Georgie Goslie, a Columbia resident. She made it . . . at an early age of 24 years old.

Mrs. Goslie never dreamed too much about becoming a lawyer because she was too busy trying to portray Nancy Wilson as a singer. "I used to sing around and about. As a matter of fact, I used to sing in James Brown Motor Inn for awhile. My mother is a "born singer" — a real song bird."

"I dropped out of school for awhile; decided I would take an equivalency test a few years later; (speaking with confidence) I passed that, after which I entered the University of Maryland — Eastern Shore. I received a scholarship there and later finished. I decided I wanted to get into law school." According to Mrs. Goslie, she applied at the University of Maryland several times; each time she was not accepted. Finally she badgered the officials until she was accepted in 1970.

This soft-spoken charmer was among 200 graduate lawyers sitting for the bar examination in 1973. She was the only black female from the state of Maryland to take and pass the examination at the first sitting.

The adroit Mrs. Goslie, mother of two young sons, has a new job which takes her to Baltimore where she is associated in the well-known law firm of Howard and Williams.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hamon of Salisbury, has three McDonald's restaurant franchises.

A reception will be held in honor of the charming Mrs. Goslie, who will open the first black law office in Columbia, this Sunday, Feb. 10.

(Cuff note — Congratulations to a real scholar, a genius, one who was determined to make it without abdicating her determination, which lots of young people do; a young lady who would not let anything or anyone impede her from reaching her goal; a person who had fortitude also to reach her goal. This writer wishes to extend the most sincere congratulations and every wish of outstanding success in her new venture in the new town of Columbia).

Jack and Jill

The Columbia Chapter of Jack and Jill of America presented their celebration of Black Heritage on Sunday, Feb. 3, 1974, at the Bryant Woods Neighborhood Center. Mrs. Roberta Briscoe planned and directed the educational and entertaining affair. She displayed a "Wall of Dignity" with reproductions of such famous blacks as Henry O. Tanner, Madam Elizabeth Keckley, Bejamin Banneker, Dr. Charles Drew, Justice Thurgood Marshall, and others with captions of their contributions to humanity.

The capable Thomas Briscoe served as projectionist for the film, "The Life of Frederick Douglass." After the viewing of the film, Miss Mary McDade, a co-worker of Mrs. Briscoe and a teacher of Social Studies including Black Studies at Brooklyn Park High School recommended that the children attend the Museum of African Art and the Frederick Douglass home in the Anacostia area of D.C. Miss McDade entertained questions from the viewers and offered additional commentaries on Mr. Douglass' life.

Their honored guest was Fred Weaver — a descendant of Frederick Douglass — who challenged the children and adults alike to follow the example of Douglass, that is, to help another brother or sister along the way and to continue to fight for the rights we deserve.

Mrs. Briscoe exhibited a wealth of material from which each family was asked to select items of interest: Among the materials were lists of "Paperbacks for Children," "Important Dates in Negro History," and "Poems of Youth."

Also available were the AKA Sorority's Heritage Series on outstanding women in various professions, an edition of "The Humble Way" on Afro-American artists and many others.

Each child was encouraged to select a "Golden Legacy" illustrated history magazine and was given a peanut with the question of who discovered its many, many products.

The well-attended affair was a response to the beautifully designed invitation in black liberation colors with a bust of Frederick Douglass thereon.

Along with many of the members and their families were distinguished guests including the Cecil E. Bray family, Jacqueline Brooks and son David, the Harvey Coleman family, Dorothy Greenfield, the Claude Harrison family, the George Hunter family, Marcella Humphrey and son Deitrich, Wilhelmina Kelly, Maurine McKinney, Jerry Mitchell and children, Grace Scott, Harriett Tootle and sons, Sarah P. Turner, and Ada Woodland and a daughter Kelly.

The activity was a family one which included all age groups. Participating members representing age groups were Mrs. Mattie Simmons (president) 3-5; Mrs. Nampeo McKenny 6-8; Mrs. Alberlena McGruder 9-12; Mesdames Celonia Walden and Roberta Briscoe Jet Set (teens), and Carolyn Briscoe, teen member.

Brotherhood Week

Brotherhood Week will be observed Sunday at St. John Baptist Church at the Interfaith Center. Mrs. Harolyn Harrison, chairlady for the affair, and many other members of her committee have planned an outstanding program beginning at 4 p.m. Dr. King V. Cheek, Morgan State College President, will be the featured speaker. The Morgan State College Modern Dance group, along with the Howard University Choir will participate in the Brotherhood Week observance. See you there!

Thought for Today . . . .

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you, for we are God's children, rich, poor, black and white.

In these days of high food prices, there's somebody who's still smiling.
Oatmeal costs less than 3¢ a bowl, Penny for penny you get more protein from oatmeal than meat, fish, eggs or cheese.
It even makes meat cheaper to serve because it makes it go farther and helps it stay juicier. Oatmeal is the original meat extender.
A hundred years ago he started out to bring you a good nutritious food at a very reasonable price. He's looking better every day, isn't he?

The more they eat the better you feel.
