AME preachers demand that Mandel, Schaefer act now on school fight

The African Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Meeting organization in session at Bethel AME Church Feb. 11 issued a demand "that the education of Baltimore children will not be disrupted one day longer."

The message is directed to Gov. Mandel and Mayor Schaefer to use full powers of their offices to bring about a speedy and just solution to the problems over which teachers are aggrieved.

Terming education "of critical importance to our children," the ministers accent, "quality education is the one thing we must have if our society is to hold together."

The public statement is signed by the Revs. Walter L. Hildebrand, Bethel pastor and organization president and W. K. Woods, secretary.

Waters service pays tribute to pioneers

The Unique Chorale, under the direction of Mrs. Bertha Haskins, performed at special Sunday morning Black History services at Waters AME Church. The Rev. Melvin Chester Swann is pastor.

In commemoration of the founding of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, they reenacted the scenes as they might have been when Richard Allen founded the church in 1816.

Two sermons from James Weldon Johnson's "Seven Sermons" were delivered by Ronald Jones, a senior at Morgan State College. They were "Creation" and "The Prodigal Son".

The praying woman in scenes from "Go Down Death" and "Listen Lord" was portrayed by Mrs. Sarah Harley.

During the portrayals, the Unique Chorale gave moving renditions of spirituals and familiar AME hymns.

J. Walter Fisher was at the organ. He is the director of Soper Library at Morgan.

* * *

During the sermon, "The Creation", Mrs. Marie Smith, mother of Ronald Jones, was soloist for the occasion.

Members of the Chorale were dressed in costumes, similar to those worn in the late 16th century and the early 19th century, as were many of the parishioners.

The audience was moved by the inspiring singing of the National Anthem by James Weldon Johnson and the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The Rev. Mr. Swann called the performance a "fitting recreation of the heritage of the AME Church."

Mrs. Haskins gave the history of the oldtime preacher and described how James Weldon Johnson created his poetry, evoking it around the early black churchgoers.

* * *

Selections by the Chorale included, "Daniel, Daniel, Servant of the Lord"; "We Shall Overcome"; "Set Down Servant".

The church bulletin carried the following letter: Dear Friends:

The Farah Manufacturing Company of El Paso, Texas, has continued to refuse to recognize the rights of its employees to join a union of their choice.

These workers have been on strike against the company since May of 1972. Since that time a national "Don't Buy Farah" campaign has been organized.

I am involved in the campaign, both in the Baltimore area and nationally.

We ask that you do not purchase until this situation is resolved. Thanks, Melvin Chester Swann Religious Consultant Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America AFL-CIO"

Bowie students worked on Kohoutek NASA

Seven Bowie State College students recently completed work at the Comet Kohoutek Information Center located at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

The students were hired by Bendix Field Engineering Corporation, Columbia, to work partitime at the Center run by Bendix under NASA's Communication Network — NASCOM.

The students selected from 25 candidates were Gertrude Dowdy and John Lucas, Baltimore; Antonio Jones, Upper Marlboro; Eric Harris, Lanham; Nathan Merritt, Cedar Heights; Micahel Robinson, Seat Pleasant; and Geraldine Smith, Denton, Maryland.

The Kohoutek comet was discovered last March and spurred the most thorough tracking and observation of any comet in history. Over 350 scientists and experimenters all over the world were focused on Kohoutek.

Although it was expected that the tail of the comet, composed of highly reflective dust, would create a spectacular show for the public, overcast weather and composition of the comet cancelled the show and "It just ran out of dust."

The Comet Kohoutek Information Center is due to be phased out this month. The last Bowie student, Miss Geraldine Smith, left her part-time job this week.

Cong. Mitchell decries security budget cut

After learning that the U.S. Department of Labor has proposed a 5 per cent budget cut for Maryland's Employment Security Administration for Fiscal Year 1975, Cong. Parren J. Mitchell (D-7-Md.) immediately wrote Secretary of Labor Brennan, urging that the proposed budget cut be reconsidered.

In his correspondence to the secretary of labor which Mitchell made public last week, the congressman said, "My astonishment at the proposed budget cut derives from the facts that (a) the Maryland unemployment compensation benefit claims rate has doubled in the past two months; (b) the recently enacted Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 obviously requires additional funding and staffing for the State of Maryland and (c) if the 'energy crisis' persists over a long period of time as predicted by Elected Officials and experts, the State of Maryland will inevitably experience a sharp increase in unemployment thus necessitating additional efforts on the part of the Maryland Employment Security Administration."

