The Following Houses Can Be Purchased F.H.A. or V.A.
NO MONEY DOWN

4636 ROKEBY RD.
This English Tudor styled house located in Rogner Heights is convenient to schools, transportation and shopping centers, yet tucked away from the hassles of the everyday bussels of life. The front is lined with trees and the back overses a private park which you can enjoy in the newly enclosed back porch. If you like large modern furniture, you will have no problems fitting it into these very spacious rooms with loads of closet space. The master bedroom can hold two double size beds with lots of room to spare. We will help you to obtain financing.
4402 MANORVIEW

So you have been looking for a house with a clubroom and a built in bar? And you are worried about the oil problem? This cute and cozy brick home located in the Uplands will solve all of those problems. You can move right in this house. It already has wall to wall carpeting with built in cupboards in the dining room. Absolutely nothing to do! It already has the storm doors and windows, awnings on the back porch and front windows, and the yard is already fenced in. Absolutely nothing for you to do but give us a call about this lovely home. If you like, you may assume the owners's mortgage.
4105 FERNHILL

If you are busting out of the seams with no room to spare you will love this large, spacious cottage. There is plenty in this house with extra large closets. Pride of home ownership can be seen through out this well cared for home. There are six bedrooms with three full baths! The pantry will hold all the food on sale you will want to stock up on. An open porch and an enclosed sun porch will let you get away from it all when you want to. There is a garage that goes with the house and an unbelievably large yard. If you need lots of room and space be sure to check this house out.

After a buffeet dinner plans were made for the club's annual card party on March 16. Mrs. Esther Wiles of Family and Children's Society spoke to the group about child adoption. She stressed the changing requirements for child adoption. Adoption agencies are seeking parents who can give a child love and security in a stable home rather than emphases on home income and superior education.

Members present were Mesdames Naomi Camper, Emma Dorsey, Lorraine Hayes, Mary Jeter, Allegra Dudley, Violetta Lee, Beatrice Pitts, Charlotte Little, Ethel Harris, Katherine O. Johnson, Ruth Marshall and Martha Ammons.

Members present were Mesdames Lucy Swaine, Gloria Barnes, Viola Hill Whyte, Esther Bailey, Ruth Brown, Catherine Dixon, Odell Payne, Bertha Winston, Ruth Russell, Hattie B. Smith, Vergie Waters, Viola Jackson, and Roslyn C. Wood.

Guests also were Mesdames Frances Murphy, Charlotte Swan, Elizabeth Henderson, Thecla Wilson, Phyllis Greene, Rachel Smith, Dorothy Wood and Miss Emma Davis.

Woodlawn Highlights

The Baptist Family in Maryland will sponsor their third annual benefit banquet under the auspices of the Fire Renovation and Expansion Drive committee for the Baptist Aged Home on Wednesday, March 27.

A luncheon was held in the multipurpose room last Friday in honor of Mrs. Anna Mae Paxton. It was a gay retirement party attended by friends, relatives and co-workers she has known since 1944 when she started working at the Social Security Administration.

Mrs. Sarah B. Boyd, a 1966 retiree now living in Philadelphia was in town this weekend to attend the retirement party for Mrs. Paxton and the surprise birthday party given by Mrs. Charlotte Johnson for husband, Ted. Mrs. Johnson is also a former SSA employee.

Winners of the Woodlawn Toastmistrees Club's annual speech contest were Mesdames Verna Day, Leona Holly and Phyliss Reaves. First place winner, Mrs. Day will compete in the speech contest to be held at Council Level on March 30th.

Judges for the contest held at Restaurant 3900 on N. Charles St. were: Nathan Hirsch, Lou Michaelson, Ms. Lorena Cephas and Ms. Rose Rightnour. Special guests included members of the Chesapeake Toastmistrees club, Mesdames Marie Scott, Emma Brewington, Mary D. Payne, Marjorie B. Cole, Estelle Flowers, Valerie Gladden and Geneva M. Shiflet.

Suspended employee charges Rosewood with discrimination

By Dennis Schatzman

A black assistant fire marshal was bumped from promotion and finally suspended in what he calls "job discrimination" at Rosewood State Hospital.

Terry Triplett, 30, started working at the Owings Mills site as a health assistant in 1968. Two years later, he was appointed assistant fire marshal, to his knowledge, the only such classification in the state.

When Fire Marshal Nevin Merkle had a heart attack last June, Triplett assumed he would step in as acting fire marshal. But Dr. Marvin Malcotti, hospital director, appointed a white man from another department (Saunders) to that position.

Triplett says that the qualifications for being a fire marshal include at least five years experience, training in fire safety and first aid.

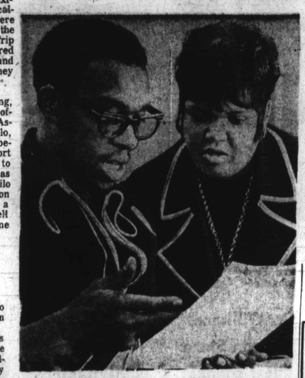
When "Trip" questioned Malcotti's decision, the director admitted that he might have been unjust, but he promised Trip he would get "first shot at the job if Merkle doesn't come back. But until then, show Saunders the duties pertaining to fire marshal."