Mitchell added, "The real situation demands an increase in the budget allocation for the State in order to permit the development of a service that can truly meet the needs of the State."

The congressman asked for a meeting with the secretary to further explain the basis of his request for reconsideration and urged prompt action on his request that the 6 per cent cut proposed by the Department of Labor be cancelled.

Slain 'woman' turns into a male

Witnesses told police they heard loud noises prior to the body being found in the street. They called police and reported a "woman" had been killed.

A neighbor told a man was seen running away from the scene of the murder shortly before the body was discovered. Police said a woman whose telephone number was found in the victim's pocket identified him as "Kim".

She told police she saw "Kim" and a "gay" named Ann leaving a bar an hour before "Kim" was found dead.

Mr. Godwin's body remains in the city morgue. Relatives could not be reached for comment.

A fully dressed "woman" found slain in the 2500 block Druid Hill Ave. turned up to be a man upon examination of his wounds at the Provident Hospital Wednesday morning.

Known to friends as "Kim", the deceased identified by police was Ronald Godwin, 27, 900 block Brooks Lane.

Police state he was pronounced dead on arrival at the Provident Hospital at about 12:25 a.m. He had been stabbed in the chest with a knife. A warrant has been issued for arrest of a man seen running from the scene.

Westinghouse hosts minority exhibition Feb. 28

An exhibit and conference to attract additional minority suppliers has been scheduled in downtown Baltimore by the Westinghouse Defense and Electronic Systems Center.

In hopes of "broadening our contact with minority suppliers" the exhibit will be held on Thursday, Feb. 28, in the Maryland Suite of the Holiday Inn, 301 W. Lombard Street, according to N. V. Petrou, president of the Defense and Electronic Systems Center.

"This exhibit and conference will give potential minority suppliers an added opportunity to become acquainted with Westinghouse buyers, as well as to obtain other information on how to do business with us," he added.

Mr. Petrou described relations with minority suppliers in the past as "mutually beneficial," but said extra steps were being taken to identify additional contacts in the Middle East Coast region.

Various other groups, such as the Urban League, would also be contacted to determine what assistance they could lend to making the conference a success.

The Defense and Electronic Systems Center is Maryland's second largest private employer, with a payroll of approximately 11,300, and one of the country's leading defense contractors.

Agnew 'on his knees'

By Jeffrey C. Reynolds

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers asked Maryland's highest court Monday to suspend the former Vice President as an attorney but not to disbar him as recommended by a special three-judge panel for his no contest plea to an income tax evasion charge.

The three-judge panel, named by the Maryland Court of Appeals to hear a request for disciplinary action against Agnew by the State Bar Association, said last month it saw no extenuating circumstances for Agnew's plea on the charge last Oct. 10.

"His conduct, characterized as it must be, as deceitful and dishonest, strikes at the heart of the basic object of the legal profession and constitutes conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice," the lower court said. "The respondent (Agnew) is unfit to continue as a member of the bar of this state."

But in a 20-page brief of exceptions to the lower court recommendation Agnew's attorneys said while the former Vice President had pleaded no contest to the income tax charge "No other misconduct has been alleged and no other proof of misconduct heas been adduced.

"Laying aside for the moment the judicial rhetoric in cases of this kind, including the lower court's opinion . . . it seems safe to say that unless accompanied by proof of other serious offenses, tax violations have not justified disbarment.

"This respondent, like John Doe, should be disciplined promptly, fairly and in a manner consistent with treatment accorded his fellows," the Agnew attorneys said. "If such treatment is accorded, we submit the lower court's recommendation should be modified to provide suspension for such period of time as seems reasonable."

The Agnew attorneys contended of a total of 81 attorneys disciplined in the United States since 1946 for tax violations, only 11 were disbarred while the others received suspensions ranging from a few months to several years.

The Bar Association has 20 days in which to file a response to the Agnew brief. Once it is filed, the Court of Appeals is expected to set a date for another hearing. The Court of Appeals is Maryland's highest court and final arbiter of disciplinary action against attorneys in the state.

The Bar Association asked for Agnew's disbarment following his resignation from office and the no contest plea last Oct. 10, contending the plea was evidence of guilt of a crime involving moral turpitude.