"Trip" worked with Saunders from June to November. He described Saunders as "a good man to work for, but he didn't have the experience I had."

In November, Trip was involved in an incident which marked the beginning of his current dilemma. One Sunday morning, he was called to quell a disturbance in the maximum security cottage called Bissell. The boys were rioting and beating up the staff on duty. When Trip got to the cottage, gathered the boys in one room and talked to them, they stopped fighting.

Rooted out of Job

That Monday morning, Trip was called into the office of Administrative Assistant, Mrs. Betty Dallo, who informed him that "because of his good rapport with the boys," he was to report to duty in Bissell as health assistant. Mrs. Dallo told Trip that the decision came from Malcotti with a message to her to "tell Trip not to come see me anymore."



TWO ROSEWOOD STATE Hospital employees told the AFRO of being victims of job discrimination at the hospital. Left, Terry Triplett, suspended assistant fire marshal; right, Mrs. Pat McDaniel, licensed practical nurse and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union representative.

After getting his right hand disfigured in his first week in Bissell, (a deaf and dumb patient hit him with the iron "foot" of a bed), he filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in Baltimore.

Accused of Malicious Attack

On Jan. 21, one patient attacked two others, hitting one's head against the wall and punching the other one. Trip knocked him down and the boy broke his wrist. "He either fell on top of it when I threw him down or he broke it when he hit one of the other boys," he reasoned.

Trip was off duty the following two days. Upon his return, he found the State police investigating the incident and that he was being accused of "maliciously attacking the boy."

In a meeting with Malcotti and his staff, the point was raised that Trip had filed a complaint with the EEOC. Malcotti admitted he knew of the complaint, but later in a television interview Jan. 30, he denied it.

help students get into graduate school. We also make projections about the future of Morgan."

Commenting on just what he sees as the future of Morgan, Dr. Gellman stated, "Morgan has taken a drop, the desegregation of former "white" schools is beginning to hurt Morgan which relies on the black population for its support."

With its student population dropping Dr. Gellman went on to present some of the possibilities to changing this situation.

"Morgan was set up as a quality school for blacks, but they may have to take on more whites."

"The graduate school is already 50-50, and the undergraduate school is 95 per cent black." Although Dr. Gellman explained, "Whites would not be a "threat" but only an "extention" of Morgan with the college being placed into a balance of about 75 per cent blacks against 25 per cent whites."

Dr. Gellman is the author of the book "Roosevelt and Bakista" which deals with the United State's good neighbor diplomacy with Cuba between 1933-1945.

Though he is working on another book, Dr. Gellman revealed that it is moving along at a very slow pace, saying "There's no way you can write and be an administrator." Stating further that most of his writing work has to be done during his vacation time, though he looks forward to the day when he can return to full time writing again.

When queried about his mother who is listed on the AFRO Honor Roll, Dr. Gelman had this to say. "My mother was more interested in justice than rules," continuing, "Owen Marshalls are only on T.V., but it's usually a little old man or lady that does it."

Explaining what brought the public eye, the father of a year old girl said, "She broke the Lyric theatre, she was the first ever to bring a black person in there."

Dr. Gellman continued noting that this was done in a time when whites helping blacks was looked down upon by others, adding "she was involved in the picketing done against area restaurants. She's now involved in easing relations between blacks and jews.

When asked how he felt about having his mother being an activist in the Civil Rights movement while he was a boy, Dr. thought his mom felt about Gellman said "I didn't like it. I was in my early teens, and she was out of the house a lot. So she would have a maid or someone to come in and take care of us."

But telling how he thought his mom felt about it, "I think she enjoyed it, it seemed as though she felt she was doing something worthwhile."

But telling how he feels on the question of his becoming an activist, "I'm not a missionary, I reserve the right to be abnoxious to anyone."

like the building of sewers and pipelines," said Berkowitz.

Mayor Schaefer sent letters to the Urban League, N.A.A.C.P., the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance and others informing them of the plans and inviting them to a planning breakfast this morning (Friday) at the Hilton Hotel.

Mrs. Enolia McMillian, Baltimore Chapter president of the NAACP was elated over the Mayor's plans. "It seems to me a good idea. If we're going to boost employment in Baltimore City the black community should have a hand in the planning development," she said.

Urban League Director Travis Vauls attended the morning breakfast to "see what it was all about." It seems to me that the Mayor wants me to recommend someone to serve on the committee," he commented.

The Rev. Melvin Chester Swann, president of the Ministerial Alliance was out of town, but his secretary confirmed that he would be back in town in time to attend the meeting.

Patterson sees trouble in desegregation order

School Superintendent Roland N. Patterson told the Board of School Commissioners Thursday that despite a directive from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, he could not, "in good conscience" recommend a plan for reorganization of city schools "for the purpose of further reducing racial isolation."

HEW has given the school system until March 7 to develop and submit a plan which will racially balance the staff and student body of Baltimore public schools.

Failure to comply with the mandate will result in the school system's forfeiture of some $17 million in desegregation of public schools and their staffs, as well as the form a community task force which would have input into the plan.
